Some Shortcomings... But Vibrations Good

BY JON POWERS

KINGSTON
The crowds were small, the speakers were few and the music was short but the vibrations were good at the peace rally at Kingston Point Beach Saturday.

The event that launched Peace Week in Ulster County got off to an inauspicious start when it began some two hours late. Technical difficulties afflicted the sound equipment; there were long pauses between speeches and music; and the overflow crowds that were anticipated were apparently overflowing someplace else. None of which seemed to bother those that did show up. They dug the sand, the sun, the cool breezes from the Hudson and Piper Laurie.

In a short, but dramatic and stirring interpretive reading, Miss Laurie made her own case for peace. Her subject was a "telegram" from the Defense Department to the family of a boy killed in Vietnam. Its closing line—"Please instruct us where you want the body shipped"—served as the departure point for a soliloquy on the tragedies of war.

A former actress, Miss Laurie now resides in Woodstock with her baby daughter and husband, Joseph Morgenstern, author, critic and contributing editor to Newsweek magazine.

Morgenstern was more abrupt in his appraisal of the 10 years of fighting in Vietnam. "There has been a growth in the war, a growth in the mines in Haiphong Harbor, a growth in the number of sorties, a growth in the bombs dropped. There has been all sorts of growth, but it has been growth of a useless sort. For the first time since we began stumbling down the stairs to the dungeon of war, we have a chance for another kind of growth. Our nation is ready to get off the plateau of Vietnam... How do we make ourselves heard to a bully who is intent on preserving the dignity of his office?"

Morgenstern's answer is to support the candidacy of Sen. George McGovern. "A peace rally must be a McGovern rally," said Morgenstern, "he is the only one who gives us hope for some kind of growth."

Morgenstern had more to say about President Nixon. "Our incumbent dictator can look out the back window and watch a peace rally, or he can look out the back window at the Rose Garden. Guess which way he's looking? We have to throw the bum out."

Comedian Lenny Price, who emceed the event, generally avoided Nixon but took several pot shots at the "warhawks" in the entertainment business: Bob Hope, John Wayne, George Jessel and others.

There were other speakers, as well, who espoused peace, but music also played an important part in the day's proceedings: if only to keep the crowd in place for the next speaker. Several local rock and country and western groups entertained, along with several folk singers.

In between appearances, the crowd that reached a peak at 200 in mid-afternoon lolled on the beach or under the trees. There was a lot of talk, a few frisbees and some swimming. Several tables were set up and volunteers passed out literature.

A solitary police cruiser was parked a discreet distance from the crowd during most of the afternoon.

Paul Atkinson, chairman of the Ulster County Peace Committee, which sponsored the event with some help from the Kingston Area Council of Churches, remained philosophical in the midst of the sparse crowd and occasional confusion. He carried a petition containing some 550 signatures urging immediate withdrawal from Vietnam; and that, to him, spelled some degree of success.

PHOTO GIVES EVIDENCE OF 'SMART BOMB' SUCCESS

Hanoi-China Rail Span Kayoed by U.S. Jets

SAIGON (UPI) — American Phantom jets have struck the closest to China since retaliatory bombing began April 6 and knocked out a major North Vietnamese railroad bridge 20 miles from the border, cutting a key rail line between Hanoi and the frontier, the U.S. Command said Saturday.

The U.S. command reported the bombers used laser-guided, one-ton "smart bombs" to wreck the Lang Giai bridge, 60 miles northeast of the North Vietnamese capital. The attack dropped 6 of the 11 spans of the 1,500-foot bridge.

The bridge is on the rail line extending from the border city of Panhuo in China to Hanoi, a distance of about 90 miles. The government ground troops knocked out eight more Communist tanks for a two-day total of 18 tank kills, the spokesman said. But heavy fighting raged inside the city and in at least one major government military camp.

The Communists, believed to number no more than 5,000, isolated three defending South Vietnamese regiments. UPI reporter Matt Franjola on the scene at Kontum said the situation "looks pretty grim."

Saturday was the 2,516th anniversary of the birth of Buddha, and it was the first time in four years that there was no truce to honor the birthday. Military sources said a young Vietnamese army medic at a base near Hue chose the day to commit suicide with a hand grenade in a plea for peace.

Near that former imperial capital city, Communist troops launched four attacks against the northern defense lines but were beaten back by government marines.

At Kontum, Franjola reported 19 waves of B52 bombers, scores of tactical air strikes, and heavy groundfire caused heavy Communist casualties. He said Communist troops also line is a major overland supply route from China to North Vietnam.

A North Vietnamese broadcast monitored in Tokyo said the Communist forces had shot down two U.S. planes that raided "populated areas" in Ninh Binh and Ha Tinh Provinces Saturday. It said "one U.S. pilot was captured in Ha Tinh."

The broadcast also said North Vietnamese "shore batteries in Thanh Hoa set afire a U.S. warship which was shelling the coast."

In South Vietnam, Communist troops and tanks drove through heavy South Vietnamese defenses and invaded the northern section of the city of Kontum, a provincial capital in the Central Highlands 260 miles north of Saigon, military spokesmen said.

Leningrad Pours Out for Nixon

MOSCOW (UPI) — After five days of grueling negotiations, President Nixon toured the motorcade into the city for a imperial capital of Leningrad one-day visit. Soviet troops and sailors holding back the throngs welcomed thousands who poured into its rain-swept streets, and toasted his hopes for "a world of peace and friendship."

The President's face broke into broad smiles as he waved back at cheering crowds lining the heavily guarded route of his motorcade into the city for a one-day visit. Soviet troops and sailors holding back the throngs welcomed thousands who poured into its rain-swept streets, and toasted his hopes for "a world of peace and friendship."

"My God!" exclaimed a Nixon aide. "Crowds!" said Mrs. Nixon to her companions, "wonderful, wonderful."

by the Russian people since he arrived in their country last Monday, and Nixon immediately responded like a campaigner. Mrs. Nixon plucked petals from the bouquet of red roses she received at the airport welcome and handed them to Leningraders along the way.

White House aides said the crowd, standing four or five deep at some points, might have numbered in the hundreds of thousands. Girls in miniskirts and housewives with shopping bags jumped up and down behind guards at street corners, trying to catch a glimpse of the President as he rode past.

Accompanied by his wife and Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny, Nixon laid a wreath of white carnations at the Piskarev Cemetery monument to the 470,000 Russians who died of famine and disease during the 900-day German siege of Leningrad.

Later, at a luncheon in his honor at the czarist Mariinsky Palace, Nixon recalled seeing the photograph and diary of 12-year-old Tanya Savicheva, who recorded her feelings of joy and despair as she and her family slowly starved to death.

"I only hope that the visit that we have had at the highest level with the Soviet leaders will have contributed to that kind of world in which the little Tanyas and their brothers and their sisters will be able to grow up in a world of peace and friendship among people, all people in the world," Nixon said.

He ended his toast with these words in Russian: "Vechnyaya slava Geroiskomu Leningradu!" (Eternal glory to heroic Leningrad.)

Nixon, still buoyant over the signing of strategic arms limitation agreements with Soviet leadership at the Kremlin Friday night, relaxed with a nine-hour sightseeing visit to the spacious, classical city on the Gulf of Finland that Peter the Great built more than 250 years ago as imperial Russia's "window looking on Europe."

Laird Orders Halt Under Summit Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird Saturday ordered an immediate halt to all military projects banned under the Moscow summit's arms limitation agreements. Pentagon officials predicted only a nominal financial dividend.

"There will be savings, yes, but they'll buy crackers and milk, not filet mignon," quipped one official.

Laird ordered the Army to stop construction of the Safeguard antiballistic missile (ABM) site around Malmstrom Air Force Base in Montana and to end searches for sites around Warren AFB, Wyo. and White-man AFB, Mo.

In accord with the Moscow pact, he ordered the Army to proceed with plans for an ABM site around Washington, D.C., and to finish work at Grand Forks AFB, N.D., now about 80 per cent complete.

"We recognize that these actions will cause some temporary economic hardships," Laird said. "But the Department of Defense will do everything it can to help alleviate these hardships."

The treaty limits the Soviet Union and the United States to protecting their national capitals with 100 defensive ABM missiles and one of their offensive land-based launch sites with another 100 ABMs.

Whatever the savings, the officials said, the amount will not be big enough to eliminate or even to put a crimp in next year's budget deficit.

Much of the $1.5 billion budgeted for ABM next year still will be spent, officials said.

Edelmuth Post... a Key Point

BY LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON
The question of who will succeed the late Democratic County Legislator William F. Edelmuth as a representative of the City of Kingston on the County Board is being argued vigorously by Democrats and Republicans alike.

The GOP reportedly has tabbed Harry C. Kapreilian for the post while the Democrats are reportedly looking toward former City Legislator William "Pucker" Davis or Orrie R. Riehl.

But, looming above all is an even larger question: WHO has the legal right and power to make the appointment?

James T. McCordle, chairman of the Ulster County Democratic Party, contends that Kingston Mayor Francis R. Koenig should name someone to succeed Edelmuth while the GOP cites General Laws of the State which stipulate that the governor should make the appointment.

The Democrats point out that the county does not have a charter specifying conditions for filling vacancies while the city does. They also point to the fact that in the mid-1960's, a former Kingston mayor did make an appointment to the county Board of Supervisors.

Meanwhile, Supreme Court Justice John L. Larkin, who recently gave a decision in a somewhat similar case in Albany Supreme Court, believes that the governor is too remote from the local scene to make such an appointment and Larkin believes that it should be the right of the County Legislature itself.

Justice Larkin rules out the mayor making the appointment because he said a county legislator is a county officer and not an officer of the city.

It was not always so, he man of the County Airport explained. When the county government was under the old Board of Supervisor system, then a county legislator was considered either an officer of a city ward or a town in the county.

But, since Ulster County was ordered by the court to change to a County Legislature system of government under reapportionment and the one-man, one-vote ruling, county legislators no longer serve as town or city supervisors but are officers of the county exclusively.

Justice Larkin, noting that the county does not yet have a charter, said it is possible for the County Legislature to now pass a local law stipulating how and who should fill vacancies on its board and give itself the power of appointment.

Kapreilian is apparently a logical choice for the GOP to want to seat on the board, because he said a county legislator is a county officer and not an officer of the city. Corp. in Kingston, and chair of the County Airport Commission, he was a candidate for the Legislature in 1971 losing by a very small margin. The race was so close in fact, that Kapreilian had been declared a winner until a recount about a week later.

Davis, a former member of the board, also sought reelection that year and thought he too had won. But, a recount also knocked Davis off the board.

Riehl was a two-term member of the Legislature who lost his last bid for reelection. He now serves as treasurer of the City of Kingston.

Most political leaders in both Democrat and Republican parties were unavailable for comment over the holiday weekend regarding the appointment to be made. However, most of those contacted see no solution to the problem. It was generally conceded that whoever makes the move to appoint first will probably be faced with a court fight by the opposing party.

New City Hall...It's Still an Open Question

SEPTEMBER SONG—"Hey, Mr. City Hall Reporter," yelled one of the Freeman desk men during the cold, dark, slow days this past January, "city hall's supposed to be finished this month. Right? Let's see if we can get a photo layout."

And so off we went. The inside, to our untrained eye looked just about finished. It was a surprisingly large building, plenty of rooms, although one could easily get lost in the myriad of corridors.

Wandering around, we came upon a workman who was doing some touchup painting in one of the rooms.

"How's it going?" we inquired.

"Oh, pretty good," the guy said. "Just a few odds and ends here and there."

"Any idea when they'll be moving in here?" we asked not really expecting an answer.

"They could move in right now," the guy said, "if they wanted to. We thought they were going to move in last October. We got this big rush order last summer. But then, I guess they changed their minds."

We've been back to the new city hall a few times since then and the story is always just about the same, just a few more odds and ends to clean up.

This Friday, we asked Mayor Koenig when the city expected to move into the new city hall. Koenig said he had hoped for a June 1st moving day but the building wasn't completed yet so that date was out the window.

"Plus the fact that you don't have any furniture for the building," we suggested.

City Beat

By HUGH REYNOLDS
Freeman City Hall Reporter

One seldom wins arguments with Frank Koenig. He rarely concedes a point. The mayor reiterated that the building was not completed and the city was not moving into it until it was completed. The fact that there was no furniture for it was incidental, the mayor said, indicating that even if furniture was available the city wasn't going to move in until the building was finished.

The furniture story is, of course, an old and increasingly less humorous tale of snafu. The building went into construction in May of 1970 with a target date of completion of January 22, 1972.

Normally, the mayor would be the man to arrange the purchase of the furniture, but two members of the Common Council saw it differently. Former Seventh Ward Alderman Mike Perry, as chairman of the City Hall Committee, thought that his committee should be responsible, while current Eighth Ward Alderman Emilio A. Primo thought his Building and Supply Committee should get the job.

Koenig threw the bone to those two guys who ate up valuable months of time fighting over whose committee had priority. Finally, Primo got the upper hand and had clear sailing when Perry got knocked off in the November '72 elections.

Primo labored mightily and came up with half a furniture package, which is supposed to be delivered sometime around the first week in June. The other half, such incidentals as desks and chairs for the aldermen (new desks and chairs, by the way) and filing cabinets might be coming in around August, we are told.

So the answer to why the city doesn't move into the new city hall isn't so much that it isn't completed, it's because the furniture isn't here yet.

Meanwhile, we taxpayers are paying off bonds on an empty building.

THE SENATE RACE — From where we sit, it looks like Dick Schermerhorn, the incumbent state senator from Orange County, will be the Republican candidate for the new southern Ulster senate district following his June 20 primary with Anthony Barone, an Orange County supervisor.

Schermerhorn, it is said, is in tight with Assemblyman Clark Bell, which is the place to be considering the current state of county GOP politics. Schermerhorn apparently thinks a lot like Bell (generally Conservative), sounds a lot like Bell in his public statements and according to some, even bears a remarkable physical resemblance to Bell.

Bell's support of Schermerhorn, though not yet public, is further emphasized by those shadowy "figures in the know" by the fact that Joe Martorana dropped out of the primary earlier this month.

Martorana is one of Bell's closest allies, and was a decisive factor in Bell's primary win over Pete Savago in 1968. By coincidence, Martorana now works for Assembly Speaker Perry Duryea, another Bell buddy.

SORRY OSCAR—"If we don't get any mail tomorrow, it's your fault," City Editor Ed Palladino warned us on Thursday. "For your information, there are FIVE living ex-mayors of Kingston."

We listed four in our story on the death of Bill Edelmuth on Wednesday. The fifth, Oscar V. Newkirk, is very much alive, serving as Kingston's postmaster . . . Sorry, Oscar.

BERARDI ON AN INSPECTION TOUR

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON
James J. Berardi has constructed bridges, roads and buildings all over Ulster County for the past three decades. So the start of another construction project for Berardi is like a trip to the plate for Willie Mays...he's been there many times before.

But Berardi's latest project, the reconstruction of the 120-year-old Fitch bluestone office building on Abel Street is something else, although, at first, Berardi gives the impression that for him it is just another construction job.

"We're going to restore the outside to what it was before," Berardi says. "We're going to restore the dome and put a new roof on it. We'll have to point up the stone (fill in the spaces between the stones). There's lots of voids."

"We don't plan any exterior changes. We haven't really decided what to do inside. We're going to make a home out of it, put two bedrooms upstairs, a dining room, a living room and a kitchen downstairs."

"Maybe, I'll move in it myself," Berardi revealed that he had plans to restore the Fitch building several years ago but pressing business and other snags got in his way. At one point, the city wanted to build a mini-park on the property but that was shelved when matching state funds failed to materialize.

Then Berardi thought he could get federal funds for the restoration. He could, but there was a catch. He had to open the building at least once a week to the public.

The building, considering its age and the fact that it has been vacant and virtually wide open to the elements for more than 60 years, is in remarkably sound condition. About the only concession Berardi will have to make to workmanship in the past is the replacing of a zinc-layered cornice with wood. "They just don't do work like that anymore," Berardi said,

"but the wood will look exactly the same."

Berardi has made a number of improvements to the property during the 20 years he and his wife, Alice, have owned it. Two years ago he piped in the Twaalfskill brook which runs through the center and last year he erected a chain link fence around it.

His knowledge of his building, described in one Freeman Tempo feature as "the ghost house," has become rather extensive over the years.

"You know, the deed on that place is about 10 miles long. We were the first ones (Berardi and his wife) to get complete title to it. We had to go to England to get it."

Berardi's search for clear deed to the property brought out a number of interesting historical facts about it. "The Fitch family came over here from England around 1612," Berardi said. "They settled in Danbury, Conn., and from there they moved to Kingston. They used to live at the old Masonic Temple on Albany Avenue."

The Fitch building was built in 1852 by two Fitch brothers who by then were beginning to pile up a vast fortune in the manufacture and sale of bluestone. The stone was quarried in what was once West Hurley. Those quarries now lie beneath the Ashokan Reservoir.

The Fitch brothers parted ways around 1895 with the decline of the bluestone business. One Fitch stayed in Kingston, the other went to New York City and formed the firm of Abercrombie and Fitch. "Fitch was the guy with the money," Berardi says.

Berardi plans to spend "about $15,000 or $20,000" on the restoration of the Fitch building. He plans a colonial interior "maybe with 12 by 12 oak beams inside," along with extensive landscaping. "We'll probably take about 40 feet to the west of it, plant some grass, trees, bushes, some flowers. I understand the Landmarks people are very happy about it."

"Happy" is probably an understatement. "We are most grateful," Fred Johnston, chairman of the Historic Landmarks Preservation Commission, told The Freeman. "This shows wonderful cooperation by a private citizen. He's doing this all on his own."

The commission designated the building an historic site two years ago, but according to Johnston, "we had no hope of money to restore it. We despaired that it would fall to pieces. Literally, there was nothing we could do. Landmarks has no money."

Johnston pointed out that the building is considered by experts to be "the finest example of cut bluestone architecture in the United States."

A team of architects from the Department of Interior, in Kingston for the next three months to make records of the Stockade area, will make drawings of the Fitch building for recording in the Library of Congress.

The Fitch building is the first one to be restored in the downtown section of Kingston. All previous restoration work has been done in the Stockade area.

Johnston is aware of criticism in some quarters that the Historic Landmarks Commission has concentrated its efforts in the uptown area to the detriment of downtown, but considers that criticism unwarranted. "It's true we've concentrated in the Stockade area, but we want to get that area ready for the bicentennial in 1976. We have always maintained an active interest in historic sites downtown and we expect to increase our activities there."

Johnston said the Commission is interested in designating a row of buildings across from The Daily Freeman offices on the Strand. Some of those buildings may date as far back as 1835, Johnston said.

But right now the center of attraction is the Fitch restoration. "It will be a monument to Mr. Berardi and a monument to the once great bluestone industry," Johnston said.

Doctors on Calley: No Premeditated Murder

NEW YORK (UPI)—Lt. William Calley became temporarily insane under the stress of combat and could not have committed premeditated murder at My Lai, according to the secret data of a psychiatrist and two psychologists who examined Calley.

The data, suppressed at Calley's court-martial, rests now in a kind of legal limbo in an Army office. Only a special but unlikely legal motion or the intervention of President Nixon can get the information before the U.S. Army Court of Military Review which soon will determine Calley's fate. The psychiatrist wrote in the suppressed volume of data that a "killer instinct" clearly is part of Calley's "underlying psychotic and pre-psychotic state which he had before military service, during Vietnam and to this day."

The psychiatrist, Dr. Albert A. LaVerne of New York, a recognized forensic expert, said that he had submitted all the reports to military authorities in 1971 and again several weeks ago. UPI obtained a copy of LaVerne's report and those of the two psychologists, all of which are bound in a 150-page volume titled "Suppressed Evidence in the Lt. William L. Calley Jr. Case." LaVerne's diagnosis went on to say "it is imperative to emphasize that if Calley is ever released to society, he should be under close medical and psychiatric surveillance for an unlimited period of time, during which he should be under psychiatric care and treatment." Calley was found guilty in March, 1971 of first degree murder in the deaths of at least 22 civilians on March 16, 1968 at My Lai. He was sentenced to life in prison, but that term was later reduced by Army Lt. Gen. A. O. Connor to 20 years. The case automatically went to the higher court of military review, where it rests now.

The Calley defense recently filed an appeal brief with the review court, seeking a mistrial on grounds of procedural irregularities that allegedly occurred in pretrial hearings and during the trial. Psychiatric considerations play no part in the appeal.

Senate Battle Looms On Moscow Accord

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An election-year struggle shaped up in the Senate Saturday over strategic arms policy in the wake of the Moscow Summit agreement on nuclear weapons control.

There was indication that members of the Senate Armed Service Committee would demand as the price for supporting ratification a congressional commitment to a range of new strategic weapons not covered by the Moscow treaty. But senators pressing for a halt to the arms race are planning to resist any attempt to ram new weapons systems through Congress as the price for the treaty. They believe this may be the strategy of the Joint Chiefs of Staff and supporters in Congress.

Belfast March... One Person Dead

BELFAST (UPI)—Bombing and shooting incidents killed one person and injured 16 others in Northern Ireland Saturday as thousands of Protestants marched through downtown Belfast demanding an immediate British crackdown on the illegal Irish Republican Army (IRA).

He was the 341st person killed in Northern Ireland since British soldiers were sent into the province almost three years ago to mediate between warring Protestants and Catholics. Bombs ripped through two theaters as the Protestant marchers neared the center of the city.

An estimated 15,000 to 20,000 Protestants took part in the march, many of them wearing Halloween masks to conceal their identity. The protest parade went off without violence, but elsewhere in the city British troops investigating gunfire in the Catholic Andersonstown area found the bullet-riddled body of Gerald Duddy, 20.

Two policemen and William Christie, the Protestant lord mayor-designate of Belfast were injured by flying glass near one of the theaters in the Crumlin Road area. No injuries were reported in the other theater explosion in the Old Park Road district. Six persons were wounded in a gunbattle between British soldiers and snipers in The Bone, a Catholic enclave.

Demo Sweepstakes... Two Hopefuls, One State

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—After 16 primaries coast to coast, the Democratic Presidential sweepstakes has narrowed to two candidates and one state — George S. McGovern and Hubert H. Humphrey in California.

The showdown between the two South Dakota natives, former neighbors and old friends, comes June 6. To the winner go 271 delegate votes, the title of front-runner for the Democratic presidential nomination, and momentum going into the national convention.

McGovern calls California the "make or break" primary and candidly admits that "by midnight on June 6, we'll have a pretty good indication of whether we're going to win the nomination or not."

Humphrey said the same thing in different words. "This is the playoff," Humphrey said. "Then we go to the Super Bowl in Miami."

largest bloc of delegate votes at the Democratic convention, but unlike California, New York does not have a winner-take-all primary. Individual delegates pledged to certain candidates are selected under a complicated formula.

There are only three serious Democratic candidates left — McGovern, Humphrey, and Alabama's George C. Wallace. Wallace, however, is not on the California ballot, and a write-in effort is difficult in this state.

In addition, Wallace is partially paralyzed from a would-be assassin's shots and cannot campaign.

That makes California a clear-cut, classic showdown between Humphrey and McGovern and the winner takes all the delegates to Miami Beach.

Although McGovern has a solid lead in the number of delegates after sweeping Oregon and Rhode Island in primaries Tuesday, Humphrey is in position to pass him.

Bard Speaker... Fear Danger

By TIM SCHUSTER

ANNANDALE-ON-HUDSON Judge Murray I. Gurfein told the graduating class at Bard College Saturday that the greatest danger we face today in this country is a "pervasive sense of fear." Judge Gurfein, United States District Court Judge for the Southern District of New York, made a landmark decision last year which cleared the way for publication of the Pentagon Papers. He served as United States Chief Counsel in the Nuremberg Trials.

Addressing the 112th commencement exercises under a large tent on the lawn, Judge Gurfein added that this fear is not without some foundation, but is irrational if people feel their problems are irreparable.

"Today, I make a special plea for diversity," he said. "Every generation thinks it is special, and I am sure your children will feel the same."

He characterized the present trend away from conformity in apparel and mode of living as symbolic of a rejection of the world's goods as "an end unto itself." But, he warned, man's

Paltz Prof Details Alleged Malfeasance Cases

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ The four cases of alleged malfeasance delivered to the administration of Dr. John J. Neumaier before the May 11 faculty meeting of the State University College at New Paltz have been provided to The Daily Freeman by Dr. Alfred Marks, one of the professors who has made charges against the Neumaier Administration. At the May 11 meeting, the faculty resolved that Marks, the 18, according to the professors, Marks did not release the other 14 cases. In a prepared statement, Marks said he was releasing the cases through The Freeman because the use of college facilities for duplicating the cases had been denied by Neumaier. He said Neumaier also refused legal advice. His statement said "the public press is the only means available to comply with the freedom of information act." He did not release the other 14 charges to The Freeman, said Marks, because they "are too voluminous and which also certain of those making the charges feel are privileged and involving agencies outside and above the college." Marks told The Freeman that he did not feel the college faculty had the right to "tell me to publish what I have written to the State University." Brenner, Thursday, said he had no part in giving the cases to The Freeman, but had told Marks he was "free to follow his own conscience." Though making the cases known in the press makes them public, said Marks in his statement, the faculty meetings at the college had in effect been public for "several years." He said, "In default of duplicating services, therefore, publication in this manner seems meet and proper." The cases, written in the form of a report to the faculty, allege substantially as follows: all statements made are according to the cases except as otherwise attributed: — Preferential treatment has been given to "three former influential student leaders dear to the hearts of the administration who now have high paying jobs in student personnel." All have only a bachelor's degrees, yet are earning higher salaries than New Paltz graduates normally get. "as much or more than many faculty with advanced degrees." One of the former students, advising a first semester transfer student, is reliably reported to have permitted him to take 37 hours concurrently this semester (editor's note: a normal student load would be approximately 15 hours). Four salaries listed, in the positions of director, college activities office; director, student advising; dorm director; and assistant to the dean of students are, respectively, $10,006, $10,000, $8,342 and $9,646. Marks said these salaries were before a recent 6 per cent raise.

An addition to the case, made following the submission to the president's office, noted one of the people in question was active in the recent anti-war demonstrations. — A vice president of the college exerted his influence to have the wife of a dean of the college awarded a two-year contract with the English Department. The dean's wife is a fine teacher, but the department did not wish to appoint her to a permanent position from her temporary position because she lacked a doctorate and "in that buyer's year in college employment the finest young scholars in the country" were available to the department. The vice president "made himself a one-man grievance committee for the case." He put pressure on college faculty and faculty committees, and all promotions for the department were held up until the case was resolved. Following the retirement of the department chairman, and pressure on the acting chairman and the incoming chairman, the contract was awarded. — In a "very glaring" case, complied with.

College Regime Opposes Publication

NEW PALTZ The State University College at New Paltz administration has issued a statement strongly opposing the publication in The Daily Freeman of the four cases New Paltz professors Dr. Alfred Marks and Gilbert Brenner say support their charges against the administration. The four cases were furnished to The Freeman for publication by Marks, who said the administration had refused college facilities for the circulation of the cases to the faculty. A May 11 resolution by the faculty directed Marks and Brenner to furnish to the faculty the cases it was making against the administration. Said the administration statement, to publish the cases "only adds to the damage done to the reputations of people who have been publicly and repeatedly subjected to unfounded charges and distorted statements of fact." Dr. John J. Neumaier, president of the college, was away from the campus delivering a commencement address in Minnesota. The statement says it speaks for "members of the administration" and not for Neumaier.

The administration statement did not seek to rebut the cases themselves, but addressed itself to the cover letter in which Marks explained his reasons for publishing the cases in The Freeman. The statement added, "Every member of the administration has always been willing to explain his actions to any faculty member or student who requests it." The administration statement says there are several "serious errors and omissions of fact" in Marks' cover letter, which were made known to the Freeman before the cases were published. The statement asserts that the publication of the cases after The Freeman was told of the errors was "irresponsible." The errors or omissions of fact, according to the administration, were: — A motion passed by the faculty May 11 was for Marks and Brenner to make the cases known to the faculty, including all cases and documentation previously sent to the Chancellor's Office in Albany. A second motion, described on the floor of the assembly as having the effect of censure, was passed against Marks, and Brenner for the vague nature of the charges and the ignoring of established procedures in bringing the charges. — The motion in no way implied that the professors "should carry these documents outside the college." That the faculty meetings were open does not relieve them of carrying out "the spirit of the letter" of the motion. The fact that the meetings were open made "the initial actions of Professors Brenner and Marks so reprehensible." — Neumaier did not deny college facilities for the duplication of the documents. He did "express serious reservations" as an innocent people might be harmed by the spread of the documents, and said he would give a final written answer after consulting with members of the administration.

— The college duplicating facilities are available to Marks and Brenner at their own expense. Since they are continuing to act privately, there is a "legitimate question" as to why the college should bear the expense.

— When these maneuvers were rejected by the faculty, and by the Chancellor's Office, Professor Marks apparently persuaded a newspaper to act for him what he could not accomplish otherwise," concluded the administration statement.

— No documentation for the above cases was provided to The Freeman, though Marks said it was "readily available"; all names had been removed. At the May 11 meeting, Marks and Brenner were directed by the faculty to explain to it why they have followed the procedures they have in making the charges against the administration. Brenner said Thursday this had not been

Slim Lead for Humphrey

By GEORGE GALLUP
Copyright, 1972.
Field Enterprises, Inc.

PRINCETON, N.J. Although Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey holds a substantial lead over his nearest rival, Sen. George McGovern, among rank-and-file Democrats nationally, his margin over the South Dakota Senator is a slim four points in both the East and the Far West.

Humphrey's national margin over McGovern is due largely to his strength in heartland America—the Midwest and the South.

In the Midwest, Humphrey holds a commanding 19-point lead over McGovern, while in the South he holds a 23-point lead over his rival, as determined by a survey of Democrats asked to select their top nomination choice from a list of ten people.

Governor Wallace runs a distant third—behind Humphrey and McGovern—in all regions except the South. In the South, however, Wallace ties Humphrey for the lead with each man receiving 33 per cent of the vote of Democrats. McGovern with 10 per cent runs a weak third in this region.

Following is an analysis of the nomination choices of Democrats by key groups in the population. The results are based on the latest two surveys, which were combined in order to provide large enough sample bases for certain groups.

Vote by Race — Humphrey's current national lead over the top contenders for the Democratic nomination, in terms of his appeal among grassroots Democrats, is due in large measure to his popularity with Blacks.

Among Black Democrats, Humphrey is selected over McGovern by the ratio of seven to one.

Outside the South for example, Humphrey's margin over McGovern is slim, 29 to 26 per cent, when Blacks are excluded from the sample. However, for the total population in this region, including both races, Humphrey has a wide 32 to 23 per cent lead.

The importance of the Black vote to Humphrey is also apparent in the South. Among Southern white Democrats only, Humphrey is far outstripped by Wallace, 42 to 24 per cent. But when Blacks are included in the sample, the race is a virtual stand-off between Humphrey and Wallace.

Vote by Occupation — Humphrey and McGovern run virtually neck-and-neck in most key occupation groups, with the exception of manual workers.

Humphrey is preferred by a large margin over McGovern among manual workers who identify themselves as Democrats, 34 to 15 per cent. The margin is somewhat less among skilled workers than among the unskilled.

Vote by Education — McGovern scores well with the better-educated Democrats while Humphrey's base of support is among the party faithful who have not gone past high school in formal education.

Democrats with a college background lean heavily to McGovern over Humphrey, 36 per cent to 22 per cent. On the other hand, a mere 9 per cent of Democrats with only a grade school education choose McGovern, compared to 39 per cent who pick Humphrey.

Vote by Age — Democrats under 30 years of age are about evenly divided between Humphrey and McGovern, while older Democrats, 50 and older, lean three-to-one to Humphrey over McGovern.

Following are the results in tabular form, based on the three most frequently selected aspirants:

Choices of Democrats
(from list of 10 persons)

	McG.	Wall.	H.H. Humphrey
East	28	24	14
West	28	24	10
Midwest	40	21	10

Whites outside South ..	29	26	13

Under 30 years old ..	27	25	18
30-49 years	31	21	18
50 & older	37	13	19

This analysis is based on interviews with 1317 Democrats out of a total sample of 3098 adults, 18 and older, reached earlier of the two surveys conducted between April 21 and May 1. Interviews were conducted in person in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation.

Each Democrat in the surveys was shown a card listing the names of ten leading candidates and asked the following question:

Which ONE of the people on this list would you like to see nominated as the Democratic candidate for President in 1972?

The national figures for the latest two surveys combined show Humphrey with 33 per cent, McGovern and Wallace each with 19 per cent; others and undecided, 29 per cent.

The latter of the two surveys,

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, MAY 28, 1972

WASHINGTON—The Secret Service, in its desperate efforts to prevent political assassinations, keeps a close watch on more than 400 organizations, ranging from the Women's Liberation movement to the Chinese Hand Laundry Alliance.

The only trouble: a federal study of 81 assassination attempts reveals that the assailants were loners, not joiners. For instance, Arthur Herman Bremer, who has been indicted for the point-blank shooting of George Wallace, doesn't appear in the Secret Service's computerized files of 180,000 potential assassins.

But the liberated ladies and the Oriental scrubbers are in the secret files, along with the Quaker Action Group, the Nonviolent Direct Action Group, the Gay Liberation Front and other organizations that the Secret Service considers "of protective interest."

Usually, this means the group has written to the President, demonstrated at the White House, threatened harm to some official or adhered to a nonconformist political ideology.

The Nonviolent Direct Action group, for example, is watched because it has "urged members to write the President and other government officials to protest war in Vietnam." But not even the Secret Service seems to know why the Gay Liberation Front is listed. Its "interest in protectees," acknowledges the Secret Service file on the homosexual movement, is "unknown."

The file on the National Welfare Rights Organization, to cite another example, contains a similar notation: "Interest in Protectees — None." But the Liberation News Service is kept under observation because it has been "highly critical of the President and Administration."

Postal Watch

Any group that demonstrates in front of the White House, apparently, is automatically added to the suspicious list. When the National Alliance of Postal and Federal Employees picketed the White House on August 25, 1971, for example, the union probably had no idea that the Secret Service was lurking in the bushes taking notes.

In a confidential memo about the postal picketers, Special Agent Louis B. Sims wrote that "a group of about 40 persons arrived at the White House and commenced the demonstration carrying various signs concerning better wages and equal job opportunity." Sims attached to his memo "photographs taken of the group and a copy of one of the pamphlets handed out."

The National American Indian Youth Council was kept under similar surveillance outside the White House on July 17, 1970. "Apparently they had placards under shirts," wrote Special Agent Robert R. Faison, "because they were not observed prior to the demonstration holding them up." He noted that "pictures of the demonstrators were taken by the Visual Intelligence Branch."

Not even the correspondents who cover the White House are free of suspicion. Back in September, 1967, representatives of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians set up a lonely picket across Pennsylvania Avenue from the Executive Mansion.

A Secret Service report notes that at 1:20 p.m. the protesting radiomen unfurled a sign stating: "ABC has a radio studio in the White House, and we are not permitted to walk across the street." The picketers, apparently, were banished to the opposite side of the street.

Secret Service eavesdroppers also reported overhearing a picketer "make a statement to persons on the sidewalk to the effect that they aren't getting enough; it's like the dark ages; any time the President wants to go on TV, they have to run around and get him on prime time."

The Secret Service keeps the closest watch, however, on organizations of ethnic, students, blacks and other minorities. The Cuban Nationalist Movement and Iranian Students Association, for instance, are among dozens of ethnic groups in the files.

Among the black groups under surveillance are the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. Even a black-owned bookstore in Washington, the Drum and Spear, is listed.

The student groups watched by the Secret Service include the Leftwing Students for a Democratic Society and rightwing National Youth Alliance. But even the National student Association, which until recent years received financial aid from the Central Intelligence Agency, is on the list.

Here are a few other excerpts from the guarded Secret Service files:

— John Birch Society: "Accused Pres. Eisenhower of communist affiliation."

— Federal Employees for Democratic Society: "Led vigil at US Capitol Bldg to protest ABM System."

— Young Chicanos for Community Action: "Have sponsored demonstrations in support of Mexican-American causes."

Ecology Pacts

WASHINGTON — For several months, the United States and the Soviet Union have had special representatives meeting to develop a cooperative effort to deal with environmental problems. A comprehensive agreement has now been signed in Moscow. It calls for joint programs on specific projects and for the two countries to work together on a variety of subjects which are regarded in today's world as of particular concern. Among them are the following:

Air pollution, water pollution, environmental pollution associated with agricultural production, enhancement of the urban environment, preservation of nature and the organization of preserves, marine pollution, biological and genetic consequences of environmental pollution, influence of environmental changes on climate, earthquake prediction, arctic and subarctic ecological systems, and legal and administrative measures for protecting environmental quality.

The agreement recognizes the importance of finding means to provide environmental protection and the desire to facilitate the establishment of closer and long-term cooperation in this field between interested organizations of the two nations. The agreement is dated May 23 at Moscow, and was signed by President Nixon and by President Podgorny. It is the first of its kind ever entered into between the two countries or between major nations. The United States has nothing similar with other governments, although some formal and informal arrangements pertaining to specific problems have at times been made.

Another agreement — on medical science and public health cooperation — was signed in Moscow on the same day, by Secretary of State William P. Rogers for the United States and Minister of Health Boris V. Petrovsky for the Soviet Union. It is the result of careful planning and was first proposed in October 1970 by the United States. The idea received approval by the Soviet Union in February 1971, and a joint committee has been working since early this year on the provisions included in the agreement.

The initial focus, according to the official announcement, will be on heart disease, cancer and health problems associated with the environment. The cooperation will be of a wide-ranging and long-term nature. There will not only be exchange of information, specialists and delegations but joint studies and scientific conferences and lectures, as well as direct contacts between individual scientists, scientific medical societies, and editorial boards of medical journals.

While both agreements could have been signed earlier, it was doubtless thought desirable to emphasize them by making them part of the ceremonies held in connection with the visit of President Nixon and his staff to Moscow.

The agreements are far-reaching in their importance and will be viewed in many countries as a long step toward finding solutions to problems in the fields of health and the environment. The mere fact that the Soviet Union and the United States are working together to deal with these humanitarian questions will no doubt make a favorable impression around the globe. For these agreements do not relate to war or peace but simply are designed to improve the health and living conditions of the peoples of all nations. Unquestionably the details covered by the documents will interest the scientific world as well as the medical profession everywhere. They represent a major effort to start a new era in international affairs in which the United States has assumed a leadership role and the Soviet Union has joined. There will be continuing conferences to discuss implementation of the agreements and other areas of collaboration. Certainly it is a constructive move and in many ways an historic one with which to mark the President's visit to Moscow.

All this is far different from the news that has been coming in recent years from Moscow. An emphasis now is being placed on the willingness of the Soviet Union to participate in helping the rest of the world rather than devoting itself to developing and manufacturing lethal weapons which could kill hundreds of thousands of people in dreadful wars. The world prefers to be reading about Russia's interest in the welfare of human beings and in relieving the distress that exists in so many countries. Perhaps other nations which have been engaged in warfare will be persuaded to listen to the voice of reason and the advice of the peacemakers.

Traffic Jam at Transpo Show

CHANTILLY, Va. — The more than 1.5 million visitors expected here for Transpo '72 will discover that the site is a perfect setting to tell the story of American transportation. It's a fitting place because you can't get here from there.

Dulles International Airport rises majestically from the lowly foothills of Virginia hunt country. Designed by Eero Saarinen, the airport is as beautiful as it is functional. Only one trouble: very few people use it.

The bustermbial ambience of National Airport is more popular because it's 10 minutes by cab from downtown D. C. Dulles is more like an hour. Federal aviation officials tried to right the balance recently by setting a 500-mile limit on flights out of National. That dictum excluded Chicago. Mayor Richard Daley's Congressional delegation erupted in rage, and the experiment was ended.

The idea of Transpo is to exhibit American wares to foreign businessmen. It's also supposed to be a world's fair-type of show for Americans. A fantasyland it surely is. Why, they have such things here as safe automobiles and clean subway cars!

One of the innovative exhibits is a series of "people-movers," that is, personal rapid transit systems designed to compete with the automobile in downtown areas. These mini-subway cars have been the dream of urban planners, but now they're the nuts-and-bolts product of such unstar-eyed folk as the Ford Motor Co., Bendix and Otis Elevator.

The day may come when the laws of physics deprive Buicks and Chryslers of their constitutional right to lumber down one-lane city streets, so the Department of Transportation has jet contracts for their successors — these 20 miles-per-hour, electrically powered people-movers.

Inasmuch as Transpo makes people think of ecological choices everyone has to face, it's a good idea. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., the scourge of wastrels everywhere, calls the show "the most ineptly planned Federal undertaking since the Battle of Little Big Horn."

"The taxpayers are being massacred" this time, says Proxmire, citing allegedly fast-and-loose contract-letting for the exhibition. Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe, who at times must empathize with the shade of General Custer, wilyly replies that "there's been some talk about the cost of Transpo, but few people have mentioned the cost of not having Transpo — the cost of not presenting our products to the world market."

Volpe's vestigial fondness for the SST and other think-big playthings has created an odd imbalance in the show, just as an overemphasis on aviation has marred his otherwise commendable stewardship of the Department of Transportation.

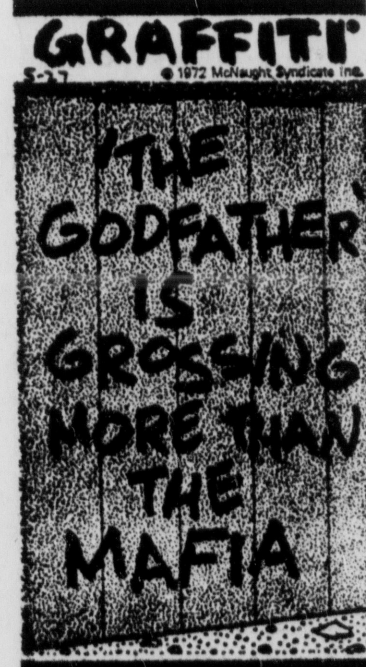

"Lots and lots of airplanes," the sign says and it's true. Each day's show is capped by a "civilian aviation can be fun" extravaganza highlighting the gross imbalance in America's transportation needs: millions for jets, peanuts for subways. A Model T, a dogsled, a Conestoga wagon, bicycles, trolleys — the works will be on display. Each evening a demonstration will be given on an efficient, nonpolluting, fast method of commuting: parachuting.

Volpe and the moguls of American transport will be happy if things go well this week. They all plan to be on hand here — if they don't get caught in a traffic jam.

BERRY'S WORLD

"Gosh! The runaway problem seems to be worse than I thought!"

Robert Yoakum

Leonid Brezhnev, General Secretary of the Communist Party, caused a flurry of speculation the other day by not showing up at the Moscow airport to welcome President Nixon, and by not proposing a toast at the state banquet that night.

Government officials and newsmen spent an entire day mulling over the meanings of these non-events. Were they signs of Soviet disapproval over our escalation of the war in Vietnam? Or was Brezhnev busily boning up on primary election results and the latest Polish jokes?

No one knew for sure, but everyone had a theory. In diplomacy, where people seldom say what they mean, signs often get more attention than substance. This is especially true in Russia, which Churchill once called "a riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma."

State Department officials take pride in their ability to interpret such small signals, but even they have a tough time telling a slight from a slip — a deliberate diplomatic dig from an unintentional bureaucratic bungle. Here, filched from Jack Anderson's files, is the transcript of a debriefing session of State Department, White House, and Central Intelligence Agency officials at the end of the second day of the President's Moscow visit.

"Well, Charlie," said Secretary of State William Rogers, "what about reception protocol?"

"The way I read it, Mr. Secretary, they're willing to work with us on trade and defensive arms, but not on Vietnam, the Middle East, or offensive arms. Frankly, I couldn't tell about Berlin."

"Give me your reasons," said Brezhnev. "That's bad because Brezhnev did go to the airport to greet the Presidents of France and Egypt. On the other hand, both Premier Kosygin and President Podgorny were smiling, and that's good. The red carpet on the runway was of high quality, with only two or three spots. That's good."

"There were American flags along the motorcade route, but they put them out only three hours beforehand to keep down crowds, so that's bad and good."

"Now," Secretary Rogers said, turning to Henry Hedgepeth, "how did things go at the banquet?"

"I agree with Charlie, except I think they may make trouble in Berlin."

Fallacies

Editor, The Freeman:

Although I admire the Bard College students for standing up for their interesting beliefs, I am sure that their literature would be more convincing if they were familiar with fundamental principles of economics and with history in general. As a student myself, I was dismayed by the superficial generalizations and clichés in the pamphlets distributed in front of IBM.

One of the primary weaknesses of the article "Program Peace" was its calling on vague authorities for a standard of right and wrong. The mere statement that the Vietnam war is unconstitutional is valueless without citing the specific clause that it violates. The pamphlet also appeals to "international law," and here again claims a violation by the United States. A person knowledgeable in foreign affairs discovers quite early that international law depends upon custom and convention (Oppenheim's treatise), and rests solely upon the consent of States. The rhetorical nature of the accusation that the "U.S. military involvement in Vietnam violates international law" is obvious if one asks the question: which law? since such a law is nonexistent.

Another argument, concerning the role of corporations in society, derived its authority from "our founding fathers" and their theory of democracy. This section of the pamphlet clearly displayed an ignorance of American history. The leaders of the U.S. in its early years were not by any means unified in their theories of government, and I would ask the question: which theory? since many theories of the time were aristocratic and not democratic at all.

A further demonstration of ignorance took place in the pamphlet's discussion of economics. The writer of the article seemed to feel that because of certain economic laws, the corporation does have political power. While the laws quoted — "supply and demand," "free enterprise" — are straight from Adam Smith's Wealth of Nations, the author of the pamphlet would profit by reading the rest of the book, and then examining these theories in the light of the regulated capitalism of the American economy. The economic theories do not deal with political power, which in the United States fortunately rests in the hands of the people, not in the demands of marching students or in the wishes of corporations.

The lack of depth in the paper, the fallacious logic of referring to rebellious authorities, and the carelessness in the technical aspects of the subject matter render the argument worthless save as hollow propaganda. Perhaps these students from Bard College would do better to spend their time in class.

Sincerely,
LINDA JOHNSON

Eulogy

Editor, The Freeman:

On May 18, 1972, a man unknown to many, died at the age of 43. His name was Donald Cook and for the past year and one half, he was employed as a Probation Officer for the County of Ulster. As is common, the death of a single man often goes unnoticed along with his life and worth. Those of us who knew, respected, and loved Don Cook, feel his passing should not go unnoticed, as he was a significant human being.

Don, a native of Tarrytown, New York, was a Dartmouth College graduate and had spent about 14 or 15 years in private industry before becoming a Probation Officer at the age of 41. This is an age when most men have settled into their mundane life routine. Don retired from the business world to seek a vocation that would more benefit society and perhaps increase his own sense of value and worth as a man. Although Don was not a wealthy man, he took a reduction in salary to do work that was worthy of his existence. His work load was bigger than it was in private industry and he worked diligently beyond his 9 to 5 weekday hours and into the weekends. Don constantly worked for perfection in his investigative reports and strived to increase meaningful contacts with his probationers. He never sought remuneration for his labors, nor did he complain about the hours he worked or the lack of monetary reward. Don went about his job with warmth, empathy, and intelligence.

A reflective, but humorous man, Don was not a phony. He derived great pleasure as a musician and frequently played with the George Rusk Orchestra among others. Don often used music as a liaison with his clients.

Don never once cheated or took advantage of the County of Ulster. He was never stingy with his varied talents, but only sought to bring a helping and guiding hand to those who needed it, a smile to those who needed cheering up, and a share of himself to all he was in contact with.

A man of Don Cook's character must be recognized and become an inspiration to others, as he will never be forgotten or replaced.

Sincerely submitted in behalf of the Staff of the Ulster County Probation Department:
MRS. SALLY BUBOLTZ
JOHN R. DONNARUMA

Editor, The Freeman:

I am writing this letter in reference to your editorial, dated May 10, 1972, "The President Decision."

Grave concern was your starting words and you asked questions like:

1. "Was such a drastic decision necessary?"

2. "Were there no other alternatives?" etc., etc.

Sir you were right on one statement, it was the president's decision. Mr. Nixon did not start this war, but he certainly is trying to stop it.

In reference to question No. 1, do you really call this drastic? To stop the supplies from coming in should have been done in 1965 and this war wouldn't have dragged on so long. On question No. 2, can you think of any?

I feel that the President has tried every avenue possible. Also I'm a little sick of the news media running this country. There's a mighty thin line between lawful discard and down and out treason. So how about sticking to the job of reporting the news as opposed to making it. We elected Mr. Nixon to do the job, not the news media.

Sincerely,
MR. LYNN MEHRMANN

Editor, The Freeman:

I think I speak for thousands of Kingstonians when I say what a wonderful job the Kingston Highway Department has done to repair the potholes in the city's streets this Spring.

It was a very hard winter on our pavements and almost any street you went on was, literally, full of potholes. Now they have been filled and the way it has been done with a roller has resulted in the smoothest job of this kind in memory.

Very truly yours,

Q: Why did Liz Taylor go off to Rome with Onassis? Was she upset over her son rejecting her? — W.R. La Jolla, Calif.

A: Elizabeth didn't "go off" to Rome in any assignment with the Greek tycoon. He and the Burtons are longtime friends and Liz thinks Ari is "one of the kindest and most charming men we know." The persistent Italian paparazzi simply helped create an incident out of what was an innocent dinner party among friends in a public place. Young Michael Wilding's statement about not understanding mama's lifestyle came after the Rome incident. However, Elizabeth has never neglected her children, has taken them everywhere with her, tried for the best schools, spent every vacation with them and worked not to spoil them.

Michael is simply "finding" himself as an adult and grappling with the Generation Gap.

Q: What was Harriet Parsons' reaction to the book "Hedda and Louella"? Does she still live in Hollywood and produce films? — J.D., New York, N.Y.

A: The columnist's only child refused to cooperate with writer George Eells on his dual biography about Hollywood's two greatest gossips, Louella Parsons' successor, Dorothy Manners, also refused to help out. This only caused George to dig deeper. Now that the book is a hit, Harriet has relaxed in her attitude. The former producer is now in her late 60's and dabbles in Los Angeles real estate. A joke around Hollywood says that Harriet's ex-husband, King

Bob and Babs: Now it's Phyllis.

Kennedy (coincidentally once Hedda's legman), said he liked the book. King feared Harriet would find out he'd said so. Then he shrugged: "Heck, if Harriet asks me, I'll just say to her — where would I get $7.50 to buy a book?"

ROMANCE OF THE WEEK:

That's the December-December love light in the eyes of former New York Mayor Robert Wagner and Phyllis Cerf, the widow of publisher Bennett (What's My Line?) Cerf. They say Hizzoner is a steady visitor to the Cerf home in Mt. Kisco, New York, where Cerf died last August after a stroke. Phyllis has tinted her hair, lost weight, and is telling friends, "I'm mad about him!" Wagner's first wife died of cancer; his second, the former Barbara Cavanagh, divorced him not long ago for what she termed "neglect."

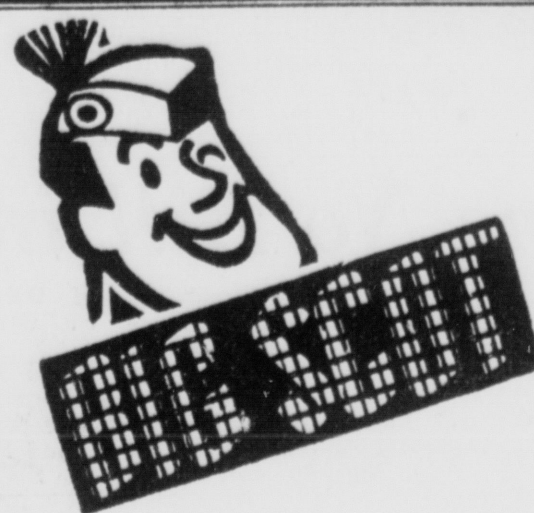

Q: Isn't a lot of dope coming into the U.S. via South America these days? — J.R., New Orleans

A: Yes — South and Central America. One warm rumor involves Panama. The U.S.

State Department, eager to maintain good relations in the sensitive canal area, has been discouraging talk about the dope traffic flowing north from there. But a German magazine, Stern, headlined a story linking Panama's foreign secretary, Juan Tack, and the brother of Panama's President, Moises Torrijos, to the "promotion" of the drug traffic. Investigations uncovered a ton of heroin intended for the U.S. market — value $100 million.

Q: Where can the Baroness Nina van Pallandt go from here after her nightclub debut? — W.P., Wilmington, Del.

A: The sky seems to be the limit for this one winner in the Clifford Irving-Howard Hughes mess. She has more than $1 million in night club bookings from California to Puerto Rico, to be topped off by a career in films. Nina's screen test for the Elliot Gould movie "The Long Goodbye" to be directed by M.A.S.H.'s Robert Altman, is said to be the hottest thing since Marlon Brando's test for "The Godfather." She really knocked them out!

'Leahville Hamlet'.... Proposal Rejected

By MORT LAFFIN
ASSISTANT CITY EDITOR

NEW PALTZ
The so-called Leahville Hamlet, a proposed multi-million dollar project submitted for the Town of New Paltz, has been turned down by the Town Board.

The so-called Leahville Hamlet, which would have provided the New Paltz area with an estimated $50-60 million dollar project made up of single family homes, garden apartments, town houses, public buildings, recreation areas and some sites of "commercial convenience" was rejected recently by the board because, according to Planning Board Chairman Anthony Costa, the submitted plans didn't quite jive with the present zoning ordinance for hamlets.

The land for the proposed hamlet is on 285 acres located just north of the village, roughly bounded on the west by Route 32 and North Putt Road on the east.

The land is owned by Jack Erman, who submitted the proposal as the project's chief developer.

Costa told The Freeman Saturday: "The plan as submitted to the planning board was vague in some areas. It just didn't quite comply with the qualifications of the existing ordinance. We have been trying to re-work the entire ordinance."

Costa continued: "I feel that it is a great idea, though certain factions in the town apparently don't feel that way. I hope Jack (Erman) will, or someone, will resubmit plans for this type of development. The area could really use it. It would solve many problems."

According to Costa, some of the major points that the proposal and the ordinance don't coincide on are: public roads with less than a 50-foot right-of-way (the proposal specified 35 feet); description of the location for the town park on the proposal map differed from the "real site"; the map showed private development in town property, thus creating the question of community lands; no key map to relate to the surrounding areas.

Erman told The Freeman: "We're not dismayed by the fact that the Board turned down the project. We may come back with something else. There is a big investment in engineering and planning involved here. We've been working almost a year on this. Going by present figures, the cost of the project would be about $50-60 million. Also, going by present figures, it would generate about a million dollars in taxes."

Erman concluded: "I really hope something can be worked out. I'm sure the area could really use something like this."

Costa concurred: "Something like Leahville Hamlet would be the showplace of the Mid-Hudson Valley."

Supreme Court Judge Accepts Suit Papers

ALBANY — Judge Russell G. Hunt, Supreme Court, Albany, accepted papers from both sides as action began in the court suit initiated by Ulster County Democratic Chairman James T. McCordie and Florence Klein, a Democratic clerk in the Board of Elections, against the Board of Elections.

McCordie, representing Democratic members of the County legislature, seeks to compel the Ulster County Board of Elections and the Legislature to create true parity and bipartisan representation within the Board of Elections. Mrs. Klein, whose husband Aaron, himself a former Democratic County Chairman, is representing herself and McCordie, is seeking a salary increase and promotion on the Board.

The Democrats object to the fact that the first and second in command on the Board are Republicans. The Democrats state that no member of their party is in a supervisory capacity on the Board.

Judge Hunt accepted papers from both sides and said that more papers may be added by both sides within the next five days.

Both Klein and John Egan, attorney for the Board of Elections, stated Saturday that no decision would probably be rendered by Judge Hunt before a week has passed. Both attorneys felt that no papers would be added.

Egan added that if Judge Hunt found in favor of the opposition, he would appeal the case. Klein stated that he had not as yet planned any action beyond Judge Hunt's forthcoming decision.

Grand Jury Returns No Bill in Shooting Case

By JON POWERS
KINGSTON

The May term of the Ulster County Grand Jury Friday returned a "no bill" in the case of Stanley M. Kowalik, a state police sergeant involved in the fatal shooting of a Kerhonkson man on May 7.

Kowalik shot and killed 26-year-old Henry Wojcik while the man held his two daughters at knifepoint in the backseat of the family car. When Wojcik reportedly made a move to cut the throat of his oldest daughter, Kowalik shot the man in the head.

In returning the "no bill," the grand jury declined to indict Kowalik for the shooting.

The grand jury also returned a "no bill" in the case of Elvin Turk of Highland, a part owner of the Rocking Horse Ranch there. Turk was arrested when police found three snowmaking machines on his property that reportedly belonged to the state-operated Belleayre Ski Center. The grand jury ruled that Turk had no knowledge that the equipment had been stolen.

Robert Henderson Jr., 46, of Mt. Marion, was indicted on counts of first and second degree reckless endangerment and resisting arrest. Henderson was involved in a bizarre incident March 31 when he was allegedly involved in an auto accident on Route 28 west of Kingston. Police said Henderson fired several shots at the other car and its driver, then drove off, returned a few minutes later and fired several more shots at the car, and then left again with nine police cars in hot pursuit. Police said the man ran several roadblocks before he was apprehended.

Other cases returned by the grand jury, according to

District Attorney Francis J. Vogt, included:

• Eddie Williams of Kingston, indicted for first degree robbery. Williams allegedly robbed Gertrude Graney of Kingston on Sept. 24, 1971.

• Paul Pervis of Eddyville, indicted on five counts of second degree robbery. Pervis has been charged with the robberies of Altomari's Liquor Store on Ulster Avenue Mall, Dawkins Grocery Store on Foxhall Avenue, the E-Z Shop in Lake Katrine, Lou's Astro Sub Shop on Broadway and Delavan's Grocery Store on Greenkill Avenue.

• Joseph Ruzzo and Frank Szymanski, both of Kingston, indicted for first degree perjury.

• Dennis Decker and Phillip Stopczynski, both of Kingston, indicted for third degree burglary and petit larceny.

• Sebastian Calvino, a former employee of the Rock Lodge Construction Co., indicted on six counts of second degree grand larceny. Calvino is charged with accepting money from homeowners to make property improvements and then failing to apply that money directly to labor and workers, in violation of the "lien law."

• William Dibble of Kingston, indicted for second degree robbery.

Ex-Rosendale Constable... Decision Reserved

LAKE PLEASANT — Decision on motions by defense in the case against Franz Muller, 32, a former Town of Rosendale, Ulster County constable, was reserved Friday by Hamilton County Judge George W. Martin.

Judge Martin, however, ordered District Attorney William H. Intemann Jr. to deliver to the defense certain particulars relating to the case. The motions called for suppression of evidence and requested the Court to dismiss an indictment which accused Muller of possessing stolen property, a felony, involving a bulldozer owned by Joseph Mayone of Glasco, who had reported the machine stolen late in 1969.

Authorities alleged that the machine was recovered on property in Hamilton County, which they said was owned by the defendant. Muller recently said that the property in question is not owned entirely by him.

The defendant continued a plea of innocent and he maintains that he is innocent of any wrongdoing.

Judge Martin is expected to fix a date for further court proceedings when he reports his decision on the defense motions.

The charge against Muller in Hamilton County stemmed from an investigation conducted by State Police and the Ulster

County district attorney's office of the alleged theft reported by Mayone. The defendant had been arrested in Ulster County in December, 1970 on a charge that he forwarded "a complete file" of the case to District Attorney Intemann. A Hamilton County grand jury subsequently indicted Muller for possessing stolen property.

The Ulster county man was arrested earlier this month by BCI Officers David Wachtel and Carl Van Wagenen of Troop F, Hurley State Police. Muller was arraigned the following day before Judge Martin and entered a plea of innocent. He was released that day in bail of $5,000.

Folksinger Dylan Loses Round

ALBANY — St. John, Ronder and Bell, attempted to get an examination before trial "but it was like trying to get an interview with Howard Hughes," they said.

A motion was made to strike Dylan's answer, "because it was a willful failure to appear for examination before trial."

Folksinger Bob Dylan of Woodstock lost a round in court recently with the Appellate Division at Albany ruling 3 to 2 that Dylan must submit to examination before trial in a case in which Miss Sonja Rice of Woodstock seeks $6,000 damages from him in connection with the sale of her art colony property.

According to court records, Miss Rice claimed Dylan approached her and agreed to purchase a barn and property in Woodstock from her for $21,000. She allegedly had a previous offer of $20,000 she said, but she secured a release and reportedly prepared a contract for Dylan to sign.

Following her sale of antiques kept in the barn, Dylan allegedly changed his mind about the purchase and she was "forced to sell the property for $6,000 less."

Area attorneys for Miss Rice,

Dylan's counsel, Proskower, Rose and Getz and Mendelsohn of New York, cross-moved to dismiss the Rice complaint since there was no signed written contract.

It was reported that the lower court held that Dylan must appear for examination before trial and denied the motion to strike Miss Rice's complaint. Dylan's lawyers took an appeal but the Appellate Division sustained the trial judge's decision saying Dylan must appear.

Miss Rice seeks the $6,000 she claims she lost on the sale. She was represented by Howard C. St. John.

Youth Killed In Port Jervis

PORT JERVIS — Darlene Hughson, 15, was killed when the car she was riding in went out of control on a curve and struck a tree in this Orange County community Friday night.

Police said the driver, Rosalie Talmadge, 18, of Port Jervis, and another passenger, Miss Hughson's sister Dinah, were admitted to St. Francis Hospital in fair condition. The Talmadge girl was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol, authorities said.

Miss Hughson's death was one of 162 reported by United Press International as Americans took to the roads in increasing numbers on the summer's first three-day weekend.

A UPI count of accidental deaths showed 10 drownings and 13 other deaths for a 24-hour total of 185.

There were 16 fatalities in California, 13 in New York, eight each in Pennsylvania and Tennessee, and seven in Missouri.

One of the weekend's worst traffic accidents occurred on an overpass on Interstate Route 57 Saturday when five residents of Eldorado, Ark., believed to be en route to Detroit, were killed when their car hit a guard rail after the driver apparently fell asleep at the wheel.

Locally, Mrs. Ruth A. Rich of Samsonville was hospitalized when her motorcycle apparently ran off Route 28A at West Shokan Friday afternoon. Mrs. Rich told Hurley State Police that she was blinded by the sun. She was taken to Benedictine Hospital in Kingston with a possible fracture of the shoulder. Hospital authorities reported her condition as "fair" Saturday evening.

Two women escaped serious injury Saturday morning when their cars were in collision on Route 28 at the Big Scot store entrance, Louise Blawiecki, of Jackson Heights, and Marguerite Lewis, of 19 O'Neil Street, Kingston, were taken to Kingston Hospital with lacerations and abrasions suffered in the crash. Both were released after treatment.

A Red Hook youth was taken to Northern Dutchess Hospital Saturday with a broken leg after his motorcycle and a car were in collision at the intersection of Route 9G and Route 199 near here.

Trooper T. F. Salmon of the Rhinebeck State Police station reported that Brian Denegar, 17, exited from a filling station onto Route 9G at the intersection at 3:25 p.m. and that his motorcycle was in collision with a vehicle operated by Virginia Pasco of Red Hook.

Denegar was thrown from the motorcycle onto the shoulder of the road by the impact and his motorcycle skidded down the highway, coming to rest under a car that was halted for a stop sign at the intersection. Salmon reported.

Denegar was taken to the hospital with a compound fracture of the lower right leg and was issued a summons for failure to yield right-of-way. Salmon said.

Duke of Windsor Ill... Physician Is Flown In PARIS (UPI)—The personal physician of the ailing Duke of Windsor has flown from New York to be with him at his home here, a spokesman for the self-exiled former King of England said Saturday.

The arrival in Paris of Dr. Arthur Antonicci of New York's Roosevelt hospital sparked reports the 77-year-old duke's health may be more fragile than his household admits.

Sources knowledgeable about the duke's health said early in the week that "it doesn't look good."

John Utter, the duke's secretary, again denied the duke is seriously ill or under treatment for throat cancer, however. He said Dr. Antonicci's visit was nothing unusual. The physician arrived Friday.

"As the personal physician of the duke and the duchess he often comes over to see them. He thought it was a good idea to come and see them now," Utter said.

Speaking of the duke's health, Utter said, "I can tell you that this morning he seemed a little better." He declined once more to disclose the nature of the duke's ailment, saying that was up to his doctors.

The Duke's fragile health was revealed last week when he was not well enough to leave his room to greet his niece, Queen Elizabeth II of England, who interrupted a state visit to the duke to call on her uncle and the duchess in their mansion west of Paris.

The duke gave up the throne in 1936 in order to be free to marry the duchess, the former Mrs. Wallis Simpson of Baltimore. The abdication shook the throne of England and the British empire.

Two Rescued From 'Jail'

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI)—Police discovered the infamous "People's Jail" of the Tupamaro guerrillas Saturday and without firing a shot rescued two prominent Uruguayan leftists who had kidnapped more than one year ago.

The successful raid on the jail in the basement of a residential garage was the most decisive blow the government has yet struck against the Tupamaros, the boldest and best organized terrorist group in Latin America.

Interior Minister Alejandro Rovira, who made the announcement, said both the kidnappers were found to be in reasonably good health despite their long confinement. Ten guerrillas were arrested.

The kidnappers were Ulysses Pereira Reverbel, who at the time of his abduction March 30, 1971, was president of the state telephone company, and Carlos Frick Davie, a former minister of agriculture who was kidnapped May 14, 1971.

Storm Marching Toward Georgia

MIAMI (UPI)—A subtropical storm off the northeast Florida coast turned toward the north-west Saturday and headed for a landfall on the Georgia coast with wind gusts expected to hit 75 miles per hour.

At 6 p.m. (EDT), the National Hurricane Center reported the center of the storm had shifted from a position due east of Jacksonville, Fla., to an area 40 miles east-southeast of St. Simons, Ga.

The storm was moving west-northwest at 10 to 15 m.p.h. and if it maintained that track, was expected to cross the Georgia coast by Saturday night.

Highest sustained wind reported by an Air Force reconnaissance plane was 50 m.p.h., but gusts were predicted up to 75 m.p.h. as the center reached the coast. Rapid decrease of winds was forecast once the storm moved over land.

It was expected to follow a northwesterly course through Georgia Saturday night and into the Carolinas Sunday.

Four Dead In Explosion On Israeli Ship

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (UPI)—An ocean-going tug took a crippled Israeli cargo ship into tow off the Virginia Capes Saturday, after it was rocked with explosions which killed as many as four men, including two Americans.

The Norfolk-based tug Cape Henry reached the Zim Tokyo before noon Saturday, and managed to get it in tow four hours later. The ship was being towed to Newport News, Va., and is expected to arrive Monday morning, the Coast Guard said.

The Zim Tokyo was rocked by an explosion Thursday night, which killed two American welders. The Coast Guard identified them as William Peterson, 37, of Brooklyn, N.Y., and John Miller, 24, of Old Bridge, N.J.

Leanne McFarland, 14, of 251 Salem Street, Port Ewen, was treated and released at the Kingston Hospital Friday afternoon after she was reportedly thrown from a horse on the Boulevard near LeHerb's Restaurant.

She was taken to the hospital by Fatum's Ambulance and treated for a dislocated elbow before being discharged.

Fire Checked In Port Ewen

PORT EWEN — Port Ewen firemen put out a fire Saturday afternoon at the home of Vernon L. Frost, 155 Schryver Street.

Three pieces of equipment and 20 men under Chief Clark Mains responded to an alarm at 5 p.m. Mains said that Frost's son, who was melting wax on a hot plate, left the room and went out onto the patio. The family called firemen when they noticed flames coming from the room.

The blaze was extinguished with booster lines and smoke ejectors were set up to remove a heavy concentration of smoke. Damage was confined to the ceiling and one wall of the utility room.

No Chest Clinic
The Chest Clinic at County Infirmary Annex, off the Boulevard, will not conduct its regular chest X rays on Monday due to the observance of Memorial Day.

Stricken at Wheel
A Newburgh man died of an apparent heart attack Friday morning while driving on the Thruway at Milepost 85 about five miles south of the Kingston entrance.

Victor Zaia, 67, of 75 Bayview Terrace, Newburgh, died en route to Kingston Hospital after his car ran off the Thruway and passersby notified authorities.

Entries Are Investigated In Ellenville

KINGSTON — Kingston detectives are investigating two entries at the same place within three days.

Entries were reported at the Remus Wholesale, 55 Furnace Street, Tuesday morning and again Friday morning. Entry was allegedly made by breaking a cellar window, and an undetermined amount of cigarettes taken in each break-in.

Youth Nabbed In Ellenville
An Ellenville youth was confined to Ulster County Jail in lieu of bail Saturday morning after being arrested on two charges by Ellenville village police.

Joseph Bruno Jr., 20, of 5 Tuttle Avenue, Ellenville, was taken into custody by Detective Sgt. George Sheeley, Sgt. Norman Greene, and Patrolman Leonard Quick Jr. at 9 a.m. and charged with burglary third degree and sixth degree possession of a dangerous drug.

Arraigned before Village Justice Ronald Elias, Bruno was ordered confined when he was unable to post $2,000 bail on the burglary charge and another $500 on the drug charge.

Police would not release further details as the investigation is reported continuing.

INDIANS AT BRIDGEPORT SHOW

Pow Wow Preview At Dietz Tonight

The Indians Drum and Bugle Corps will present the 4th annual Pow Wow Preview tonight at Dietz Stadium starting at 7 p.m.

This drum and bugle corps marching and maneuvering contest promises to be the best early season competition in the East according to Kingston Indians Director Ralph Shapiro.

Seven of the finest corps in the Northeast will be fighting for the "Preview Championship." These corps include the New York State Champions, the Magnificent Yankees of Utica; the O.L.P.H. Ridgemen of Brooklyn; the New York City Knickerbockers; the Monarchs of Wayne, N.J.; the Emerald Cadets of New Haven, Conn.; the Surfers of New London, Conn.; and the St. George Olympians of Springfield, Mass. The Indians will unveil their exciting all new show in exhibition, being unable to compete because of being the host corps. The show will open with an exhibition by the Troop 12 Indians, "Little Brothers" of the Kingston Indians.

The Brooklyn Ridgemen are replacing the Troy Speigleires who asked to be excused from their commitment because in the opinion of their instructors, their field drill is not polished enough for this keen contest. This was due to the rainy weather, which put the Speigleires further behind than anticipated. The Olympians, sponsored by the St. George Greek Orthodox Church, have an established reputation for their courteous and well-disciplined behavior. They come to the Preview as the 1971 Yankee Open Circuit, and the International Circuit Champions. Audience reaction to these goodwill representatives of the World of Drum Corps is invariably one of pleasure and admiration.

The Surfers also are holders of impressive titles, being the 1971 World Open Class "B" Champions and the Northeast Circuit Champions. Their musical score consists of the Overture from Tommy, Requiem of the Masses, Medley from Jesus Christ Superstar, One Fine Morning and I Don't Know How To Love Him.

Retirement Ceremonies Are Staged

KINGSTON

Ceremonies marking the retirement of Major Sidney Lane, commander of the Kingston Composite Squadron, Civil Air Patrol, were held recently at battalion headquarters.

Major Lane will remain with the squadron on an advisory status. He is being replaced as commander by Lt. Dale Van Valkenburgh.

Future meetings of the squadron will be held at headquarters of the 854th Engineer Battalion, 144 Flatbush Avenue, instead of the state armory.

Promotions awarded were Cadet Commander William Girard to Cadet Captain; Cadet Keith Coon, Deputy Commander and Cadet Adjutant, to Cadet Lieutenant.

Civil Air Patrol is open to all persons over the age of 13 interested in aerospace as well as camping, radio, and other activities related to the Air Force and flying.

Brief Session Staged on Safety Board

KINGSTON

A brief public hearing on a proposed local law establishing an Ulster County Traffic Safety Board was held last week at the County Office Building with very little comment and even less debate reported.

Majority Leader of the Ulster County Legislature Clifford Snyder (R-Dist. 1) who sponsored the proposal, anticipates the measure will pass at the June 15 meeting of the board.

State and federally funded, the Traffic Safety Board would be eligible for $10,169 for use in traffic safety education.

David Goble, Saugerties Village Police Justice and a driver education teacher at Saugerties High School, spoke in favor of the creation of the board, pointing out that the funds are available for such things as a classroom driver simulator for instructing drivers.

Leon McLaughlin, another driver education teacher at Saugerties concurred saying he was glad funds are available for such a worthwhile undertaking.

Snyder, who is chairman of the Sheriff's Committee, said funds are also available for a driving practice range.

Mark Donohue Captures Indianapolis 500

POINT OF VICTORY: Donohue of Newton, Pa., is exactly on the finish line as he receives the checkered flag to win the 1972 Indianapolis 500-mile race. He led the field of thirty-three rear engine aerodynamic unsidedown cars for 12 laps and set a new Indy 500 speed average of 161.987. Official with the flag is at upper right.

Hits Record 163 MPH

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Charging Mark Donohue muscled his way past fading Jerry Grant with 30 miles to go Saturday and won a record-setting Indianapolis 500-mile race before more than 300,000 fans. Donohue, who had started in the front row and bided his time, went in front for the first time when Gary Bettenhausen's McLaren went sour, depriving him of almost certain victory.

Grant then stormed into the lead and appeared en route to a major upset until forced to make a fifth and unscheduled pit stop. He sat helplessly as Donohue screeched by to mount a safe lead of almost a full lap of the ancient Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

Grant, the engine in his "Mystery Eagle" popping out of tune, limped home second for a payoff that probably will exceed $100,000—money he hardly expected to claim only a week ago.

Third place went to Al Unser, whose bid to win his third Indy 500 in a row fell almost two laps short; fourth to veteran Joe Leonard, the 1971 United States Auto Club driving champ, and fifth to Mario Andretti, who won this most prestigious of all motor racing events in 1969.

Donohue, a 35-year-old three-time U.S. road racing titleholder from Newtown Square, Pa., required only 3 hours, 3 minutes and 31.55 seconds to complete the 200 laps around the 2.5 mile oval.

His average speed of 163.465 miles an hour, breaking Al Unser's 1971 record of 157.735 m.p.h., followed a month of record-setting action at the 61-year-old speedway.

He had qualified third among the 33 starters with a speed of 191.408 m.p.h., second only to Bobby Unser's blazing four-lap average of 195.940 and No. 2 starter Pete Revson's 192.885.

Donohue, a moon-faced, soft-spoken mechanical engineering graduate of Brown University, and one of America's busiest drivers, had held his Roger Penske-owned McLaren among the front-runners from the start of this 56th running of the world's richest auto race.

But he didn't make his move until most of the pre-race favorites—Bobby Unser and Revson among them—had dropped out with mechanical problems.

Then, with Bettenhausen and Grant the only strong contenders left, the stocky Donohue roared by Bettenhausen and then Grant to coast home without further challenge.

Bettenhausen, who had started fourth in the order, was seeking to fulfill a legacy left by his father, the late Tony Bettenhausen. He had led most of the way after Bobby Unser's Eagle failed him.

His father had tried 13 times to win at Indianapolis, but was killed in May, 1961, before he could accomplish the 25-year dream.

This was supposed to have been Bobby Unser's day. The 36-year-old campaigner from Albuquerque, N.M., had put his 195.940 m.p.h. And, he made it look shockingly easy during the early part of the race, moving out front quickly and setting a record pace in excess of 179 m.p.h.

But trouble lay ahead. His $100,000 machine rolled down Pit Row slowly at the end of 75 miles, the engine shutting on and off because of ignition trouble.

Dan Gurney and his crew worked almost 30 minutes to correct the problem but finally gave up.

Before he left, the older of the two driving brothers had collected $4,400 in lap prize money.

It was Donohue's fourth start at Indianapolis. He had finished seventh in 1969. He had a second-place finish in 1970, but was knocked out by the failure of a $5 part while leading in 1971.

Apple of Her Eye

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — "I never advise him on anything," said Zilly Donohue after of his milk, even though his son drove into victory lane Saturday and accepted the lau-rons on his first Indianapolis 500 triumph in four tries.

Donohue—a chunky, 5-foot-10 blond—sat through the annual pump and pageantry on the checkered ramp with aplomb, including drinking the traditional quart of milk for money.

Then he was hoisted from his blue and gold McLaren Offy for the parade lap around the track he had just scorched with a record average speed of 163.465 miles per hour.

The winner, who is separated from his wife Sue, is the apple of his mother's eye.

"You're wonderful," said the former schoolteacher with tears in her eyes. "Even before he took the lead, I knew he was going to do it. He's just great."

She said that, when Mark was 21, "he told me he wanted to race. I said, 'Fine,' because I believe that whatever you want to do is the thing to do, and you will do it well."

She added, "He should have won it last year, but I knew he would do it this year. He said he had to win at Indy because it is the greatest race."

Mets Beat Cards, 4-1

York Mets to a 4-1 triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals. Agee had three singles in the game. McAndrew raised his record to 3-1 and pitched his first complete game since Sept. 12, 1970, when he beat the Cards 3-0 at Shea Stadium.

The Philadelphia Phillies scored a 12th inning run on singles by Greg Luzinski and Tim McCarver and an infield out to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1 and end a 10-game losing streak. The win went to Darrell Brandon, the third of four Philly hurlers.

Roberto Clemente singled in the sixth inning to give him a career total of 2,102 singles, breaking the club record formerly held by Honus Wagner.

Player, Lunn Share Lead at 206

TIP OF THE HAT — Gary Player of Johannesburg, So. Africa, tips his cap to the crowd after sinking putt for a 70 to share a third round lead with big Bob Lunn of Sacramento, Calif. (R.), who shot a 71. Player and Lunn have a three day total of 10-under-par 206 in the Atlanta Golf Classic.

Gary Birdies 18th

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Gary Player birdied the final hole Saturday and tied Bob Lunn for the third round lead in the $130,000 Atlanta Golf Classic while Jack Nicklaus faltered with a 75.

Player, making his first start on his second swing of the American tour this year, cut two strokes off par on the hilly 6, 883-yard Atlanta Country Club course with a 70 and posted a three-round total of 206—10 under par.

Lunn, in a slump for more than a year, had finished moments earlier with a 71-206, despite a double-bogey seven on the 11th hole.

Nicklaus—the Masters' champion, leading money winner and holder of two other titles this season—enjoyed a one-stroke lead when he started play on the cool, breezy day but fell back to a tie for sixth at 209.

He had to birdie the final hole to salvage a 38 on the back nine.

Lunn, 27, a husky Californian, and Player held a two-stroke lead over Lou Graham, Tom Weiskopf and Dave Hill, tied at 208. Weiskopf and Hill matched 69s, and Graham had a 71.

Nicklaus was tied with Kermit Zarley, who had a 71, three strokes back.

"Obviously, I didn't play near as well as I did yesterday," said Nicklaus, who matched the course record with a 64 Friday. "I missed every short putt I had."

He used 35 strokes on the greens, three-putted three times in a stretch of four holes and missed five times inside of 10 feet.

Lunn, who has won at least once a year and averaged some $90,000 a season for the last four years, was the front runner most of the day.

Nicklaus bogeyed the first hole, missing a six-foot putt, and Lunn, playing in the two-some in front of him, birdied the second from 15 feet.

That gave Lunn a one stroke lead, and he retained it until Player caught him on the final hole.

Player, winner of the New Orleans Open, had made nine consecutive pars until he punched a sand wedge third shot into the par five 18th. The ball hit the cup and spun back some four feet as the gallery surged to its feet and gave the South African a standing ovation.

Dukes Edge Huguenots, 51-50

Marlboro Wins Section 9 'C' Track Title

By STEVE KANE

NEW PALTZ — Marlboro's star studded track squad held off late rallies by New Palz and Red Hook Saturday to take a slim victory over ten other schools in the Section Nine, Class 'C' meet held at the junior high oval here.

George Salinovich, enjoying his second consecutive year as a double champion in the UCAI, raced to victory in the 180 foot hurdles in his fastest time ever, 21 seconds flat, and turned in a 21 foot long jump effort to pace the Dukes with two wins.

UCAL schools fared well in the interleague competition. Marlboro, on top with 51 total points, was pressed closely by the Huguenots who finished with 50 and the Raiders who came in third with 46 points.

Highland at 33 and Ellenville at 22 made up the top five. All are from Ulster County. Other places went to Deleware Valley with 19 points, Livingston Manor 16, Liberty 13, Tri Valley 12½, Eldred 7, and Jefferson-Youngsville 1.

The pair of wins by Salinovich, Dave McKay's 5-6½ high jump, and an 880 win by John Nelson built up the Dukes' lead. New Palz challenged with three firsts of their own. Judd Grosshans soared 11.1 in the pole vault, Mike Clinton took the 120 high hurdles in 16.4 and the 880 relay team of Hart, McGarrill, Johnson and Geary took that event in 1:38.6.

But it was Red Hook with its tremendous talent in distance that presented the greatest threat. Without a first in the field events, the Raiders began rolling in the mile. Senior John Germain clocked his fastest time ever, 4:32.2, for a narrow 2.4 second win over Marlboro's Neilson and a school record.

For the two-mile relay, an event foreign to UCAI competition, Raider coach John Neilson stacked his lineup, and it paid off in victory. Phil Hand, the league's finest distance man, opened up an early lead, and Blank, Salacka and Amrod polished off the competition in 8:41.

A Raider sweep of the last three events was foiled by Marlboro's Gene Flynn in the 220 dash. Hand took his two-mile special in an easy 10:21.8, and the Red Hook relay team of Rice, Amrod, Benkart and Germain won the mile in 3:42, but they only made the final results closer.

The afternoon's highlight was the low hurdle battle. Last week's UCAI meet saw Salinovich defend his title, but the extreme weather conditions provided excuses for just about everybody. With all those factors missing, the rematch versus Paul Canino of Highland and New Palz's Charlie Johnson promised to be a little more exciting.

It was. The three UCAI speedsters hit the fourth hurdle together two steps in front of the rest of the field, and on the last jump, the Marlboro ace spurred past Canino for a strong victory.

"I wasn't surprised that he won it," said victorious coach Jerry Trezza. "I figured the pressure would get to the rest of the kids, but George always runs the same. He was like that in football. I used to have to wake him up to go in the game."

Highland had two wins in the running events. John Barrington collected the first with a 10.7 clocking in the 100, and Ralph Perry took the 440 in 54.2. Barrington, the meet's only other double winner, also took the triple jump in 41-10.

Victors in the weight categories were Ken Theille of Eldred and Neal Knapp of Ellenville. Theille heaved the discus 144.6 to best the opposition, and Knapp took the shot put in 46-10.

The top six finishers in all events will make the trip to Nanuet next weekend for the overall Section Nine meet. Competition will be much tougher there as athletes from all classes will be participating.

Weather conditions were ideal Saturday, and it was only a lack of pressure from the field at large that hindered any super efforts in many events. Even the heat which sometimes makes the distance events more difficult didn't seem to bother the runners.

"It didn't bother me at all," said John Germain, the mile winner. "It was hot on the feet, but that's about all."

Bernie Stahl of Ontario conducted the meet which ran efficiently as did his UCAI championships last weekend despite the inclement conditions.

Marathon Set At Saugerties

SAUGERTIES — Eveready Beverages scored twice after two outs in the ninth to edge Nationwide Insurance in a White (B) Division softball game.

A.J. Farms trounced Buono and McConekey, 9-2, behind the 4-hit pitching of veteran Chops Lindsay in the Red (A) Division.

Two singles, a walk and wild throw accounted for the two winning runs for Eveready. Bud Wroslen hit a 2-run homer for the losers. Bill Robinson led A.J.'s with two hits and three RBIs.

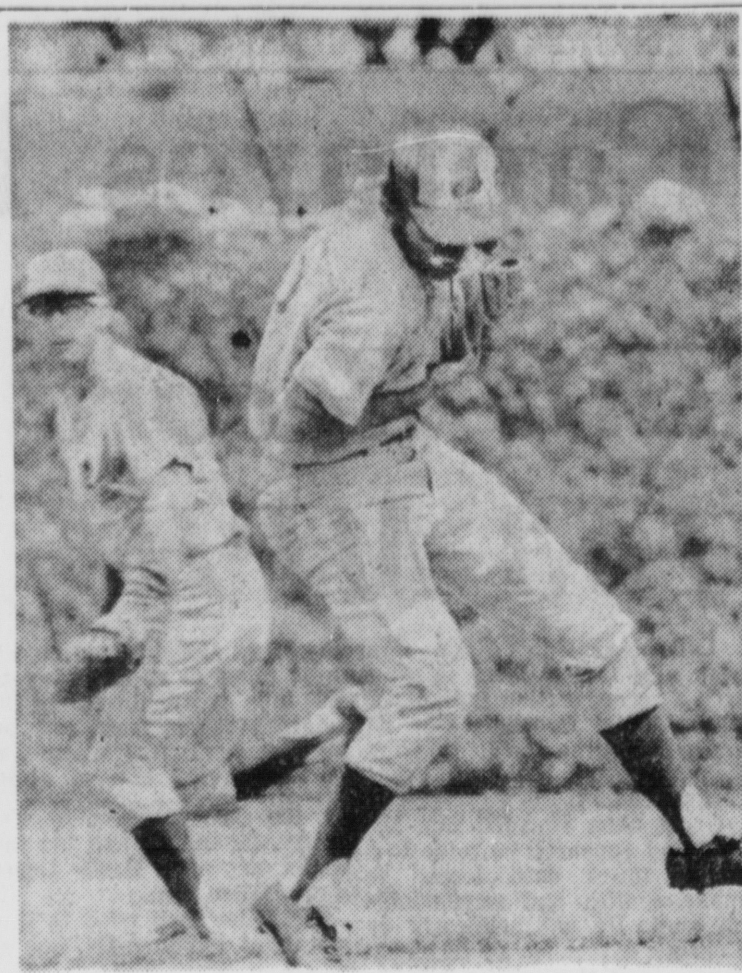

Today, the league will stage the nearest thing to its 1966 24-hour marathon with games scheduled at 2 p.m., 3:30 p.m., 5:30, 6:30 and 8 p.m.

Joe Augustine of Augustine Insurance pitched a no-hit, no-run game, to blank Smedes Plumbing and Heating, 3-0, in the American Little League.

Augustine struck out 14 and walked only one batter. Bob Amato slammed three singles to lead Augustine's six-hit attack on Jim Rundle, who struck out five.

Frank Casciaro hit two singles and Chuck Finch had a double for the winners, who scored all their runs in the second inning.

Tigers Tame Yankees, 2-1

NEW YORK (UPI)—Dick McAuliffe capped a two-run Detroit rally in the fifth inning Saturday with a run-scoring single to left and Joe Coleman won his seventh game of the season with relief help from Fred Scherman as the Tigers edged the New York Yankees, 2-1.

With one out in the fifth, Mickey Stanley walked, took third on a wild pitch by New York starter Mel Stottlemyre and scored on a squeeze bunt by Ed Brinkman. Coleman sacrificed Brinkman to second before McAuliffe lined a shot to left.

Jerry Kenney legged out an infield hit in the seventh inning and scored one out later when Horace Clarke poked a hit-and-run single to right field to account for the Yankees' lone run. Scherman replaced Coleman at that point and allowed but one hit over the final 2-3 innings.

Coleman raised his season log to 7-3, while Stottlemyre's dipped to 4-5.

Pennsy Crews Sweep Regatta

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—University of Pennsylvania crews swept a three-race regatta against Cornell Saturday, winning the varsity Madeira Cup for the seventh consecutive year.

Penn rowed the 2,000-meter Flood Control Channel course in 5:49 to take the cup by a half length over Cornell, finishing in 5:57.4.

Both crews are entered in Thursday's opening of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association championships on Onondaga Lake near Syracuse, with Penn one of the few favored East Coast crews.

The visitors took the junior varsity race by a third of a length over the Big Red with a 6:06.6 time. The Penn freshmen won by 1½ lengths with a 6:09.5 finish.

Cubs Claw Expos

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Cubs scored three times in the first inning Saturday and went on to defeat Montreal 5-3 as Canadian-born Fergie Jenkins defeated the Expos for the eighth consecutive time.

Mike Torrez was the victim of the Cubs' first inning after Chicago played its second straight game under protest due to a disputed infield fly ruling by umpire Frank Pulli. It came on Carmen Fanzone's high pop fly which fell between left fielder Ken Singleton and shortstop Hector Torres.

After Don Kessinger opened with a single, Billy Williams drew a one-out walk and Rick Monday singled, tying the score 1-1.

Fanzone's pop then fell safely as Singleton and Torres apparently lost the ball in the sun. Although Fanzone was out since Pulli had made the infield fly call, the runners advanced and both scored on Jose Cardenal's single.

The Cubs added two runs in the fifth, knocking out Torrez. Jenkins scattered eight hits.

The Expos scored in the first as Ron Fairly stroked his first of three singles. Bob Bailey homered in the fourth for the Expos' second run.

New Record For Cabell

NEW ROCHELLE — Hitting the tape in 9:43.5, junior distance man John Cabell of Kingston High shattered his own two-mile record by 12 seconds at the Section I Class A meet here Saturday. It was a winning time for Cabell who'll move on to the Section I Open competition next weekend at White Plains.

Dennis Harrison, the DCSL long jump champion, placed second in his event for the Maroons with a 20-5 leap.

Cabell and Harrison will be joined by discus champ Joe Marchetti and the Kingston 880 relay team in the Open meet.

Cabell took his event going away with a 15 yard margin. His times are among the best in the section this season in the two mile, and he has a good chance to finish high in the open meet. A third place or higher is necessary there if the Kingston ace is to continue on to the state meet.

Last week, Cabell set the previous school standard of 9:55.5 in the DCSL meet at Ketcham High.

Dross Will Manage Braves

KINGSTON General Manager Fred J. Davi has announced the appointment of Gary Dross, baseball coach at Orange County Community College at Middletown, as player-manager for the Kingston Braves of the Hudson Valley American Legion Rookies Baseball League.

"I'm very happy to announce the signing of Gary," said Davi. "Not only is a fine field leader, but he can double as pitcher and outfielder."

Dross, who takes the helm at Tuesday evening's first workout for the Braves, was the Most Valuable Player in the Rookies League in 1970. He played with the Florida Comets and Warwick. Both teams no longer exist.

If Dross is not inclined to pitch this season, he'll have three dependable flingers at his disposal — Tom Gallo, who has just completed his career at Ulster County Community College, Bobby Speirs and Tony Vizzi, Saugerties High School coach.

Davi said he tried to obtain the services of Nick Ascienzo, Stone Dock Sets

Skip Lyons, ex-UCCC receiver now at Quinnipiac College, looms as the Braves No. 1 receiver. Among the veterans returning are Greg Rios of Bridgeport U. John Carter, Dave Horton and Jerry Hawkins. Bruce Ackert, New Paltz High ace, and former OCS star, Mike Patrick, are also good prospects for the 1972 season. Don Hastings, Ken Heppner and Rich Koegel, the Saugerties High school star, also figure in the Braves' plans.

"We have no firm lineup yet,"

Davi announced, "and we invite all area players to our workouts Tuesday and Thursday evenings at Dietz Stadium. Everybody will get a chance to make the team."

The Braves are scheduled to open the season Sunday June 4, at Wappingers Falls. The home inaugural at Dietz Stadium will be against the Newburgh Atoms on Thursday, June 15, at 8 p.m.

Davi, who also operates the City Baseball League, said there are openings for anyone interested in coaching or managing. "It looks like the best City League in many years," said the veteran Glasco mentor, "but we need experienced field leaders."

EXPERT AT WORK — Warren Yesley of the Washington Kayak Club, one of the nation's top white water racers, completes a maneuver in kayak racing. He will be among the many stars competing at Phoenicia on June 3-4.

Phoenicia Kayak Race May Draw Olympians

PHOENICIA the Rotary Club will be expanded and several innovations of precise boat handling than added which will include a more strength or endurance. A slalom course is set on a short stretch of rapids and consists of a sequence of gates between which the paddler must pass. Pamphlets will be distributed giving detailed information concerning all facets of the race.

Race chairman Glenn Miller has announced there is an excellent chance of having a majority of the United States Olympic "A" team competing in this year's white water races.

The Rotary Club has been making plans to accommodate the largest group of contestants ever to enter these races. The Kayak and Canoe Club of New York City has assured the Rotary that all the top contenders in the nation and Canada will compete.

Miller announced that the facilities previously provided by the Phoenicia Rotary Club, in conjunction with the Kayak and Canoe Club of New York, has set Saturday and Sunday (June 3-4) as the dates for the annual White Water Slalom Races.

With growing interest in so called white water racing in the country, this year's events, staged in the area of the old railroad bridge in the heart of Phoenicia, are expected to attract record breaking attendances.

Gene Gormley, publicity chairman, has completed plans for WCBS-TV to send correspondent Rolland Smith to narrate and film highlights of the featured races.

A slalom race is more a test of precise boat handling than strength or endurance. A slalom course is set on a short stretch of rapids and consists of a sequence of gates between which the paddler must pass. The unexpected is a common occurrence, resulting in spills for the paddlers and thrills for spectators.

MORGAN HILL
Pete Nekos, one of the school's all-time wrestling greats and also a member of the cross country team, was named the "Athlete of the Year" at Ulster County Community College.

This award and others in all varsity sports were awarded at the annual College Athletic Banquet at Oehler's Mountain Lodge. Principal speaker was Ed Marinaro, the star fullback on last fall's Cornell University football team, who has been drafted by the Minnesota Vikings.

The scholar-athlete award went to Klaus Weber, who won All-America honors as a member of the school's soccer team and also competed with the tennis team. He was named to the Dean's List at the college for scholastic achievement and earned a perfect 4.0 (A) average for the fall, 1971, semester.

Weber also earned the Most Valuable Player award for soccer and received the Coach's Award for tennis.

In addition to winning the Athlete of the Year award, Nekos who is Student Government Organization president, also received the MVP award in wrestling. He was an outstanding member of the UCCC wrestling team, hailed by his Coach, Mark Cranfield, as "the finest wrestler in UCCC history." Nekos competed in the NJCAA Nationals in Minnesota.

Mike Perry, the Director of Athletics, said the "Athlete of the Year" award was a fitting way to honor Nekos, who made outstanding contributions to two sports. "He is an extremely hard-working athlete and deserves to be commended."

He also lauded Weber for maintaining a high academic average while displaying outstanding ability as an athlete.

The coach's award for wrestling went to Tom Codington.

Most Valuable Player award for basketball went to Jackie Knowles, while Coleman Link received the coach's award.

Both were members of the basketball team which won the Mid-Hudson Conference and Region V tournaments and competed in the NJCAA tournament in Kansas.

Fernando Nasmyth won the coach's award on the wrestling squad which competed in the Region XV tournament.

The MVP in baseball went to Ray Zappone, an outstanding pitcher who was signed recently by the Philadelphia Phillies of the National League. Tom Gallo, a pitcher-outfielder, won the coach's award.

In golf, Joe Bostic won the Most Valuable Player award and Tom Monticello received the coach's award. Both finished one-two in the recent Region XV tournament held at Wiltwyck Country Club. Coach Perry lauded Bostic as "the greatest golfer ever to represent Ulster Community."

Bostic and Monticello will compete in the NJCAA tournament at Fort Myers, Florida, next month.

Steve Ferraro received the Most Valuable Player award for bowling, with Frank Saccaman taking the coach's award.

The MVP in cross country went to Tom DeSantis, with Bob Tomaszewski taking the coaches award.

The coaches recognized at the collegiate football banquet included Mike Perry, basketball and golf; Albert DiBernardo, baseball and bowling; B. Edson Decker, cross country and tennis; Mark Cranfield, wrestling, and George Vizvary, soccer.

Marinaro, a handsome, shaggy haired 6-2 1/2, 210-pounder, delivered a humorous address with only fleeting time references to his astounding famous runnerup of all time.

Rondout Golfers 16-0

MONROE
Rondout Valley completed an undefeated 16-0 season at Stony Ford Friday downing UCCAL opponent Pine Bush 11 1/2-1/2. This year the Ganders won 13 straight in the Ulster County league.

At Woodstock Country Club, visiting Ellenville overpowered Onteora 11-1.

Bob Gutkin fought off a stomach virus and Darryl Ciliberto's 51 to take 2 1/2 points from the Bushman in the lead-off match. The junior, usually the No. 2 man in Rondout's lineup, carded a 49 in the absence of Ron Hall. It was not a round up to Gutkin's usual efforts as reflected by the Coaches Award he recently received at a sports program at RVC. Gutkin was cited as low finisher for the Ganders in the Sectionals and for his efforts over the season.

The other Rondout wins went to Bob Davenport, 41-54 over Mark Schultz, Mike Priest, 45-54 over Gary Pedersen and Jim Davenport, 45-54 over Jim Winter.

Scotty Dean and Eric Krieger battled it out at Woodstock, and it was the consistent Ellie ace taking a 36-38 triumph. Krieger suffered a bogey on the second hole and matched par the rest of the way to win three points from Dean.

Dean fell behind quickly when his tee shot on one landed on a cart path and he dropped a stroke to par. He had four pars, four bogies and closed with a birdie on the ninth.

The Ellies mopped up the rest of the way. Jon Berger met Jeff Buton who was "all over the place," according to OCS Coach Rick Barthel, and grabbed a three-point 43-60 victory. Matt Friedmann took two from Steve Scherbarth 41-45, and Jim Bennett swept Dan Wheeler 53-55.

Onteora finished the season with a 4-1-11 record, "not in the best Onteora tradition," as Barthel pointed out. "But we're young," said the coach, "and in two years I expect us to be very strong."

Blanks Kingston 6-0

Roosevelt Romps

HYDE PARK
After a brief taste of victory, it's back to the losers' doldrums for Kingston High. Host Roosevelt got a three-hitter from Mark Softy and stopped the Maroons' two-game winning streak 6-0 here Friday.

Walt Houghtaling, Jim Secreto and Bob Marz were the only locals to hit safely against the Roosevelt ace. In the meantime the Presidents managed only four hits off Marz, but they were interspersed with enough Kingston miscues to be more than effective.

After a lone run in the second and two more in the third, Roosevelt broke things wide open in a nightmare fourth inning. There were three Kingston errors, two walks by Marz, a sacrifice and two stolen bases. That provided the winners with three runs without a hit anywhere in the inning.

Marz went the whole route and matched five strikeouts with five free passes. Softy had better control, walking only two while fanning 11 Maroons.

The loss tumbled Kingston's DCSL record to 3-13. Arlington, knocked out of the pennant race by the Maroons on Wednesday, got back on the winning track with a 5-4 victory over host John Jay. The Admirals finished in second place with an 11-4 record.

Tonight, members of the club will have a display and short movie on the sport of racing pigeons. The display, open to the public, will be held at 8 p. m. at the Mt. Marion school.

Boxer Dies

James Elder, 25, former heavyweight prize fighter at the Peers Boxing Camp, Rhinebeck, died recently in the Veterans Hospital in Big Springs, Texas, after a lengthy illness.

Rondout Zips Wallkill, OCS Bombs Liberty, 19-4

Ed Berry, a little-used left-hander, made a two-run lead stand up for Rondout as the Ganders shutout visiting Wallkill 2-0 Friday.

In two other Northern Division contests, Onteora hit season highs in the hits and runs columns and shelled Liberty 19-4, and New Paltz took advantage of Pine Bush miscues in the last inning to squeeze out a 1-0 victory.

Highland stumbled to a 10-8 win over Ellenville in the only Southern Division game on the schedule.

"I was desperate," cried Gander Coach Hal Ross. "We've got four games this week, and I needed a pitcher."

But even with Hyler Van Wagenen on the sidelines and out indefinitely with a sprained ankle, Berry proved up to the task. He worked the full seven and notched eight strikeouts while allowing only four singles in four separate innings.

Rondout got their pair in the third stanza with two outs. Mike Botsokas dribbled what looked like the third out down to shortstop Charlie Walters, but the Panther infielder bobbled it and the Ganders were still alive. It was a fatal mistake as losing hurler Ralph Calderone promptly walked the next two batters before Mark Stryker slashed a single to center to score the only runs of the day.

It's hard to believe that Liberty is the Northern champion after the way OCS manhandled their visitors. A 20-hit barrage, highlighted by two doubles from Dan Brown and one each from Bruce Hurley, Kevin Crosby and Tom Mazzola, reduced the situation to comical.

Mazzola drove in five runs as five of the winners got three hits apiece. Bruce Hurley with 10 strikeouts got the win, and Ivan Richards took the defeat.

Alan Bonagura matched blanks with Bushman Stan Filip for six innings before things started to get hot in New Paltz. Filip started the home seventh with the unpardonable sin of passing the other pitcher. Mike Fairweather tried the sac-rific, and as he tapped back of garbage" in the first inning, according to Dave Frank, and held a 4-3 lead as the fifth stanza got underway. Then it was sheer horror for the Ellies. Two walks by Kyle Hoar and a single loaded the bases, then Hoar passed Bob Feasel to force the tying run across.

Hobie Simpson followed, but Dave Horowitz booted his grounder and two more came home. A sacrifice fly by Paul Passante and another Ellie error provided the Big Blue with five runs on just one hit.

Ellenville scored "on a bunch of garbage" in the first inning, according to Dave Frank, and held a 4-3 lead as the fifth stanza got underway. Then it was sheer horror for the Ellies. Two walks by Kyle Hoar and a single loaded the bases, then Hoar passed Bob Feasel to force the tying run across.

Did Highland coach Lem Atkins really call for a triple steal?

And the seventh inning, said Frank. The Ellies had managed to tie it up by then, but they were just in a generous mood. Wayne Gray was on the mound as the Highlanders filled up the sacks again. He got one man on strikes, but with a 1-2 count on Gary Van Cleef, all the runners took off. From third base, Feasel slammed into catcher Steve Tennenbaum, jolted the ball loose, and the winning two runs scored.

"I asked him after the game," the win; Gray took the loss despite Ellenville 12-6 hitting advantage.

Van Cleef picked up the win; Gray took the loss despite Ellenville 12-6 hitting advantage.

KINGSTON

Nineteen strikeouts by freshman Joe Primo set the pace here Friday as the Kingston JV squad completed their championship season on a winning note against Roosevelt, 7-1.

Primo, with a season record of 5-1, had "exceptional control" according to coach Bill Neely and walked only three batters in the seven innings he worked. He finished the season with a record of the junior league's best pitching duo.

Decker wrapped up the pennant on Wednesday with a five-hitter against the junior Admirals from Arlington.

"That was our best game of the year," commented Neely the best competition the Maroons had faced. Kingston won the rematch by a 10-3 score, averaging a 4-1 loss earlier in the season to the Admirals.

Walt DeBrowsky slammed four hits and drove in three runs against the Presidents. On Thursday, the heavy-hitting sophomore slugged his second home run of the year in a 5-2 loss to Ketchikan.

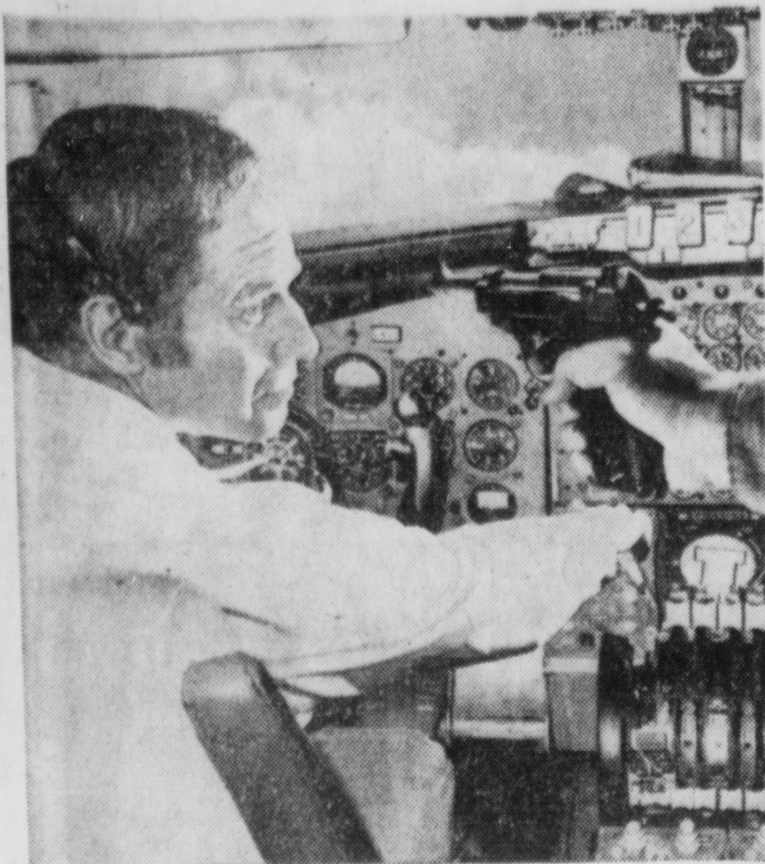

Catcher Lou Eccleston was the team's RBI leader for the year with 18. He had two hits against Roosevelt, and in the pennant clincher against Arlington, slammed two more and drove in three runs.

First baseman-outfielder Dan Brown, another freshman, led the team in batting with a .340 mark.

The Maroons wound up with a 13-4 overall record and took the DCSL crown with a 12-3 slate.

TIMELY MOVIE—Charlton Heston stars in "Skyjacked," a timely movie of terror in the sky. Actor Heston, pleased with reviews of his latest picture, holds misgivings about its theme. He thinks the media has glamorized plane hijackers almost as much as films made heroic of stage coach bandits. The film is presently at the Roosevelt Theatre in Hyde Park. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Ormandy Named Commendatore By Italians

Eugene Ormandy, Music Director and Conductor of The Philadelphia Orchestra, has been honored by the Government of Italy and created a Commendatore of Merit of the Italian Republic. Formal presentation was made at a luncheon honoring Mr. Ormandy at the Italian Embassy in Washington, D. C., recently.

The Commendatore medallion itself carries a white enamel cross suspended from a silk presentation "collar" of green, red and white, the national colors of Italy.

In previous years, Mr. Ormandy has been honored by the governments of Austria, Finland, Denmark, France and the Dominican Republic, and in 1970 received the President's Medal of Freedom which was presented on stage at the Academy of Music by President Nixon. During his 36 year tenure in Philadelphia, Mr. Ormandy has also received numerous civic awards, musical society honors, and other tokens of recognition from the city and State. In addition, he holds honorary doctorates from 19 educational institutions.

LONG SERVICE—These three men have completed a combined total of more than 110 years of service with Austin R. Newcombe & Co., Inc., Kingston's oldest independent fuel oil dealer. Leroy A. Van Bramer (L) joined the firm in August, 1934, and is now general manager, and secretary of the corporation. Emil (Bud) Greenburg (C) began as a truck driver in September, 1936, and is now credit manager. George H. Dunbar joined Newcombe in October, 1935, also as a truck driver, and is now the firm's service manager. (Powell photo)

New Product Areas Magnavox: New Ideas

NEW YORK—The Magnavox Company introduced six major innovations, several in entirely new product areas, in its new consumer electronics product line: all modular, all solid state color television; Videomatic, a revolutionary advance in automatic color television operation; Odyssey, a new electronic television game; Home Security Systems, the first low-cost, mass-marketed alarm systems for the home; the Magnavox Video System, for home videotape recording or playing; and the exclusive built-in 4-channel sound capability of Magnavox console stereo products.

Developed by Magnavox' advance engineering program and perfected through extensive "use" testing, the new Magnavox all Solid State Modular color chassis is highly compact and offers consumers the optimum combination of reliability and serviceability. Any repair costs — both parts and labor — will be paid by Magnavox for a full year from purchase.

A major advance in the company's continuing effort to develop the most automatic "set and forget" color television is Videomatic, which introduces an entirely new and exclusive capability to the automatic operation of Magnavox color receivers. With Videomatic, picture brightness, contrast and color will now automatically and instantaneously adjust to changes in room light to provide the optimum color picture at all times.

Magnavox unveiled its "mystery product," a unique electronic game called "Odyssey" that can be played by every American household on any television set 18 inches or larger. Adding an entirely new dimension to the use of television sets, "Odyssey" is an all-electronic game simulator that hooks up to a television set and provides the basis for playing many different games of skill or chance ranging from ping-pong and football to roulette, tennis and hockey. Offering limitless hours of fun for small children as well as adults, Odyssey includes educational games designed to reinforce the teaching of arithmetic, geography, etc.

Transforming the TV set into an electronic playground, "Odyssey" consists of a Master Control unit that contains all the electronics necessary for each game, two Player Controls which control the "players" on the TV screen, and a set of electronic program cards each of which "broadcasts" a different game. When the program card is inserted into a slot in the Master Control, the television screen becomes the playing field — the hockey rink, tennis court, etc. — and lights up with "balls" and "players" that the game players can control from their individual Player Controls.

The company also introduced a series of burglar and fire alarm systems — a totally new product area for Magnavox.

The four Magnavox home security systems, which are ultrasonically activated and radio transmitted, include intrusion detection units and advance fire alarm systems. All of them can be installed in minutes by the average homeowner, using only a screwdriver.

Also introduced was the Magnavox Video System and a compact portable color television camera. With the system, the user can make videotape "home movies" in color, record favorite television programs, or play hour-length pre-recorded shows — all using simple-to-handle tape cartridges.

The recorder, which was developed by RCA Corporation, connects to the antenna terminals of any home color television set. It comes equipped with its own independent TV tuner, so that the user can watch one program while simultaneously recording another for future playback.

Magnavox' new console stereo products feature built-in 4-channel sound capability. The consoles come equipped with Magnavox' exclusive matrix decoder system for 4 channel sound from records, tape or FM radio. The system will enhance conventional 2-channel stereo as well.

The matrix decoder system is included at no extra cost on 95 per cent of all new models. No additional amplifiers or other equipment except two extra speakers are required for 4-channel sound. A simple rocker switch controls the changing from 2-channel to 4-channel operation.

The new console stereo products are also designed to accommodate optional cassette and 8-track tape units.

NEW DIMENSION—Magnavox is introducing a totally new dimension in television entertainment for the entire family. Called Odyssey, it's an all-electronic game simulator that hooks up to a television set and provides the basis for a dozen different games of skill or chance. Now for the first time, TV viewers can interact with their sets and relate to them in a positive active way, not just as passive viewers.

Dairy Queen to Japan

MINNEAPOLIS International Dairy Queen, Inc. has announced plans to open four "Dairy Queen" stores in Japan by December of this year, according to Harris Cooper, president. The stores represent the soft-serve, fast-food franchising firm's initial development in that country, which is being accomplished through an agreement with Marubeni Corporation, Tokyo, the third largest trading company in Japan.

If the project is as successful as anticipated, IDQ and Marubeni will enter into a joint venture agreement which could result in the building of hundreds of "Dairy Queen" stores in the future. The first store is scheduled to open on June 18 in the Ginza, one of the busiest and most fashionable areas of Tokyo, according to Ed Fujima, Assistant Vice President, Marubeni Corporation. Two more stores are planned in Tokyo, Japan's largest city.

CAR WASHING ANYONE? Prestone . . . Presto

NEW YORK—Circular motion. Rinse off the section and proceed to the next, that includes cleaning a winter's worth of grime off the family car — not just for appearance sake; salt and sand picked up from wintry roads can do permanent damage to your car's finish and seriously affect its resale value. Today it's a fast, simple job to keep a car spotless, for example with Union Carbide's "Prestone" Car Wash and "Prestone" Car Polish.

Before you begin washing and polishing, assemble your equipment. Besides your car wash and car polish you will need a garden hose; a large sponge; several soft cloths; a pail; a stiff brush or vacuum window cleaner; and chrome cleaner. If you get everything together before you start, you'll save time-consuming trips to the house.

Now check your car — be sure the windows are up and that drain holes at the bottom of doors and side panels are unclogged so that water can drain out, and you're ready to go to work. Mix four capfuls of car wash in a pail of water, and work on the car in sections, rinsing your sponge often. Hose the section to loosen dirt, then wipe with your sponge in a light year round.

Woolworth Sales Strong

ST. LOUIS, MO.—Lester A. Burcham, chairman and chief executive officer, today reported that F. W. Woolworth's sales impetus for the first four months of the year was "exceptionally strong" and that the company is currently exceeding its 1972 projected increase of more than 10 per cent.

He told shareholders at the annual meeting here that consolidated sales for the first 17 weeks of the year increased 12.9 per cent, from $734,771,514 in 1971 to $829,759,568.

Sales of the consolidated companies increased in 1971 nearly 11 per cent, from $2,527,864,705 in 1970 to $2,801,012,539. Burcham said. Income of the entire company, including Woolworth's, 52.7 per cent equity in F. W. Woolworth and Co., Limited, England — but before an extraordinary charge — was $76,580,850, or $2.50 per share, compared to $76,624,070, or $2.52 per share in 1970, assuming no per share dilution in both years.

He said the extraordinary charge of $5,492,025, or 19 cents per share, that appeared in Woolworth's income statement for 1971 was occasioned by the sale in December of two Kinney subsidiaries, Top Form-Yolande and Sherman Underwear Mills. "These two businesses proved

DEDICATION MADE—Among those attending dedication ceremonies at Kingston Hospital May 16 in the cardiac catheterization laboratory were (l-r) Anthony R. Triulzi, hospital administrator; Wilbur R. Peters, president, hospital

Auxiliary Dedicates Cardiac Lab

"The Auxiliary is proud that through their energies and activities they have been able to establish a cardiac catheterization and angiography laboratory at the Kingston Hospital."

With these words, Mrs. George C. Rifkenbary, president of The Kingston Hospital Auxiliary, dedicated the Cardiac Catheterization Laboratory today with the presentation of a plaque reading, "This cardiovascular diagnostic laboratory is dedicated to the people of the Mid-Hudson Valley through the continued devotion and efforts of the Auxiliary of the Kingston Hospital."

Mrs. Rifkenbary paid tribute to Dr. Harold L. Rakov, chief of the Department of Medicine, who conceived this type of service and for many years worked to provide this facility and service to the people of the community. She also thanked Mrs. Harold Finkle, past president of the Auxiliary, under whose term of office the Auxiliary made the original pledge of $85,000 to realize this goal.

Cardiac catheterization is a diagnostic study utilized in the evaluation of nearly all types of heart disease. It consists of passing a catheter to the heart by way of an artery or vein, or both. This enables the study of heart function by analysis of blood samples and pressure recordings from various chambers of the heart. Cardiac Catheterization was first performed by a Dr.

Forssman, on himself, in 1929, but it was not until the development of specialized x-ray equipment (image intensifiers) in the 1950's that this procedure became truly feasible.

These procedures are performed in especially designed rooms with specially designated equipment. The basic equipment is the image intensifier, which is an electronic device allowing 3000 to 5000 times the intensification of the light of the x-ray beam, with less radiation hazard to the patient. This permits better visualization of the heart and blood vessels, and provides enough light to take actual movie pictures of these structures. The procedures are done with constant monitoring of the position of the tube by the x-ray and by constant monitoring of the heart beat by an EKG monitor.

These procedures of cardiac catheterization and angiography are time-consuming, require expensive equipment, and especially trained personnel. Nevertheless they are necessary procedures and have a definite place in the diagnostic evaluation of the cardiac patient. By having such a laboratory available locally, patients are spared the trouble and expense of having to go to a metropolitan area for this aspect of the diagnostic work.

LWV Discusses National Political Caucus

The objectives of the Women's National Political Caucus, a non-profit, non-political organization representing women leaders in all walks of life, was the subject of discussion recently at a dinner-meeting of the Woodstock League of Women Voters. Mrs. Jane Bromberg, who serves the LWV as chairman of the United Nations Committee, was master of ceremonies.

Addressing herself to the topic of Women's National Political Caucus was Virginia A. Cairns, associate director of the Women's Unit, Office of the Secretary to the Governor of New York State.

In her address, Miss Cairns said the WNPC's prime objective is to encourage more women to public office. The organization now exists in 46 states.

A knowledgeable speaker, Miss Cairns was appointed by Governor Rockefeller to the post of Public Information Officer of the Women's Unit in 1967 and in 1969 was appointed Associate Director of the Unit.

The Women's Unit is a staff office in the Executive Chamber which advises the Governor on women's issues, as well as legislation and state government programs of particular interest to women. The Women's Unit works directly with individuals and organizations in helping them to establish state government programs at the local level and acts as a clearinghouse of information on community concerns such as day care, drug abuse, education, youth programs, problems of the aging and legislation.

Prior to entering state government service, Miss Cairns had an extensive

She is the recipient of broadcasting awards, and in 1970 she cooperated in the production of film on the educationally disadvantaged which won first prize in the educational category of the American Film Festival Awards.

In addition to holding membership in many civic and cultural and professional organizations, Miss Cairns serves on the Status of Women Commission, for the New York State Business and Professional Women's Clubs, is a founder and past president of the Women's Press Club of New York State and is on the advisory councils for both the Empire

State College and Russell Sage College, serves as Executive Secretary of the Interstate Association of Commissions on the Status of Women and the Governor's Interdepartmental Committee for Volunteers as Acting Chairman.

A native of Delmar, New York, Miss Cairns attended Delmar schools and Siena College in Loudonville, New York, where she majored in Sociology.

Plastic Surgery—II

Answers to Most Asked Questions

(Second of Two Parts.)

By HELEN HENNESSY

NEW YORK — (NEA)—Doctors Victor Royce Syracuse and Ralph L. Dicker, who founded the New York Facial Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery Group, are eminent surgeons who can speak with authority on their subject.

Along with many other affiliations, Dr. Syracuse is emeritus clinical professor of ophthalmology, New York Polyclinic Graduate Medical School, associate surgeon of facial plastic surgery at French Hospital, N. Y., and instructor of facial plastic surgery at Manhattan General Hospital for 18 years.

Dr. Dicker is affiliated with the American Academy of Facial and Reconstructive Surgery and founder member of the International Congress of Cosmetic Plastic Surgery, Rome. Both surgeons are participating lecturers in international congresses of facial plastic surgery and have lectured and shown their original films of cosmetic techniques in Japan, Russia, East Africa, Italy, Ethiopia equipped to answer the questions most asked about plastic surgery. And perhaps some of the things you have been curious about are answered here by them.

Continuing Mrs. Yousey told The Freeman, "we want to make sure all of our high school seniors in Ulster County take part in this year's contest. We also know there are girls who are now attending college who are not taking advantage of this opportunity, feeling that it would disrupt their education. However, under the new program there is every reason for a girl to take advantage of the special scholarship award."

The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council of New York is a dairy farmer financed and directed organization which exists solely to promote the sale of fresh, fluid milk. The New York Dairy Princess will "speak up" for milk throughout the state in newspapers, radio and television interviews and in appearances before consumer groups.

Contest application forms are now available from the Women's Department of The Daily Freeman.

too young when you think about what people are going through to get and keep their jobs. (A frightening commentary on our way of life.)

Q — Is the operation painful?

A — No. A bit uncomfortable, that's all.

Q — Can the scars be seen?

A — One cut is in the scalp and can't be seen. The second is in front of the ears — fine stitches and no pull. It's done along the natural cheek groove and scars disappear after healing. Next is behind the ear. The fourth line hugs the ear halfway up and can barely be seen.

Q — How long does the improved appearance last?

A — Five to 10 years.

Q — Can the operation be repeated?

A — Yes. The more times you have it done, the more permanent it becomes and the better it looks. You have only original scars. Tension is on the muscles, not on the skin.

Q — What is the average cost of a complete face lift?

A — About $2,500. But a and Greece. They are well complete face lift is not usually necessary. The doctors do what they call "spot welding." (Popular Mechanics must be their favorite reading matter.)

Q — Can eye-lid surgery be performed along with the face lift?

A — Yes, if the patient wants it. But doctors don't favor it for the surgery takes too long a time.

Q — Can a woman change the shape of her eyes?

A — Yes. Westerners seem to want slanty eyes, and Japanese want the Western look. Japanese doctors often remove a piece of tissues at the corner and sew it up in reverse.

Q — What is the average cost of rhinoplasty (nasal surgery)?

A — Approximately $750. Ten years ago it was $550. But that's inflation for you. Food was cheaper then, too.

The latest plastic surgery, according to the doctors, will be making a whole ear. But even they concede that that will be a tough challenge.

For a final note on appearance improvement there is dermal abrasion. It is effective for fine wrinkles, pigmentation, acne scars. Mild cases need only one operation. Severe cases may need several.

Sandpaper or steel wool is run up and down the skin to get fine particles off at a rapid rate. The skin is frozen first to ensure rigidity. It may sound awful, but the results are very rewarding. It takes only from 15 to 30 minutes to do a whole face. The procedure is not painful. There is only mild postoperative pain and no makeup can be used for two weeks. The crust on the face can be removed with soap and water and lubricants. It costs $400-$500 and it's about two weeks before you look presentable.

Seems like an awful trial to endure when you could just grow old gracefully. But people are living longer and have to work longer in a youth oriented society. So what's two weeks and a few hundred bucks? If you can't fight 'em, you gotta join 'em.

DAIRY PRINCESS PAGEANT COMING — Making plans for Ulster County's first Dairy Princess Pageant are (l-r) Mrs. Lee Price, finance committee; Mrs. Warren Mann, chairman; Mrs. Edward Coppo, publicity; Mrs. William A. Krum, secretary. The pageant has been set for Tuesday, June 27 in Governor Clinton Hotel. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Dairy Princess Contest in Ulster County

Ulster County, at long last, is going to have a Dairy Princess Pageant. Mrs. Donna Yousey, Dairy Princess Program Coordinator for the American Dairy Association, has been trying to get this project off the ground for ages in this area and now she can add Ulster County to her long list of counties participating in the event.

Mrs. Yousey met with a group of interested citizens recently at the Governor Clinton Hotel and plans for the first local pageant were made. Mrs. Warren Mann and Mrs. William Dalton consented to serve as co-chairmen. Other appointments include Mrs. William A. Krum, secretary; Mrs. Edward Coppo, publicity chairman; Mrs. Lee Price, and Earle R. Steeves, finance committee. Mrs. Donald MacIsaac will be chairman of the judges' committee.

Albert Kurdt, executive secretary of the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets will be honorary chairman of this event. A former executive secretary of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Kurdt is no stranger to this area.

A special banquet and coronation ceremony will be arranged and planned by Mrs. Maureen C. Graham and Mrs. Barbara Read.

The purpose of a Dairy Princess Program is several fold. Mrs. Yousey told the Freeman Women's Department recently. The Dairy Princess will represent the Ulster County Dairy Industry to the consuming public at service clubs, fairs, parades, banks and special events. She will promote dairy product consumption and introduce new products in supermarkets. She will present a very effective program of dairying and remind school children to drink milk as well as having a well balanced diet with the use of all dairy products in the Ulster County schools.

The Dairy Princess, her alternate and booking chairman will attend the July Seminar held in Syracuse, with 49 other county dairy princesses, to receive instructions on making effective appearances to promote milk and dairy products on a county level.

She will also compete with all the other 49 county dairy princesses for the New York State Dairy Princess title the end of August. To be eligible for the competition, she must be the daughter of some dairyman in Ulster County or her guardians must be actively engaged in dairy farming at the time of the contest. She does not, however, have to be living on the dairy farm at the time of the contest.

The contestants will be judged on the following major points: (1) Healthy appearance, natural attractiveness, weight in correspondence with height. A Dairy Princess must photograph well. (2) Maturity. The New York State Dairy Princess must display maturity to be able to do her work away from a home environment when she is asked to make a public appearance. (3) Public speaking ability and quality of voice will be important. (4) Personality and poise are essential. Girls must be able to speak extemporaneously and to adjust to ever-changing conditions; to meet people easily and exhibit intelligence, cooperativeness, sincerity enthusiasm and confidence as they "speak up" for the Dairy Industry in New York State. (5) She must have a genuine interest in working as the Ulster County Dairy Princess. She must be proud of her Dairy background.

She must be 17 through 24 years of age not married as well as a high school graduate as of this June 1972.

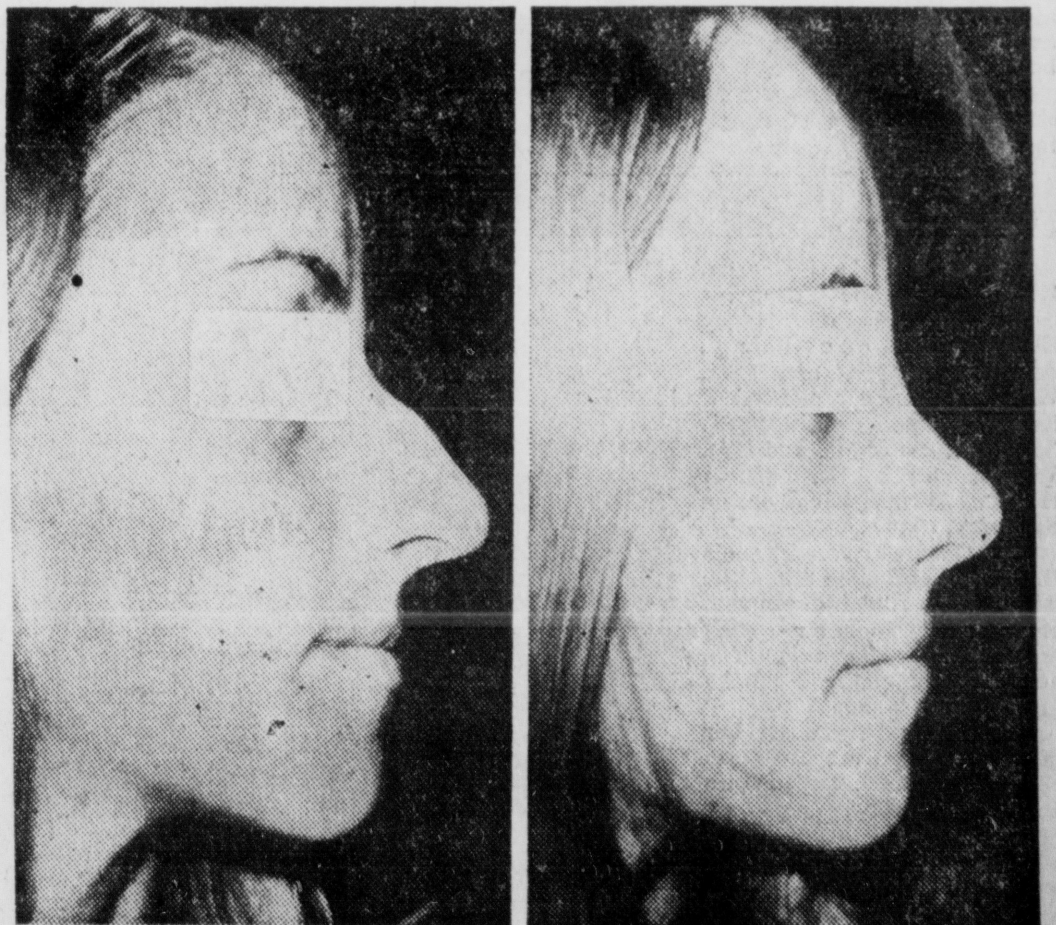

"This is a wonderful experience on the county level for a young girl who will also have the opportunity of being selected the New York State Dairy Princess," said Mrs.

Yousey. There will be prizes for the county winner and on the state level, the winner will receive a $1,000 cash scholarship. The alternate will receive a $250 cash scholarship. The state title is honorary and there will be no interruption of school or regular employment plans.

Continuing Mrs. Yousey told The Freeman, "we want to make sure all of our high school seniors in Ulster County take part in this year's contest. We also know there are girls who are now attending college who are not taking advantage of this opportunity, feeling that it would disrupt their education. However, under the new program there is every reason for a girl to take advantage of the special scholarship award."

Women Talk About Sex Discrimination!

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I answered some newspaper ads for domestic help. My qualifications? I like children. (In fact, I have a very nice, talented daughter of 11.) I am able to teach tennis, swimming, have a pleasant disposition, can wash and iron and clean a house as well as anyone. I have high hygienic standards and know how to shop for food, prepare it, and serve it. I can do odd jobs around the house, drive and fix the family car. I dress well, speak well, and make a good appearance. But when I apply for a job as a domestic, all I get is, "Are you kidding? My husband would never stand for it!" (I am a male.)

He's not old enough to be senile. And he's not rich enough to be eccentric. Don't tell me to correct him. He doesn't take criticism very well.

I really don't expect a solution to my problem, Abby. I just had to tell somebody how frustrating it is!

DEAR BURSTING: I'll publish your letter. It may not help. But it can't hurt.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old high school senior who still gets bare-bottom hairbrush spankings from her father. Many times it's for minor offenses. Is it possible to take my problem somewhere or to someone who could make him stop? Is it legal for him to continue such punishments even on a teenager?

DESPERATE IN BRENTWOOD

DEAR DESPERATE: Tell your mother. If she is helpless (or if you have no mother) tell your father that you are too big to be punished that way, and you will seek help from your school counselor, family doctor, family lawyer, clergyman, and since you're a minor, the child welfare department if he tries it again.

Hints From Heloise

Dear Heloise: What is the easiest and most time-saving way to wash windows? I'm at my wit's end!

New Bride

Sugar Plum: There are oodles of ways to wash them. So just relax and listen a while, little bride.

I never recommend washing any window without taking an old rag or piece of towel and wiping it off first. If you don't, you are going to mix liquid with the dust and carbon. Carbon on the windows is the yellow stuff caused by cooking, heating, and even air conditioners. (When you are cooking, the air conditioning most times sucks in the carbon, smoke, etc., and blows it out again. While the conditioner is circulating those smoke fumes—and don't you hate to burn something?—they adhere to the windows.)

When that sticky goop gets on the window, then the dust sticks to it. That's why I call it goop!

I ever mix liquid with anything I wash my windows with (and I have used ammonia, window cleaners, vinegar—you name it, and I've tried it) without wiping them first. You'd be most amazed how much soil will show up on your old rag. Once a rag shows dirt on the surface—discard it! Get yourself a clean one and throw the used one in the wash.

Plain old household vinegar does a wonderful job as far as I'm concerned. You can put it on an old dry washrag full strength to wash the windows off. Then tear up some of the black and white sheets of this very newspaper. Crumple them up and wipe away. I don't know what the newspaper itself, but it will leave a shine like you've never seen before on your windows.

I have now learned that a chamois is also the greatest for mirrors and windows! If you don't have one, run, don't walk, to the nearest store that sells them. If you can't afford a good one, buy the cheapest one you can find. Once you wipe the dust off the window, wet and wring out the chamois and then go to it. Rub in a circle up and down and crossways, and then on the inside up and down. Don't forget, if you can't afford a chamois, newspapers are the next best thing. I have washed many a window with straight vinegar on a crumpled-up newspaper page. (I wiped the pane first!) It worked like magic—could hardly tell the windows had glass in the frame!

LETTER OF LOVE

Dear Heloise: My first fan letter! I always thought I could write to Greta Garbo, or Joan Crawford, or even Claudette Colbert, but a grander person then you would be very hard to find. Your advice has helped through many a disaster.

John T. Lyons

Dear Heloise: Here is a little hint to help busy mothers in the dish-washing department.

Save those trays the meat department used to put meat up in. On a very busy, hectic day, they are ideal for a hamburger and French fries. Just cover with a little foil, and give everyone a napkin.

Mrs. Clifford Zeisler

Dear Heloise: As a devotee of crewel embroidery, I would like to share two hints with you that make the work even more fun by removing two sources of worry.

First — I was afraid the edges of the material would unravel. I cut narrow strips from iron-on mending tape and ironed them onto the edges of the wrong side of the material. Even with all the handling, it keeps the material from unraveling!

Second — Having worked my way from a four-color kits up to one with sixteen shades, I was worried about keeping them all separated — so I wouldn't use the pink when a light rose was called for! After trying many different ideas, I finally thought of spring-type clothespins. They have a small slot that fits a wire coat hanger. Put the right number of pins on a hanger. Clip the yarn on the hanger in order of shade or use. They stay neat, separated and visible!

The hanger can be hung out of reach of small hands and the yarn is always easily available for those snatched moments during the day!

Next - - Woman Rabbi

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sandy Eisenberg Sasso hopes to be the second woman ordained rabbi in the United States. Sally Preisand, who will graduate next month from Hebrew Union College — Jewish Institute of Religion in Cincinnati — will be the first.

And there will be a third and a fourth and many more after that, if Mrs. Sasso's dreams come true. For her personal dream, there are two more years of study. She will graduate at the same time her husband, Dennis does. They will hope to serve together in congregational work, according to plans Mrs. Sasso outlined in an interview.

The 25-year-old student said two young women are in the first year of the five-year course at her school, the Reconstructionist Rabbinical College in Philadelphia. She features herself as a kind of model — a proof to other young ladies so inclined that they ought to try to reach their goals, approaching the new ground feeling encouraged rather than discouraged.

At the 66th annual meeting of the American Jewish Committee in New York Mrs. Sasso led a study session on "Women and the Bible."

She told those assembled that Judaism has been a male-oriented religion, producing a male-oriented society. She called for equal opportunity for women with men in all aspects of Jewish life.

Mrs. Sasso said she will be associated with the reformed segment of Judaism. The orthodox branch has not lowered the bars against women rabbis.

Even among the reformed and liberal branches of Judaism the welcome mat for women rabbis "has been more intellectual than emotional," Mrs. Sasso said.

"For with the same breath that liberal Jews praise women rabbinical students, they ask the women to serve the coffee and cake."

"Although they have women on the pulpit, there is occasionally a doubt as to whether they should count women..."

"And even though they listen intently and approvingly to speeches about the need for a change in women's status in Judaism, they respond with — Oh, you'll make such a nice wife and mother."

Mrs. Sasso said there is an urgent need to balance the predominately masculine perspective with a feminine counterpart, not just for the good of women but for the good of Judaism.

"If Judaism is to reflect all life and to speak to life it must encompass both masculine and feminine aspects of life in a harmonious framework."

Door-to-Door Selling Problems

By MARGARET DANA

When someone comes to your door selling something, what is your reaction? Some people are irritated by it, some welcome it and a great many more say they WOULD welcome such opportunity to buy at home if they could be sure of the seller and his product.

Letters from readers indicating this problem exists all over the country — in cities, suburbs and rural areas. And the unhappy fact is that there ARE some fraudulent products and salespeople, along with the many reputable and honest ones.

Direct selling has become an important method of retailing. Both the door-to-door and the "party-plan" approach are big business. As a profession, this kind of selling is providing respectable income to some million and a half Americans today.

Yet it creates problems too. In Virginia, for example, the Director of Consumer Affairs says in that state one source of trouble is the difficulty a consumer has in knowing whether he or she has the right to cancel a contract made at home, under the new law giving a customer three days to change his mind.

Checking with the State's Division of Consumer Affairs is the best answer in such a situation.

Other causes of consumer complaints are magazine subscription appeals based on "sympathy" for charities, the handicapped, or students; cookware offers that either claim magical properties for the product or tie up the homemaker (or her daughter) in long, costly contracts; or offers of quick home improvements, "free" books or other products which either are phony, poor quality, or are never delivered.

What can we do about this growing problem of sorting out the useful and desirable sellers from the questionable ones?

The best answer I have is in the organization called the Direct Selling Association (DSA), composed of around 100 companies who manufacture and sell products or services direct to the consumer.

For some time they, along with the Federal Trade Commission and the country's Better Business Bureaus have studied the problem and proposed cures. What the DSA has now done, as a result, is to set up a really tough and strict code of ethics for its members.

The procedure includes quick and effective machinery for handling complaints against any member charged with violating the code or indulging in any kind of unlawful or deceptive practice. He either corrects his actions or his case is turned to a law-enforcement agency.

These members of DSA want to make it safe and satisfactory for you to buy in your own home when you choose to do so. Their new code is a guarantee to you, the country's consumer buyers, that their member companies offer only products and services that are accurately represented by their prices, grades, make and performance.

They also require that companies that give a guarantee with the sale give it in writing, spell out its provisions and live up to its terms. Another requirement is that the seller must be given a written receipt at time of purchase or of delivery. The receipt must specify how much the customer is to pay and the name and address of the salesman, or the firm whose products he is selling, who should be considered responsible for those products and the terms.

The DSA says it wants American consumers to know that none of their members will be allowed to get away with any infringement of their code or any kind of unlawful or deceptive practice.

They have a leaflet titled "DSA Opens the Door to Consumer Protection." It's free, but enclose a long, stamped and self-addressed envelope when you send for a copy. The address is: Direct Selling Association, Dept. FS, 1730 M Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20236.

You might ask, too, for a list of DSA members so you can check who follows the new code and who doesn't.

You can also use this same address to send inquiries or complaints regarding any experience with direct in-home selling. But remember that this whole new approach to safe and efficient buying at home won't work unless all of us do our part — to buy carefully, to resist pressure, to study any sales agreement or contract and request written identification of any direct seller.

Summer Jobs Hard to Get

Summer time may be comin', but livin' won't be easy — not for the many working-age students who will be out combing for jobs — and not finding them.

Despite an improving economic climate, the forecast for summertime jobs is less than bright, reports the Institute of Life Insurance. According to a number of state officials, the employment situation for youngsters this summer shapes up to be "the tightest since the 1961 recession."

Some spokesmen for state employment offices are especially pessimistic about this summer's job opportunities because of the cutbacks in private industry. "When fathers are still out of work, businessmen are not going to offer jobs to their youngsters," says one.

With college tuition and room and board fees rising recently by as much as 7 percent and the increase in those attending school — more youngsters than ever are counting on this summer's earnings to help meet school expenses for the coming year.

All these elements add up to a hotter-than-ever job competition — and the need to start hunting before summer starts. No matter how realistic students may be in their job expectations this summer, they are urged to follow the advice of state employment counselors as well as their school advisors and get cracking fast on that job.

As usual, this summer's array of jobs for students will run a pretty wide occupational gamut — from construction work to waiting on tables in plush resort hotels.

HE'S LUCKY TO BE WORKING

Here are some summer-employment tips for students reported by the Institute:

Register as early as possible in your State Employment Service Office or Youth Opportunity Center — for either government or private industry jobs. You will find the addresses in the Yellow Pages of your telephone directory under State Government.

Take advantage of your school's placement facilities which often list job opportunities in the area.

Look at the advertisements in daily newspapers, but don't overlook any community news publications — where neighborhood retailers and services advertise.

Note that a certain amount of extra ingenuity and super patience will stand you in particularly good stead this summer. Drop in on all the service firms you can think of that cater to summer visitors: amusement parks, food concessions, hotels, motels, camps and boatels. Visit neighborhood stores and offices — in case they need part time evening or weekend-relief workers or vacation substitutes.

You might also want to put yourself in a prospective employer's shoes and examine your appearance critically. Perhaps it may result in that big decision to try a haircut or a beardcut. It might prove a shortcut to that summer job.

Consumer's Question-Box

By MARGARET DANA

Q. Recently I bought four dishcloths of a red and white check type of fabric. I always wash my dishcloths with the regular wash to sterilize them, but one of these new ones lost its color and got all over other clothes being washed at the same time. These are a total loss now. I do not know where to complain about this. How do I find out where to write the company that makes these dishcloths?

A. Because of the many hundreds of inquiries I receive asking for addresses, or help in locating companies, I am unable to provide individual answers to such questions. But in your case, I do not believe a complaint is justified. First, it is a good rule when washing colored fabrics of any kind that they be kept apart from white or light-colored materials, for virtually all dyes bleed to some extent, especially the darker kinds like red. Moreover, to sterilize an article you would have to use a special germicide or boil it — either of which would release dye. Thirdly, dishcloths should be washed by themselves if washing is needed.

company measures how many kilowatt hours I use may not be accurately measuring the amount. I have to depend on what the company says, but how can I be sure their meter is accurate?

A. This question has come up among power companies and electrical experts. Consequently the National Bureau of Standards of the U.S. Dept. of Commerce and the Edison Electric Institute are cooperating in research to investigate the accuracy of measuring kilowatt hours. The meters used by power companies are tested and calibrated according to standard meters developed by the NBS. The new study will work to find out if the present test methods and degree of sampling result in accurate meters for the consumer in the home.

Q. I saw your recent answer about how bacon packaging would be changed if the new U.S. Dept. of Agriculture proposal goes through. Is it too late for me to send in my enthusiastic approval of a change to a more open package so I can see what I am getting?

A. No, it is not too late. The proposed regulation will not go into effect until the public, the packers and anyone else who desires to has had an opportunity to comment. The proposal is for the full width of a slice of bacon to be visible through the window of the package. Written comments (with a copy, if possible) should go to: USDA Hearing Clerk, Washington, D.C. 20250. June 20, 1972 is the deadline for accepting such comments.

Q. I'm interested in buying a portable heating unit for a 9x12 room. I see so many kinds I am badly confused. What is meant by BTUs? How many BTUs are an adequate amount? And what about safety features? I have young children who have to be protected. Which type is the best for my money?

A. The correct answer to that last question is one that only you can supply. Because you must take into account various factors: Do you need to keep the portable heater going continuously sometimes? Do you want to avoid noise? Do you prefer radiant heat or heated air from hot water?

As for BTU, a BTU is simply a measure of heat — a way to tell how much heat can be given out under controlled conditions. For a portable heater with radiant heat, to be used only briefly as an auxiliary, BTUs are not of importance. A heater which is based on hot water heated internally in the appliance usually has with it a chart showing how many BTUs it will provide for different size rooms.

As for safety, it is important to look for the "UL" seal showing the appliance has been listed and tested for safety design by Underwriters Laboratories, the nonprofit safety testing organization.

Q. I'm somewhat confused as to what kind of information should be given us when we borrow money or buy on installment, as to how much it is going to cost us. I have found that when a company says "$6.00 per hundred," that doesn't necessarily mean how much the total interest charge will really be. What is the actual rule on this?

A. Both the Truth-in-Lending Act and the Federal Reserve's Regulation Z, state plainly that retailers or lenders must not use the terms "$6.00 per hundred," or "5 per cent add-on," in describing the charges for credit. Only the true annual percentage rate may be used either in advertising or verbal or written statements regarding the cost of loans, credit, etc. So insist on being told the TRUE annual percentage rate.

HOT DOGS sliced part way through about every 1/4-inch and curled around fit a toasted English muffin perfectly. Other franks go with toasted English, too. Muffins may be toasted and kept warm or toasted as needed right on the grill. Serve with baked beans and a cabbage salad.

Hot Dog on an English Muffin?

St. Louis claims credit for the hot dog, setting the date at 1883. But according to McCullough in his "Grand Old Coney Island" Charles Feltman invented the hot dog. His story goes that in 1867 when Feltman was driving a food wagon in Coney Island he hit upon the idea. On opening Feltman's restaurant he sold hot dogs setting the price at ten cents. Years later Nathan Handwerker, an employee of Feltman's opened Nathan's hot dog stand and introduced the five cent dog.

Now less than 10 years from the time Feltman had his inspiration, Samuel Bath Thomas, a muffin maker, left Plymouth, England to try his luck in America. After working for a while with a baker, young Thomas struck out on his own Thomas' English muffins.

Hot dogs and English muffins never got together for obvious reasons, until someone came up with the idea of cutting a hot dog so that it turns into a ring and thus fits perfectly on an English muffin. It's simple just slash part way through at 1/4-inch intervals. Other franks may be used to suit the larger frank fancier.

At your next cook out, introduce family and friends to hot dogs in the round served on English muffins. What to serve with them? A hot mustardy sauce, your best cole slaw and a pot of hot baked beans.

Toast the muffins on the grill or toast them inside and bring them out nestled in a napkin to keep them warm.

Talk About Trifles at Shower

When it comes to unusual desserts for the bridal shower, don't trifle with "ordinary" recipes. Make a hit with this Lemon Trifle, a delicious variation on the traditional English ceremonial dessert, alternate layers of cake and custard. The original English Trifle is usually prepared in a silver or crystal bowl, an elegant touch you may wish to add to your trifle.

Choice of filling may depend on your favorite fruit and cordial, but we suggest strawberries in sherry for this festive occasion. Dairy sour cream lends its tangy flavor and "fluff" to the lemon butter sauce. Pound cake forms the bottom layer upon which you alternately layer strawberries in sherry and lemon sauce. To complete the Lemon Trifle, top with more slices of pound cake and the remaining lemon sauce. If you have any leftover lemon sauce, don't worry because it will keep. Since it is made with butter, the flavor of the sauce will even improve with age. (In fact, you may want to double the recipe so that your family can enjoy the lemon butter sauce with other desserts. Use it as a filling for tarts, over ice cream, shortcakes, etc.) For the finishing touch on your Lemon Trifle, "shower" with strawberry fans and toasted almonds.

Don't forget to include the Lemon Trifle recipe with your shower gift for the guest of honor. Your thoughtfulness will be appreciated.

Lemon Trifle

Two teaspoons grated lemon peel
One-third cup fresh lemon juice

One and one-half cups sugar
One-half cup (1 stick) butter
Three eggs, slightly beaten
One cup dairy sour cream
One pint strawberries
One-two tablespoons sherry
One (11 1/2 oz.) pound cake, cut into 18 slices 1/4-inch thick
Two tablespoons toasted sliced almonds.

In a saucepan combine lemon peel and juice, sugar and butter; cook over low heat until butter is melted and sugar is dissolved. Remove from heat. Blend a small amount of mixture into eggs; return all to saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens slightly. (Do not boil) Cool; stir in sour cream. To assemble cake; Set aside 8 strawberries for garnish. Slice remaining strawberries; toss with sherry. Place 6 slices cake in a 1 1/2 quart oblong casserole cutting slices to cover bottom of dish. Top with half of sliced strawberries and 1 cup lemon sauce. Repeat. For top layer arrange remaining 6 slices cake in dish; top with remaining sauce. Sprinkle almonds overall. Slice reserved strawberries to make fans and garnish top. Chill several hours or overnight. Makes 8 servings.

Every Housewife A Programmer?

By the year 2000, small computers will be as commonplace in the American home as the vacuum cleaner is today.

By the turn of the century, according to industry expectations, American housewives will be totally liberated from the chores of domesticity and will be running their homes like small successful businesses.

"Kitchen cabinet computers will keep them apprised of what household bills are due, dates of kiddies' school holidays and a continuing stream of information on which foods are available and at the best prices," predicts Frank Masi, the vice-president of marketing of Cascade Data, Inc., Michigan-based manufacturer of small systems.

Most important, perhaps, small household computers will enable families to determine well in advance what they will be able to afford and in which areas. They will also be kept informed of what price increases they can logically expect, based on the rising cost of living.

Says Masi, "The average housewife will easily be able to operate one of our small computers. And some of them are operating our present generation of small computers right now in part-time jobs with small business firms."

the cleaner, season the pan as you did when it was new by rubbing it with unsalted vegetable oil and then washing it.

Another cause of sticking is that the seasoning was removed by washing in an automatic dishwasher.

If the pan has been severely overheated, some of the nonstick properties may be permanently lost. But treat it with the cleaner and reseason to lessen sticking.

Glass Ceramic — Can take extreme temperature changes, may be stored in the freezer or refrigerator, go directly to the range and then to the table. It may be washed in a dishwasher or by hand.

Inside Story on Pots, Pans

Whether you're a newlywed or have been keeping house for dozens of years, pots and pans are likely to pop up on your shopping list.

Cooking utensils on the market today are made from a variety of metals and combinations of metals. You may select a matched set or you can buy assorted wares whose different characteristics suit various needs.

Your cookware will last for years provided you give it tender loving care. From an expert in the field (the Bon Ami Research Center) come the following tips on selection and cleaning of utensils:

Aluminum — Practically unbeatable for all-round use, but it does require care to keep it clean and shiny.

Aluminum cookware may be discolored by alkaline foods or hard water. To remove, fill the pan with a solution of two tablespoons of cream of tartar for every quart of water and boil for about 10 minutes. Then empty the utensil and scour with cleanser.

The yellow or brown stains on the underside are caused by a buildup of crease. They can be prevented by a thorough cleaning each time you use the pan. Once accumulated, remove by heavy scouring.

Stainless Steel — Somewhat more expensive, is easy to clean and practically indestructible. If you select stainless steel, be sure it has copper, aluminum, or laminated steel bottom, to give an even distribution of heat to prevent the appearance of dark heat spots. The second metal may not be visible, so check tags and labels regarding construction. The rainbow-like marks on stainless steel are usually caused by overheating. The marks can often be removed by a gentle scouring with a polishing cleanser.

Bonded metals, such as stainless steel interior, combine the best test features of the two metals.

Copper — Handsome but not popular for cooking. Utensils should be tin-plated inside for easier cleaning, but eventually the tin will wear through and the pan must be replated.

Enamelware — Glass fused on metal, so careful handling is necessary to avoid cracking, chipping, or discoloring. It is used generally for teakettles, double boilers, and saucepans the heat distribution is not even.

Cast iron — Sturdy ware for skillet or Dutch-oven use. It must be kept seasoned to prevent rusting.

To season, spread melted shortening or salad oil on the inside and cover. Do not use any fat containing salt. Place in a warm oven or over low heat for several hours, scrubbing the sides and covering occasionally with more fat. During heating, occasionally wipe off excess fat or oil with paper towels and re-oil.

Porcelain Enameled — A handsome combination of brightly colored porcelain with the sturdiness of cast iron or aluminum. Porcelain on cast iron both inside and out, producing a heavy utensil. The porcelain is put on only the outside of cast aluminum, so the inside surface requires the same care as other aluminum utensils. It is lighter weight than cast iron. Although the finish eliminates the need for seasoning, abrasives and harsh cleansers should be kept away from the shiny surface to avoid scratching.

Teflon — A useful, safe coating applied to the cooking surface of utensils and to glass and aluminum ovenware. The coating makes it possible to cook with less fat, no sticking and surprisingly easy cleanup. But the Teflon surface is readily damaged and must be protected against scratching.

If foods stick to a Teflon-lined pan, the most likely cause is a buildup of food residue which produces an almost invisible film. If the film is light, gentle scouring may remove it. For heavier buildup, you may need a special cleaner. After using

Junior League of Poughkeepsie . . . Guidebook on Area

POUGHKEEPSIE
A walking tour of Kingston...a wine village in Highland...restored Colonial homes in downtown Poughkeepsie...and many more interesting and places things to see.

They're all in the Tripping and Touring in the 70's, a guidebook of the Hudson Valley and surrounding areas published by the Junior League of Poughkeepsie, Inc.

A categorical index in the guidebook contains 24 categories ranging from art galleries to zoos, according to Mrs. David Petrovits, chairman of publicity for the Poughkeepsie Junior League.

The popularity of the guidebook is attested by the response of the public to the first guidebook published in 1964 containing 329 facilities on 122 pages. The first print was for 3,000 copies and they were quickly sold out. The second edition was published in 1968 and this was sold out completely by November of the following year. With this public response in mind, the Junior League officials began last year to rewrite, update and revise the popular guidebook.

Sports activities form one section of the newest publication—golf, skiing, swimming, bowling, horseback riding, tennis and hiking.

History also abounds in the edition and offers the traveler tips on visiting such restoration sites as the newly opened Van Wyck homestead in Fishkill, historical libraries such as the FDR Library in Hyde Park as well as the always popular Vanderbilt Mansion, the three Tarrytown restorations of Philipsburg Manor, Van Cortlandt Manor and Sunnyside. Forty historic sites in all are listed in the publication.

And for the small fry, the Junior League members have listed such attractions as Carson City and Indian Village in Catskill, the Gingerbread Castle in Hamburg, N. J., and Gaslight Village in Lake George. In addition, readers will find a large selection of picnic, swimming and hiking spots throughout the Hudson Valley region.

For the museum lovers, there's also a listing of the Sloane-Stanley in Kent, Conn., the Shaker Museum in Hancock, Mass., and the Just Buttons Museum in Southington, Conn.

Suggested weekend trips include the Adirondack Museum in Blue Mountain Lake, Corning Glass Center, Corning, N.Y., Mystic Seaport, Old Sturbridge Village and the Shelbourne Museum, Burlington, Vt.

Research for the new edition of the guidebook started in March last year and utilized the volunteer services of 19 persons and a total of more than 500 volunteer hours. Mrs. Petrovits said in line with this project "our goal is that with this book many area residents will come to enjoy this marvelous part of the country."

All proceeds from the sales of the guidebook, it was stressed, will go to the Junior League Community Trust Fund and are used exclusively for service to the community.

The guidebook, selling for $2.25, is available from local retail establishments. In addition, books may be purchased by mail for the same price by writing to Tripping and Touring, Box 1608, Poughkeepsie, N.Y., 12601.

STATE TRAVEL BUREAU CITED—The New York State Commerce Department has received the Outstanding Publication Award from the New York State Recreation and Park Society, Inc., for continuous excellence of its primary travel promotion publication, Vacationlands, New York State. Dr. William Theobald (L), society president, makes presentation to Joseph J. Horan, director of the Commerce Department's Travel Bureau, the first such time the society had made such an award. The presentation took place during the society's annual convention at the Grand Hotel in Accord. (N.Y. State Dept. of Commerce photo.)

NEW YORK (UPI)—Many travelers still rely on the stars to help chart their courses through unfamiliar territory.

These stars, however, are those used by two authoritative guide books to rate hotels and restaurants in the United States and Europe.

The Mobil Travel Guide to the continental United States bestows one to five stars on the various establishments rated while France's prestigious Michelin Red Book uses one to three stars. Ratings are based on the findings of anonymous inspection teams as well as reports from users of the popular guides.

More than 24,000 establishments are rated in the 1972 edition of the Mobil Guide books, published in seven regional issues and sold singly or as a set. Only 36-12 resorts, 11 restaurants, 10 hotels and three motels—were awarded the top accolade.

California leads with eight five-starred facilities, followed by New York with six, Florida with five and Ohio with four. The list includes:

HOTELS: Century Plaza, Los Angeles; Fairmont, San Francisco; La Quinta, Palm Desert, and Santa Barbara Biltmore, Santa Barbara, all California;

Carlyle and Pierre, New York City; Caesar's Palace, Las Vegas, Nev.; Madison, Washington, D.C.; Doral-on-the-Beach, Miami Beach, Fla.; and Broadmoor, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Restaurants: The Four Seasons, Lutece, the 21 Club and Le Pavillon, all New York City; Blue Fox, Ernie's and La Bourgeoisie, all San Francisco; Gourmet, Maisonette and Pi-gall's, all Cincinnati; and La

Dome of the Four Seasons, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

All 36 are in the de luxe category, with prices to match. But the guide books also carry hundreds of others well within the budget of the average tourist. Now in the 14th year of publication, they also include valuable information on sight-seeing, amusements, sports and recreational facilities in the area as well as historical notes and maps.

Michelin's 1972 guide to France rated 10,860 hotels and restaurants, its listings indicated that the renowned cuisine of restaurants, six were new while eight were dropped for a net loss of two.

All 12 restaurants rated three-stars in 1971 retained their top standing this year, including Le Grand Vefour, La Tour D'Argent, Lasserre and Maxim's of Paris.

But eight 1971 two-star restaurants lost one star, including four in Paris alone. Downgraded were the Espadon restaurant in the Hotel Ritz, France has slipped slightly, the Regence-Plaza restaurant in the Hotel Plaza Athenee, the Relais Paris Est in the east railway station and La Coquille.

Michelin also rates sightseeing attractions and includes maps and helpful tips for the tourist. Instructions on how to use the guide and other information are printed in English as well as other languages.

Michelin lists 550 one-star restaurants, with 38 new additions and 46 dropped from the 1971 roster, for a net loss of eight. Of the 64 two-starred restaurants, six were new while eight were dropped for a net loss of two.

The 90-Room Deborah

Tel Aviv's World's Largest Strictly Kosher Hotel

TEL AVIV (UPI)—At 12 stories and with 90 rooms, the Deborah in Tel Aviv is the world's largest strictly kosher hotel.

What this means among other things is that every Friday before sundown the Deborah's switchboard and kitchen close down, the guests snuff out their cigarettes and the elevator begins a constant automatic floor-to-floor routine up and down until Saturday's sunset ends the Jewish sabbath.

It is all done so there will be no violation of religious law by anyone having to do the work of answering the telephone, cooking, lighting a smoke or pushing the elevator button on the day of rest.

The lobby lights and central air conditioning are turned on and off automatically by an electric clock device so that there is no need to flick switches, but the guests are allowed to do what they wish with the controls in their rooms.

The Deborah observes—or tries to—all 613 commandments that govern the daily lives of Orthodox Jews.

"We give the religious Jew a feeling of being right at home," said Mendel Knoll, who, with his three brothers, completed the hotel in 1964 and named it for their mother, a religious woman.

So good is business, despite the extra costs of maintaining a kosher inn, that Knoll plans to build two more in Jerusalem, one in Eilat, one in Haifa and perhaps one in Romania on the Black Sea.

"The demand is terrific," he said, adding that most of the guests are American Jews who want to observe the religious laws in Israel even if some of them don't do so at home.

The Deborah has all the frills of a luxury hotel in addition to its synagogue, staffed by a full-time rabbi, and a beauty shop where the chief concern is styling the wigs of Orthodox women who, after marriage, crop their hair as a sign of modesty.

To be sure, all hotels in Israel are required to observe the kosher dietary laws but, Knoll said, his hotel is more strict when it comes to keeping dairy products separate from meat in accordance with the rules.

There is one kitchen for dairy products and one for meat, each with its own dishes, dishwashers, cooks, waiters and even tablecloths. Dairy dishes are served in one dining room, meat in another. A guest eating a steak cannot have butter on his potato, for instance.

"A religious Jew wouldn't trust the bigger hotels because maybe the waiter would get the meat and dairy dishes mixed up," Knoll said. "Neither would the big hotels allow the traditional singing at meals on the sabbath."

When the kitchen shuts down Friday evenings, the food for the sabbath has already been prepared and is kept warm in reference to the pre-cooked ovens for Saturday meals. It is served by waiters who are immune from the ban on work because their jobs are necessary.

"Anything that can be done is all by the honor system and, Knoll said, no one has tried to cheat him yet.

There is no paying for meals or board on Saturday, either. It is all by the honor system and, Knoll said, no one has tried to cheat him yet.

Life in India After War... Door Open to Americans

BOMBAY (UPI)—When the Indian airliner touched down at New Delhi, I wondered whether the land and the people would still be the same as when I visited a year ago. Since then, the country had gone through a summer of anxiety, a fall of tension and a winter of armed confrontation.

How would life be in postwar India and how would the traveler, especially an American, be received?

The feeling of suspense was soon absorbed by the confusion of Delhi Airport, long and well known to tourists. One wonders, again, whether there is ever a way out of the shoving, gesticulating and luggage-toting crowds and "Why have I come here in the first place?"

But, eventually, the airport is left behind and a pleasant, modern hotel waits.

Later, Karan Singh, India's burly, congenial Minister of Tourism, a fairly young and energetic go-getter, says the unnerving airport confusion will be gone in a year or two. Four new international airports of ultramodern design are on the drawing boards for Bombay, New Delhi, Calcutta and Madras.

As to resentment of Americans because of official antagonism—government is quite emphatic that Indians don't mix politics with tourism. "Americans are as welcome here as ever," he assured.

Traveling along the beaten sightseers' track and exploring some new trails, this soon becomes evident. The sentiment is as unchanged as the country which, with its vast expanse and populace appears to have sponged upon the conflict with Pakistan, with all its consequences. India still has the red carpet out for anyone who wants to see it, at bargain price or otherwise, and "the customer is always right" for the hotel owner, the shopkeeper, busboy and the others upon whom the stranger is dependent.

Delhi with the Red Fort—Maharaja land—Jaipur with the elephant ride to the Amber Palace—the erotic sculptures of the Khajuraho Temples, all are again open for business. And in Agra no one remembers what happened to the four tons of camouflage burlap that covered the bomb-threatened Taj Mahal, reduced to zero during the war, is quickly returning to normal. In Delhi, hotels were 90 to 100 per cent booked, early this year: the same situation in other cities.

Singh expects a tourist boom in the coming year—400,000 visitors in 1972—and besides modernizing the main Indian airports he has stepped up an ambitious hotel building program across the nation.

In Delhi, towering Akbar Hotel, a showcase of Indian artistic design, opened in January, and was immediately booked to the last room. A West German firm offered to charter it for a full two years but the management refused.

Giant new highrise hotel structures are also nearing completion along the Bombay waterfront, including the ITT Sheraton. Singh also has new tourist development projects underway, one in the northern ski area of Gulmarg in Kashmir, the other as a beach resort at Kovalam, near the subcontinent's southern tip.

It is all available, India's magic of the co-existing past and future. Amid the awe inspiring monuments of glorious times, some crumbling, some in everperfect high gloss marble, the country is dotted with construction sites and in thousands of small shops the Indians forge, hammer, grind, chisel, carve and hew by hand all the countless items of a fascinating culture.

The doors of the country are wide open to all foreign travelers, Karan Singh promises. He figures that by the end of the decade they will come at a rate of one million a year.

TEEN SCENE: After the Parade Is Over, What Then

By LEI

Lay it down straight, now—what does Memorial Day mean to you? If you're like most of us, it's a holiday—a day off from school or work. It marks the informal beginning of summer, although it is almost a month from the formal date. It is a day for picnics and the first surprisingly chilly swim and pinwheels and hot dogs. And, of course, there is the parade—Memorial Day wouldn't be Memorial Day without a parade, and the cemetery looking strangely festive under the late-spring flowers and the fresh, bright flags on the graves of veterans. Occasionally, a family will bring a formal floral decoration for the grave of a friend or relative. In some localities stores run special sales, and there are special sporting events and festivals.

With the holiday atmosphere, it isn't too surprising that, a few years ago, a local radio announcer began the radio program by blurting out, "Happy Memorial Day!" The surprising thing is that very few people noticed the blunder.

Many of our national holidays have strayed far from their traditional meaning, but only Halloween approximates the loss of meaning that has occurred to Memorial Day.

Memorial Day was originated in 1868, just after the Civil War, and was proclaimed for the purpose of decorating the graves of the soldiers killed in that war. By the turn of the century, the holiday was widely referred to as Decoration Day. It was frequently set aside by families for decorating and upkeep of all the graves of friends and family, whether or not they had died in war.

And then came World War I. At the end of it, sadly, there were a great many fresh graves on which to lay a wreath. It was during this period that a military-type parade and a memorial service, often including the reading of "Flanders' Fields" became common.

Since then, there have been three more wars. As the bright parade marches down the street, swollen with sound, acres of white crosses in precise formation march silently across history.

In recent years, the holiday has added a bizarre new note of horror—every Memorial Day hundreds of motorists are killed on the highways, and thousands more are injured, celebrating the "holiday." Police and hospitals brace themselves grimly for an influx of cases of drowning, food poisoning, lost children, and stolen cars. It seems that for most people, Memorial Day is the time for casting aside the rigors of winter—and all caution with it. It is so easy to forget that some will not be watching the parade this year. And will not see the bright flowers placed before their headstones.

Of course, it would be hard to be sad on an early summer day, with the parade prancing down the street, decorated bikes weaving among the pedestrians, and toddlers covering everything in reach with ice cream. And if Memorial Day was never intended to be carnival time, it was never intended to be a time for tragedy, either. It was to be a time of renewal—a time to clear the debris of winter from the grave of a loved one, and replace it with the promising plants of a new year. And a time, also, for a renewal of our thoughts...

Man is, we are told, the most advanced species of animal, and yet man and ants are the only two living creatures that wage wars. Mankind has evolved immeasurably beyond even the most advanced jungle age, but when two men become angry at each other, they fight as savagely as any mandrill or chimp. And let's face it—no gorilla ever got in a car and tried to do 80 mph on a rain-slick highway. Is this evolution?

This Memorial Day, somewhere between the parade and the potato salad, let's stop and wonder why we take it for granted that men must kill each other. Wonder what would happen if everyone in the entire world practiced peace, generosity, and kindness to everyone else for just one day. Memorial Day is more than a day to remember our war dead. It is a day to hope that some day there will be no more wars. And no more dead. Anywhere.

That would be a truly happy Memorial Day.

YOUTH in the NEWS: College Plans for Fall

Just as the spring semester is winding down for the summer, area students are turning their thoughts toward fall.

Youth in the News this week has received word of numerous September acceptances for local residents at campuses near and far.

Perhaps the farthest flung is A Study Year Abroad at Verona, Italy. Aaron Randall, an art major at Baldwin-Wallace College, Berea, Ohio, has been accepted for the program. A graduate of Rondout Valley High School Class of 1971, Aaron is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Wallace R. Randall of Stone Ridge. His father serves Krippelbush and Rondout Valley United Methodist Churches.

The study program, begun in 1959, has a resident American dean supervising a European faculty. Forty students are enrolled for next year. They will live with Italian families. Acceptance was by the Regional Council for International Education.

Aaron has been active in track, cross country, the McGovern for President movement and the International Club.

LINDA RIZZI

Linda Gall Rizzi has been accepted at both SUNY at Albany and at New Paltz. She will attend State University of New York at Albany where she will major in psychology.

A consistent dean's list student at Ulster County Community College she achieved a perfect 4.0 average during the fall semester there. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rizzi of Neighborhood Road, Lake Katrine.

Among other acceptances is that of James P. Grover of Kingston. He will enter Alfred University as a freshman in September.

Currently a senior at Ulster Academy, he is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Milton Grover of 48 West Chestnut Street. He will be enrolled in the university's College of Liberal Arts.

Two area students have been accepted for September admission to State University Agricultural and Technical College, Delhi.

Keith Chase of 7 Stony Run Apartments, Kingston will be entering the Business Management Division. He is a senior at Kingston High School and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Chase.

Jack D. Spinnenweber, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Spinnenweber of 190 Broadway, will be enrolled in the Engineering Technologies Division. He is a senior at KHS also.

Two Ulster County students enrolled at Delhi have been accepted into the Green Key Honor Society at the college.

Douglas Pettit, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Pettit of 95 Green Street, Kingston and Sharon Buley daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Buley of Star Route, Shokan, are Green Key recipients. Pettit is a senior in the Vocational Education Electricity Division and Sharon is a freshman in the Animal Science Division.

Charles C. Cole, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Cole of Millrock Road, New Paltz, received recognition at the annual spring honors and awards banquet of Albright College, Reading, Pa. A sophomore religion major, Cole received a two-year certificate in band awards at the year-end ceremony.

A Kingston girl was elected to Oracle the Ithaca College Academic Honor Society for upperclassmen. Kathleen Boyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Boyd of 18 Overlook Drive, Kingston was selected for that top honor.

A junior at Ithaca College she is majoring in math. Kathleen is a 1969 graduate of Kingston High School.

Scholarships assist greatly in furthering higher education and several area students have been selected recently for study grants.

Tanya Zesutek of Ellenville was winner of a faculty scholarship at Orange County Community College. Announcement of the scholarship grants were made at the recent 13th annual all college awards convocation at the Middletown campus.

Faculty members aided six graduating seniors at Rondout Valley High School. The Rondout Valley Teachers Association presented $300 scholarships to Michael Botsakos, Ron Hall, Eirlys Robertshaw, Walter Zaharchuk, Catherine Salvatore and Jody Countryman. RVTA scholarships are presented each year to seniors planning careers in teaching.

Academic honors were earned by a number of area residents enrolled at Hartwick College. Named to the dean's list for the past semester at the Oneonta college were:

Dixie R. Denman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Lee Denman of Box 150, Shokan, a freshman French major; Herbert J. Epstein, son of Herbert Epstein of Box 237, Phoenicia, a senior economics major; Judith Howland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger Howland, Lake Hill, a senior Latin American Studies major;

Also, Nile A. Luedtke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman H. Luedtke of 1035 Codwise Street, Town of Ulster, senior chemistry major and Nadine Schreiber, daughter of Mrs. Charlotte H. Nichols of Stillwater Road, Stone Ridge, a junior nursing major.

New Fashion Fad Really an Oldie

NEW YORK (UPI)—Just when the teen-agers appeared to be returning to the fold (from a clothing standpoint) a new fad has arisen that once more will set them apart from the elder crowd—pants called "baggies."

They are called that because they are about as baggy as a pair of pants can get without looking like some of the beach pajamas Jean Harlow wore back in the 1930s. Of course the kids wearing them probably never heard of Jean Harlow.

There are, however, variations of baggies, but there is one common feature—they are very tight across the buttocks and then they fall straight and very full as they approach the ground. Some have pleats to make them even fuller and most have wide cuffs.

Pants with tight seats remain popular in a number of other styles—the flare which has been around for a few years, the elephant bell which flares from the knee into unbelievably wide bottoms, some up to 30 inches.

There may be more: the baggies are on the market now only for those in the late teens but if history repeats itself as it is apt to do there will be demand for the same thing by the 8-and-9-year-olds who like to wear anything big brother wears.

Swimwear

Seersucker and Madras returned abruptly to popularity this spring and summer after being in limbo for several years and they have pervaded swimwear as well. There are a lot of other fabrics in swimwear, naturally, but there is a same general look—a short square cut. There is also a lot of pro basketball-like swim trunks.

The look originated in Europe for a change, although most swim styles move eastward from Hawaii and California. The rise is lower and the leg

A few from the market: Brentwood among other things showed swimtrunks modeled after basketball shorts but in splash prints and lace fronted shorts, another with back patch pockets patterned in the popular spring nautical look—an anchor and a ship's wheel.

Jantzen and Catalina, the giants of the swimwear industry, were both big on the square off look—plus ecology. One Jantzen shorts and tank top had stickon strawberries; Catalina Men had a brief knit with an abstract flower pattern in muted white and mauve. Plus another pair that could have come straight from a volleyball court.

Shirts, Plaids
Some of the preliminary estimates are in on the fall shirt business and they show that the long-pointed button-down collar is it, with guesses running anywhere from 15 to 43 per cent of shirt volume. The points usually run 4 to 4 1/2 inches as compared with 3 1/2 for the "old fashioned" kind.

There also will be a greater variety of collars, away from the four-inch long non-button down in vogue for the past years. These include a rounded off collar, a lot of spreads and an occasional pin collar than which there is nothing dressier. What it boils down to is you can pretty much wear any kind of shirt you want to if you put it all together right.

You'd think fashion designers were a bunch of archeologists digging up remnants of lost civilizations—such as the plaids which were around for centuries and then suddenly lapsed into disuse when someone decided they'd been here long enough.

So what has just been discovered? You guessed it. Plaids. They started making their appearance in spring and summer shirts in anything from gingham checks to big windowpanes and are the dazzling discovery of the season for fall. Almost every manufacturer has gone heavily into knits and now they are going heavily into plaids. Those dealing in wovens for suits have revived the classic glen plaids, but the knits have bigger and bolder plaids, a few of them a little too so.

They have hit outerwear and raincoats and branched into boys wear and the lumberjacks who have been wearing them as long as anyone can remember will be glad to know they are back at the head of the fashion parade.

SGO Officers Elected

STONE RIDGE
Damir Lazaric, a member of the varsity soccer team, is the president-elect of the Student Government Organization at Ulster County Community College.

Lazaric defeated Bob Rountree, of Saugerties, by a 198-159 margin. Carl McDonald, of Brooklyn, was third with 77 votes.

Ricky Turowsky, Plainview, was elected vice president by a five vote margin. He defeated John Morrow, Tilton, by 190-185.

Janet Mitaro, New Paltz, was elected secretary, and Judi Scott, also of New Paltz, was elected treasurer. Both ran unopposed.

The elected sophomore senators are Nancy Chapman, Hunter; Chris Chianelli, Elka Park; Fran Gambrelli, New Paltz; Terri Goffredi, Kingston; Kevin Kumanga, Kingston; Greg Taplar, Plainview; Bob Turner, Highland; Peggy Zibella, Saugerties; Roberta Wizner, Hunter; and Chris Leide, Saugerties.

The elected candidates will assume their positions next September for the 1972-73 academic year.

The new president plans to work this summer with other officers and Senators to plan activities for the next academic year. He has pledged to do all in his power to give students the full benefit from their activity fee at the college.

A native of Yugoslavia, Lazaric came to the U.S. with his mother six years ago. He graduated from William Cullen Bryant High School in Astoria, Queens, and lives locally in High Falls. Last fall, he played as a left fullback on the UCCC soccer team and will be back again on the team next fall.

Lazaric first became interested in student government while in high school and that interest has continued at Ulster. While attending the community college he has been working part-time in the college cafeteria.

Three From County

Selected for AIM

KINGSTON
Flotilla 20-4, United States Coast Guard Auxiliary, Kingston, has been informed by division 20 that three of their candidates for the AIM program have been chosen as winners.

Kevin Garrison of 110 Clifton Avenue, Kingston, has been chosen to participate in the summer program at the Coast Guard Academy, New London, Conn. July 23 to 27.

Dwight Dinsmore of RD 4, Kingston and Joseph Moser, 30 Finger Street, Saugerties have been chosen as alternates.

All expenses are paid and the candidates will have the opportunity to participate in the daily life of a cadet at the academy. A total of 150 boys 16 to 18 years of age from all Coast Guard Auxiliary divisions in all 50 states will make the academy their home as they lead the daily life of future commissioned officers of the U.S. Coast Guard.

Garrison, Dinsmore and

Moser were chosen from seven Flotillas in Division 20 which borders on the Hudson River from Croton to Catskill. Chosen because of their character, appearance, speech, poise, enthusiasm, leadership potential and scholastic ability, they will be able to see and absorb the rich traditions and educational advantages of the Academy.

Graduates of the U.S. Coast Guard Academy are awarded a BS degree and commissioned as ensign in the Coast Guard.

Flotilla 20-4, Kingston, choose their candidates for the AIM (Academy Introduction Mission) from applicants from Ellenville, Rondout Valley, Kingston, John A. Coleman, Onteora, Saugerties, Wallkill, New Paltz and Highland High Schools.

High school juniors between the ages of 16 and 18 may compete in the AIM program annually by contacting their high school guidance counselor who will receive information from the Coast Guard Auxiliary.

School Benefit For United Way

BOICEVILLE
A total of $350 is being donated to the United Ways by the Onteora Chapter of the National Honor Society, according to Miss Ingrid Vogt, president.

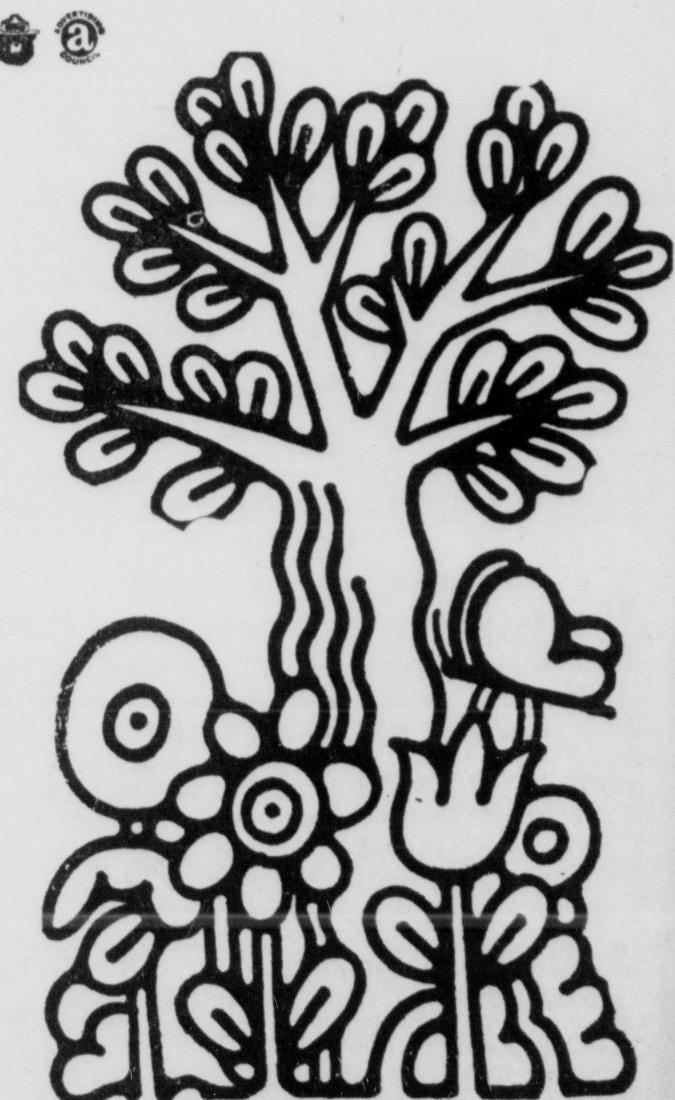

The money represents the profit from Down Memory Lane, the variety show presented recently. According to Miss Vogt, the main reason for the show was that the members wanted to do something for their community. They felt that a contribution to the United Ways would be one way they could help.

Fifty-two Honor Society members, four seniors and 50 members of the Sounds of Music participated in the show. Miss Vogt established the format for the production, and the students created the dances and routines. Jerry Wempe, who directed the faculty show some years ago, coached the performers, while Charles Lane, the variety show Wood, Matthew Ostoyich and Gregor Gregor assisted. Bill Chavis of the Coach House Players provided costumes and flash backs.

To be qualified for Honor Society a student must demonstrate leadership, character, scholarship and service.

Forest fires destroy beauty.

It takes nearly a century to grow the green beauty of a tree. And only a careless second with a match to leave only black ugliness. Only you can prevent forest fires.

The Fieldbrook

Ranch for Limited Budget

By JACK McEENEY

PROVIDENCE, R.I.

Today's feature, called "The Fieldbrook," is a particular design for a small budget. It, nevertheless, is a complete three bedroom dwelling, with every feature and most facilities found in expensive homes, plus a few extra touches for comfortable living which add very little to the cost. Considering the fact that straight line construction is less expensive, the designer settled to a perfect rectangle thru the basic house. The addition of the garage will be well worth the extra money that it will cost and could be considered additional equity because of the added resale potential.

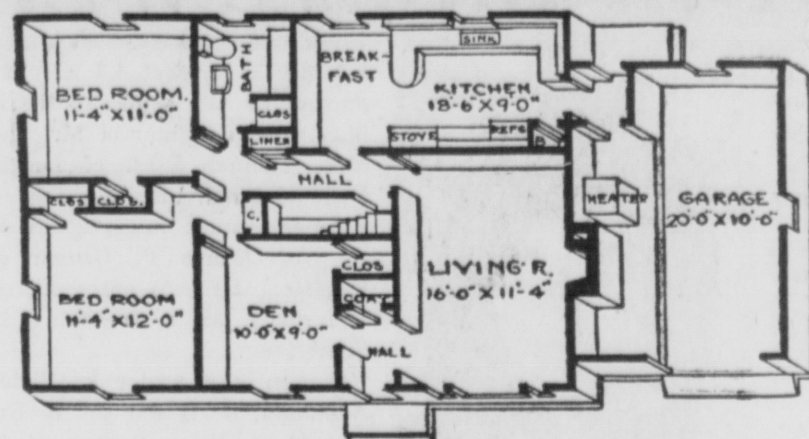

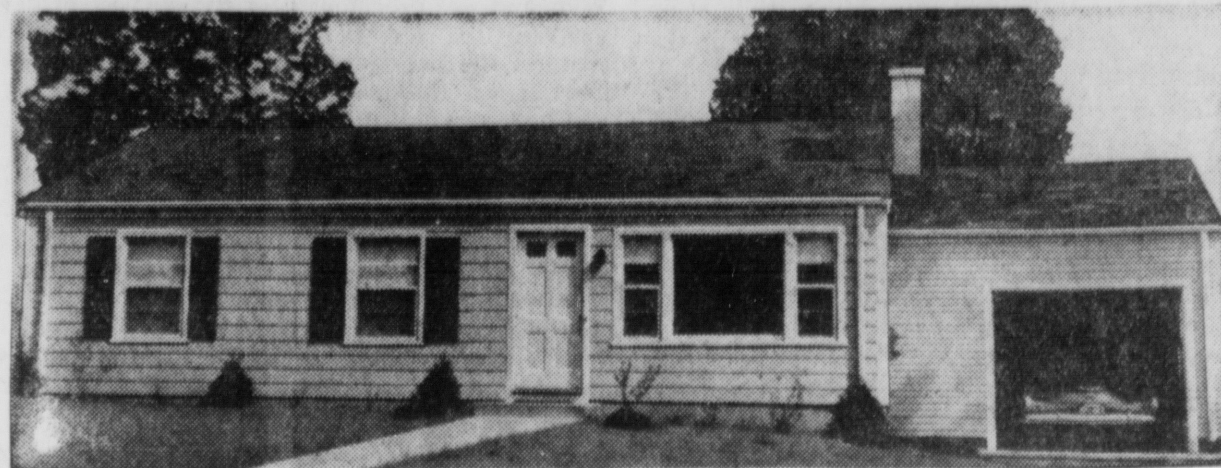

The galley type kitchen features an abundance of counter and cupboard space with a projecting bar to identify the breakfast area. A full bath is more or less standard. The two main bedrooms at the left side are fairly large and equipped with good wardrobe space. The other small room, noted on the plan as the den, is a multipurpose area that can be used to suit the needs of the family, such as den, guest room, bedroom, study, etc. The living room features a front foyer and fireplace.

Of particular note is the space between the garage and living room wall. This room allows the prospective homeowner to build "The Fieldbrook" with a full basement or without basement. If built without basement this area would become a heater room and the basement stairs deleted, which in turn would enlarge the den. If built with a full basement the area between the living room and garage would be used for a laundry or storage room.

Except for the garage front which has clapboards spaced at 2½ inches, the front, sides and rear of the house make use of regular cedar shingles. All doors and windows are regular lumber yard stock items. The house measurements are 37 feet-10 inches x 25 feet-10 inches with an overall, including the garage, of 52 feet-10 inches. There are 956 square feet of living space and the garage contains 315 square feet, with an overall, including living space and the garage are available at moderate cost by using the accompanying coupon.

Repair Time For Leaky Roof

By MR. FIX

Spring or fall are good times for repairing a roof.

The in-between seasons are also good because repairing a roof is no job for either a cold day or a hot one. What you want are mild temperatures and little wind.

Even if you are pretty good at working in high places, avoid roofs with a steep pitch.

From the ground you can generally detect areas where shingles have been damaged or torn off. Detection from indoors comes about when the roof starts to leak.

Water may run along the inside slope of the roof before it drips to the floor. From the attic on a sunny day you should be able to see where light is entering. Run a wire through the opening so you can spot it from outside.

Asphalt shingles are in widest use and are easiest to repair. Loose shingles can be taken care of with a few dabs of asphalt cement underneath. Then nail down with roofing nails and cover the nail heads with more cement.

If the shingle needs replacing, carefully lift up the one above it and pry up the exposed nails. When you have the nails out, slide out the damaged shingle and put in a new one.

Place the new nails so that the upper shingle covers them. Put some asphalt cement on the nail heads and press the new shingle down.

Avoid working with asphalt shingles during cold weather. They get brittle.

Wood shingles must be split and the pieces removed. Use a hacksaw blade to cut out the old nails. Slide a new shingle in place. Hammer it into place protecting the edge with a piece of wood so the hammer doesn't damage it. Drive nails through the space between the shingles above the new one.

Slate shingles are best left to a roofer, who has the tools to do the job.

Flat roofs are generally covered with roll roofing and are easy to repair. The first signs of trouble are small cracks and these can be repaired by spreading plenty of asphalt compound.

Large cracks or bulging areas can be repaired with a patch cut from roll roofing. Remove loose pieces. Cut the bulge so that the material lies flat. Apply asphalt cement. Put the patch on and nail in place, then cover with more cement. Seal the edges.

Oriental Trick On Downspouts

NEW YORK (UPI)—Modern architects are using an age-old Oriental trick to eliminate unsightly, cloggable downspouts.

Lengths of quarter-inch chains are substituted, reaching from a six-inch sleeve through the conventional gutter along the roof line to the ground. The bottom end of the chain can hang free, if desired, but usually is anchored either to a ring in a concrete splash slab or to a stake firmly fixed in a gravel bed six inches deep.

A combination of gravity and capillary attraction makes the rainwater run downward along the chain.

Money Clips

By MORT REED

What constitutes the difference between a coin type and a coin variety continues to plague the conscientious collector. And while I consider it a moot question receiving far more credence in the art of coin collecting than it deserves, the readers are entitled to at least one definition — however controversial.

The following is typical of the many letters addressed to this column asking for a reasonable description of both terms and why my book, "Cowles Complete Encyclopedia of U.S. Coins," differs in this classification with other publications.

Dear Mr. Reed:

As a partially disabled veteran I have turned to coin collecting as a hobby and a form of therapy. In trying to accumulate a Type Set of U.S. Coins, my guide book calls for four major types of the nickel five-cent piece with at least one variety of each optional. Your encyclopedia includes the varieties as types making the total nickels in the series eight rather than four. Who is right and who is wrong?

L. L. T. Pittsburgh, Pa.

In collecting specimens of the United States type series it is of no special consequence who is right and who is wrong. The point you have to consider is whether or not you have the coins called for under either classification.

type. In my judgment it is a type because it contains absolutely no nickel; is 56 per cent copper, 35 per cent silver and 9 per cent manganese with a large mint letter over the dome of Monticello rather than to the left of its foundation.

In my opinion a legal type occurs when a major, noticeable change is deliberately made in either the physical, metallurgical or design structure of a lawful coin. On the other hand, a variety occurs when an engraver attempts to correct a poorly executed die rather than replacing it.

All type changes in the design are made with the knowledge and consent of the mint director. Varieties are produced more often than not through mechanical malfunctions in the press room. The 1955 double struck Lincoln cent is an oblique variety of the regular 1955 issue, but the 1959 Lincoln Memorial on the reverse of our copper coin makes all coins after that of the Memorial type, not the Memorial variety.

Assuming I am correct in calling the mound reverse above a Type-I Indian-head and the plane reverse on the right a Type-II Indian-head, here are still several instances throughout this nickel series to provide several varieties.

For instance, a few of the Type-I 1913 nickels, and a few of the Type-II 1918, 1921 and 1923 fail to show the tip of the feather just under the long feather at the nape of the neck. This is a variety of the norm. Similarly, the 1918 with the figure 8 struck over the figure 7 is a variety just as the mint letter "D" of the 1938 issue is struck over the mint letter "S" in some cases.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

In order to finish up our week of teacher's hands, we go back to Milton Work, the greatest authority on auction bridge. We have taken one of his auction hands and given it contract bidding.

In auction bridge, South would play at either two or three diamonds, depending on how far East and West bid, but the play would be the same.

Clubs are opened and continued and South ruffs the second one with a high trump. Work pointed out that this was completely safe, since neither opponent could hold more than four trumps.

Then declarer cashes two high diamonds and is delighted when his opponents both follow. Now the five of diamonds is an entry to dummy.

The next step is to take the three high hearts. If the suit breaks, dummy's nine of hearts will have become a trick, but it doesn't.

Now South enters dummy with that nice five of diamonds, takes the spade finesse and makes his contract.

Auction bridge was not as delicate as contract. A contract expert would cash the ace of spades before going to dummy, just in case West held the singleton king. Then if East ducked the second spade lead, our contract expert might actually duck also on the theory that West might have started with just king and one spade.

Only the 'Shadow' Knows
And a Writer in Eddyville

By CARL GRAHAM

EDDYVILLE
Here's a question for you trivia buffs — what was the Shadow's real name?

"Lamont Cranston," would be the instant response from the numerous middle-aged Americans who followed the cloaked crime fighter's career through the Shadow Magazine or the radio show based on the magazine stories.

Few of them, however, would know the identity of the Shadow's creator, a veteran free lance writer, now residing in Eddyville. For Walter B. Gibson wrote the series "from the pen of the Shadow, as told to Maxwell Grant," one of the many pen names he has used in a writing career covering more than 50 years.

In 1931, two years after the depression had virtually paralyzed America, the bottom had dropped out of the free lance story market. Gibson, a former newspaper reporter turned free lance, went to the New York headquarters of Street and Smith, the giant of the pulp publishing field, looking for writing assignments. He was told the company wanted to create a character based on a radio voice.

Only the most avid trivia collectors know that the Shadow made his debut as an announcer for Detective Story Hour, a program created to publicize stories taken from Love Story Magazine, and the Shadow, at that time nothing more than a sepulchral voice that opened and closed the radio show, made the transition from police to passion without a hitch.

Street and Smith salesmen reported that they were getting more inquiries about the Shadow than about the stories he introduced, so the firm decided to capitalize on his popularity. Enter Gibson for a profitable association that lasted until shortly after World War II.

Gibson, whose extensive library reveals a lifetime interest in magic and the occult arts, made use of his interests in developing Cranston, a tall, slender, independently wealthy man with a passion for stamping out evil. A World War I secret agent, Cranston had traveled extensively and had indulged his interest in hypnotism and other arcane subjects in the remote fastness of Tibet, and the shadowy figure soon became an instant hit.

The company had envisioned the new magazine as a quarterly, and Gibson was promised three more stories if the first proved successful. It succeeded beyond their fondest hopes, and the magazine was changed to a monthly. Later it was published every two weeks.

Only another writer can fully appreciate the demands that such a schedule made on Gibson. Each Shadow story ran about 200 manuscript pages, with 27 lines to a page and 10 words to a line, meaning he had to come up with the equivalent of a full novel every two weeks. His output of about 1½ million words a year is a formidable typing feat alone without the problems of plot and characterization.

Gibson, conditioned by years of newspaper deadlines, met the arduous schedule until shortly after World War II, when he relieved the Shadow of his crime fighting duties and sent him to a well deserved retirement.

Faced with such a demand, Gibson used "proxy heroes" around whom story lines could be spun for variety, with the Shadow making the scene as the plot dictated.

"The proxy heroes were a group of assistants the Shadow had recruited," Gibson explained. Like most dramatic writers, he speaks of his creations as living entities.

"The Shadow had such avid readers that I had to work hard just to stay a jump ahead of them," he recalled.

Another plot device was a series of several stories built around a particularly dastardly villain. Notable among these was the Cobra, whose assistants wore hooded cloaks and were called Fangs. It took the Shadow several episodes to dispose of the Cobra and his cohorts.

Shortly after the magazine appeared the Shadow was promoted from announcer to star of his own radio show. Street and Smith, never a firm to overlook a good publicity angle, began airing adaptations of the magazine stories. Orson Welles, a boy wonder in those days and creator of the notorious "War of the Worlds" broadcast, was the original voice of the Shadow. The broadcasts were done live on Sunday afternoons by actors of the Mercury Theater in those pre-tape days. Although Gibson didn't write the radio adaptations he had script approval, a necessary step to keep other writers from making changes in the Shadow's well-known and highly profitable character.

The stories gave Gibson a chance to use his extensive knowledge of magic and other allied arts. Gibson, a true craftsman, researched his stories meticulously, and the wealth of authentic detail had much to do with their popularity.

Like all writers, Gibson is also an inveterate reader, and his huge home on a hill overlooking Creek Locks Road and the old D and H canal course is crammed with books.

"I had to buy a big place to have room for my library," he explains.

A native of Philadelphia, he attended Colgate University and began his newspaper career in his home town at a time when eight newspapers were competing for readers, a wonderful indoctrination into the world of news and deadlines that served him well in later years. Old habits die hard, and he still puts in a daily stint at the typewriter.

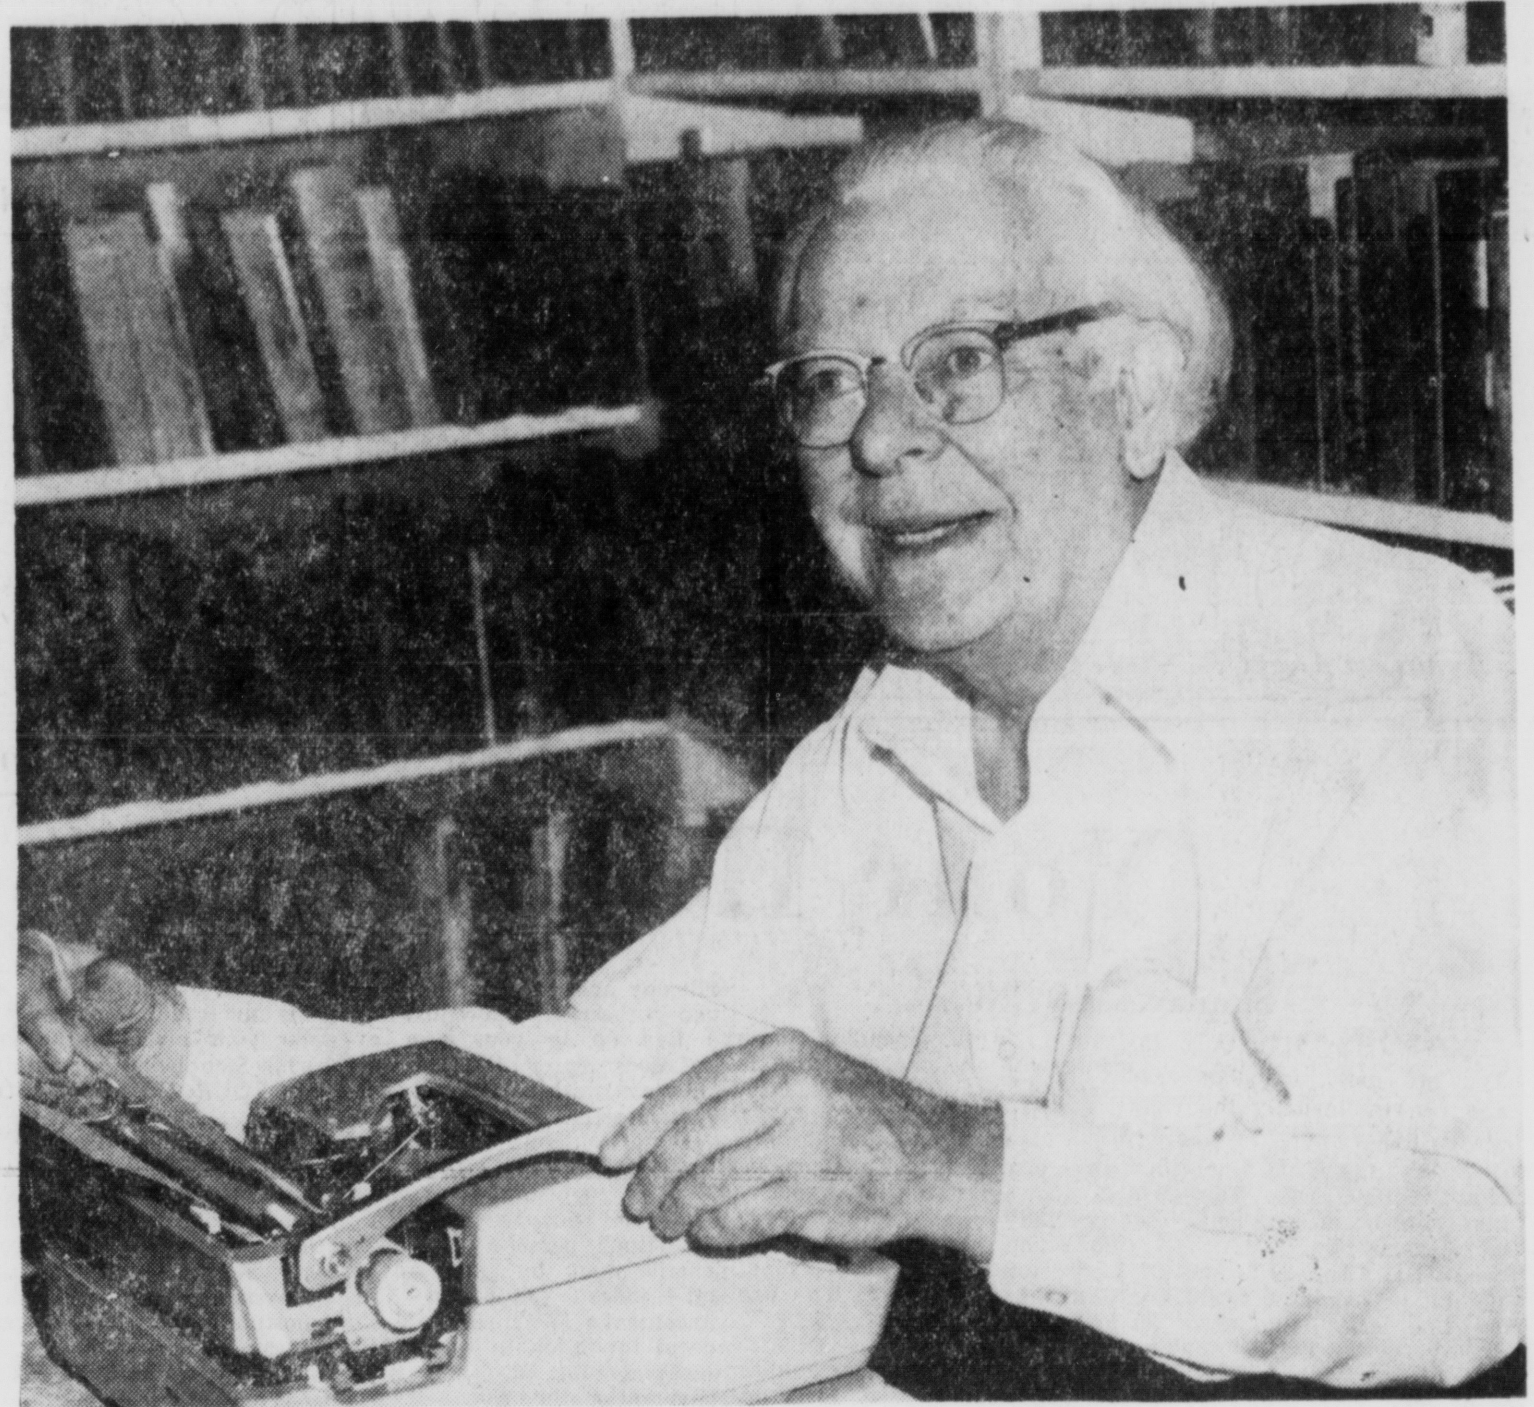

His recent books include the Complete Illustrated Book of Card Magic, illustrated with more than 200 pictures taken by former Daily Freeman photographer Milton Wagenfohr, was reissued two years ago as a paperback. And who knows, the current interest in magic and the psychic sciences, the latter written in collaboration with his wife, Litzska R. Gibson.

The Shadow seems destined to live forever. A movie, with Rod LaRocque as the Shadow, and several serials have been based on his character. Although the stories were written more than three decades ago, some of them were strangely prescient. One story, based on the Shadow's destruction of a fake seance ring, was reissued two years ago as a paperback. And who knows, the current interest in magic and the psychic sciences, the latter written in collaboration with his wife, Litzska R. Gibson.

Gibson isn't one to sit around mooning over the past. He has too many current interests to ever become a bore on the subject of his creation. Local history buffs know him as the second term president of the D and H Canal Historical Association, and there are always enough free lance projects floating around to keep a good writer busy.

D - Day The Sixth of June

Robert Taylor stars in "D-Day, the Sixth of June," a stirring love story set against the background of the Normandy invasion, on "The CBS Sunday Night Movies" Sunday, June 4 (7:30-9:30 p.m., EDT) on the CBS Television Network. Richard Todd, Dana Wynter and Edmond O'Brien co-star. (This film, a rebroadcast, was originally presented on the Network on December 26, 1971.)

Two officers, a British commando and an American captain, stand side by side as their assault craft heads toward the Normandy beaches on D-Day. For each man it is a moment for thinking back to the girl he loves--and it is the same girl, Valerie (Miss Wynter), a Red Cross hostess in London who is engaged to the British commando (Todd) but in love with the American captain (Taylor).

When she fears her romance with the American is becoming too entangling, Valerie tries unsuccessfully to break it off. The confusing events of war and the role fate plays in the lives of the three people finally bring a solution to their problem.

Twilight of Honor

Richard Chamberlain stars in "Twilight of Honor," a taut and absorbing drama to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Late Movie" Monday, June 5 (starting at 11:30 p.m., EDT) on the CBS Television Network. Nick Adams, Joey Heatherton, Claude Rains, James Gregory, Pat Buttram and Joan Blackman also star in the film, which was originally presented on this series on February 16, 1972.

In the story, David Mitchell (Chamberlain), a small-town attorney, is appointed to defend a man accused of wantonly murdering one of the community's leading citizens. Arrested and charged with the murder is a young hitchhiker, Ben Brown (Adams), who has been turned in by his wife (Miss Heatherton). Mitchell initially believes Brown is guilty, but then he discovers glaring omissions in a written confession the authorities obtained from his client. When special prosecutor Bixby (Gregory) refuses to call several important witnesses to the stand, Mitchell is convinced his client is being "railroaded."

GUEST SHAPES UP -- Guest star Jo Ann Pflug pretties up the "Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In" colorcast Monday, May 29 (8-9 p.m., NYT), on the NBC Television Network.

Although Ernie manages to fool her, he is less successful with the general's estranged wife (Miss Wynter). Informed of the situation, she agrees to cooperate, but her eccentric aunt (Miss Rutherford) gives away the whole thing, with hilarious results.

Rouge's March

Peter Lawford, Richard Greene, Leo G. Carroll and Janice Rule star in "Rogue's March," colorful adventure film of romance and intrigue in India, to be presented on "The CBS Late Movie" Thursday, June 8 (starting at 11:30 p.m. EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

The story takes place at the turn of the century when the Czar's influence sweeps through Asia like a tidal wave. On the strategic borders of India, Hassah Khan and his raiding Afghans receive information on the strength and deployment of the British forces opposing them. Six thousand miles away, in London, the Russian embassy protects its agents by manufacturing evidence of espionage against Capt. Dion Lenbridge (Lawford). Drummed out of service, his career ruined, young Lenbridge enlists as a private in a regiment bound for the Indian border country, hoping to discredit the allegation that branded him a traitor.

Late Movie

Faye Dunaway and Marcello Mastroianni star in "A Place for Lovers," tender and haunting romantic drama of two people hopelessly in love, to be presented for the first time on television on "The CBS Late Movie" Wednesday, June 7 (starting at 11:30 p.m. EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

Julia (Miss Dunaway), an American divorcee and fashion designer living in a sumptuous villa near Venice, watches Valerio (Mastroianni), an Italian engineer being interviewed on a television program. She recognizes him as the man who once stopped her at an airport, gently declared his infatuation, and then gave her his calling card. After she telephones him and invites him to her villa, a romance is kindled and she later accompanies him to the Alps. Only then does he realize that Julia shows no interest in his future plans. But when Maggie (Caroline Mortimer), Julia's friend and business associate, arrives, she reveals information to Valerio about Julia that clarifies the situation.

The Red Badge Of Courage

Audie Murphy and Bill Mauldin star in "The Red Badge of Courage," Stephen Crane's immortal story of the War between the States, on "The CBS Late Movie" Tuesday June 6 on the CBS Television Network. (This film will start at the conclusion of CBS News' coverage of the California primary.)

After the long boredom of drilling and waiting, the 304th Regiment is about to see action against the rebels and young Henry Fleming (Murphy) is terrified. He panics in the first rush of battle, loses his buddy Tom Wilson (Mauldin), runs away and sees another buddy die as a result of his bravery. As he tries to stop a fleeing soldier, he receives a blow on the head with a rifle butt and when he again finds his regiment and is reunited with Tom, he tells him his head injury is the result of a rifle wound. Later, Henry learns that his regiment has been chosen for a suicidal charge and his innate courage rises to the surface as he eagerly looks forward to the next day's battle.

Where The Heart Is

Tracy Brooks Swope, featured regularly on the daytime drama "Where the Heart Is" on the CBS

Television Network, has been voted the most promising new actress on the 1971 summer theater circuit by the Council of Stock Theaters and the Third Annual Straw Hat Awards. The presentation was made by Cary Grant at a recent luncheon in New York City.

Miss Swope, daughter of actress Maggie Hayes and Herbert Bayard Swope, Jr., received the award for her performance as Trina Stanley, the ingenue lead in "Forty Carats," which played in New Hampshire and Cape Cod and a tour of 10 theaters last year.

Kid Talk

Pie-throwing comedian Soupy Sales and Byron Block, a member of Ralph Nader's "Nader's Raiders" investigating team, are the celebrity guests on "Kid Talk" Sunday, June 4 (5:00-5:30 p.m. EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

Bill Adler is the moderator.

HUNTED -- Christopher George and Judy Carne star as a photographer and his girl friend pursued by killers who mistake the man for someone else, in "Dead Men Tell No Tales," tense adventure drama on "The New CBS Friday Night Movies" Friday, June 2 (9:00-10:30 PM, EDT)

Killer by Night

Robert Wagner, Diane Baker and Greg Morris star in the tense story of a doctor whose battle to stem a diphtheria outbreak puts him in conflict with a police captain who is using all his manpower to track down a cop-killer, in "Killer by Night" on "The CBS Sunday Night Movies" Sunday, June 11 (7:30-9:30 p.m., EDT) on the CBS Television Network. Also starring are Theodore Bikel, Pedro Armendariz Jr., Robert Lansing and Mercedes McCambridge. (This film, a rebroadcast, was originally presented on the Network on January 7, 1972).

A series of diphtheria cases sends public health doctor Larry Ross (Wagner) to hard-pressed police captain George Benson (Morris) for men to hunt for the carrier before a major epidemic breaks out. Absorbed in his own search for a triple killer, Benson assigns another officer, Phil Gold (Bikel), to Ross for what seems a hopeless search, until doctor and police realize they share a common cause--both are seeking the same man.

The Glen Campbell Show

Milton Berle re-creates his classic comedy sketch about the Hollywood stand-in who takes all the punishment while the star gets all the accolades when he guest stars with singer Freda Payne and comedian Dom DeLuise as "The Glen Campbell Show" salutes the early years of television on Tuesday, June 6 (7:30-8:30 p.m. EDT) on the CBS Television Network. (This program, a rebroadcast, was originally presented on the Network on March 7, 1972.)

Berle and Campbell spoof television's popular Western heroes from Hopalong Cassidy to Matt Dillon, and DeLuise recalls the comedy of Jackie Gleason in "The Honeymooners" and Phil Silvers in the Sergeant Bilko series.

Boy's Night Out

Kim Novak, James Garner and Tony Randall co-star in "Boys' Night Out," fun-packed comedy on "The CBS Late Movie" Friday, June 9 (starting at 11:30 p.m., EDT) on the CBS Television Network. Howard Duff, Janet Blair, Howard Morris, Patti Page, Jessie Royce Landis and Anne Jeffreys appear in important roles. (This film a rebroadcast, was originally presented on this program on February 20, 1972).

In the story, bachelor Fred Williams (Garner) and his three married suburban pals (Randall, Duff and Morris) rent a swank New York apartment. They install Cathy (Miss Novak) who is gathering material for a thesis, to take care of the place. Deftly, she discourages their romantic inclinations.

My World and Welcome to It

William Windom, who stars in the series as John Monroe, also plays Grandpa Monroe in a flashback story of how young John's sniffles brought out the fire department, on "My World and Welcome to It" Thursday, June 8 (8:00-8:30 p.m., EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

Monroe relates the tale of his grandpa's false alarm to his young daughter Lydia when she complains of the sniffles. In Monroe's imaginative story, Grandpa administered steam for young John's cold at the very time the town was nervous about a big arson scare.

LAUGHING AT LOVE, Lucy (left), Violet and even Snoopy, the Peanut beagle, find great hilarity in Charlie Brown's case of unrequited puppy love for that elusive little redheaded girl, in "You're in Love, Charlie Brown," animated Peanuts special to be rebroadcast Saturday, June 3 (8:00-8:30 PM, EDT) on the CBS Television Network.

Painted by the Late Woodstock Artist, Rollin Crampton, in 1946, this Work Entitled "Shoreline" Has the Look of Primitive Folk Art; Would Be a "Natural" for a Permanent Collection

(INSIDE: See "Onward and Upward with the Arts")

"THE BARGES" is the title of this 1945 canvas, painted by the late Woodstock artist Wendell Jones on the banks of Kingston's Rondout Creek. It would be well worthy of inclusion in any permanent collection in the art colony.

STUNNINGLY BEAUTIFUL LANDSCAPES were the forte of the late Woodstock artist, John Carlson, one of the many art colony residents who achieved international renown. This work of a local winter scene is typical of his talent; deserves permanent collection status.

Onward & Upward With the Arts

WOODSTOCK 1972 shapes up as an epochal year in the history of this art colony, with an energetic boost from the Woodstock Artists Association. The 52-year-old organization is currently initiating a new direction for its own future growth and also adding a new dimension to Woodstock's prestige as a center of cultural activity.

The W.A.A. intends to assemble a permanent collection of work by Woodstock's outstanding artists of the past and present. Many of them have achieved international renown — all have made a major contribution to this country's stature in the world of art. The collection, therefore, will have national significance as well as the fact that it will provide, in our locale, an impressive attraction for a broad audience of art patrons, art lovers and art students. At present they can view the work of Woodstock's most famous painters and sculptors only in museum or private collections scattered throughout the country.

The importance of a permanent collection which conveys the spirit and the scope of the Woodstock artist-residents is implicit as a source of reference and inspiration for today's young artists. They continue to come to this fabled community for the creative stimulation that it offered the artists who will be represented in the projected collection. The Artists Association will present this collection — under one roof — in juxtaposition with its regular calendar of current exhibitions by members and area artists.

Times in 1933

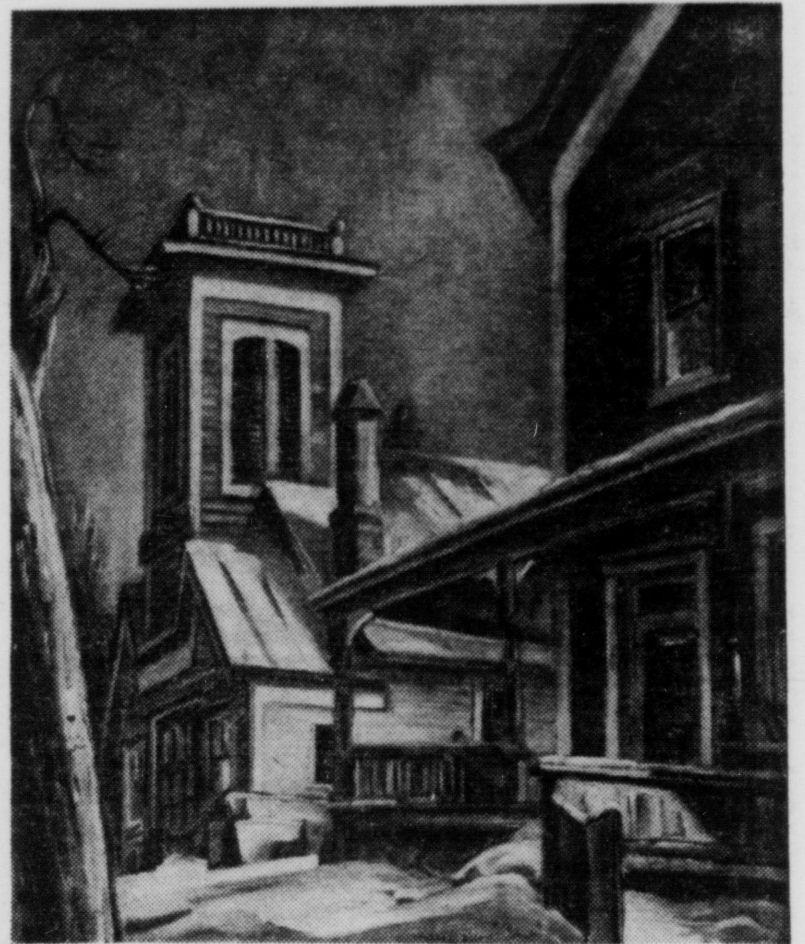

Both the importance of the collection and its benefits to the community have been obvious for many years. After attending an exhibition at the gallery in 1933, the art critic for the New York Times mentioned his having asked the gallery director for a list of the Woodstock artists.

In his review of the exhibition, he notes: "The list turned out to be of staggering length, filling two extra-long sheets of paper, two columns to a page. No less than 110 painters and 14 sculptors, many of them occupying the front rank in American art. Some day it may be possible to found a permanent gallery of Woodstock art. That, as yet, is but a dream."

At that time it seemed an impossible dream. However, within the past two years, the Woodstock Artists Association has been given clear title to its gallery on the village green and has also received partial funding for accelerated exhibition and expanded extension activities from the New York State Council on the Arts. These events, plus inquiries from families of Woodstock's famous artists who would prefer to have their art treasures remain and made visible within the community have produced an impetus to realize that dream as soon as possible.

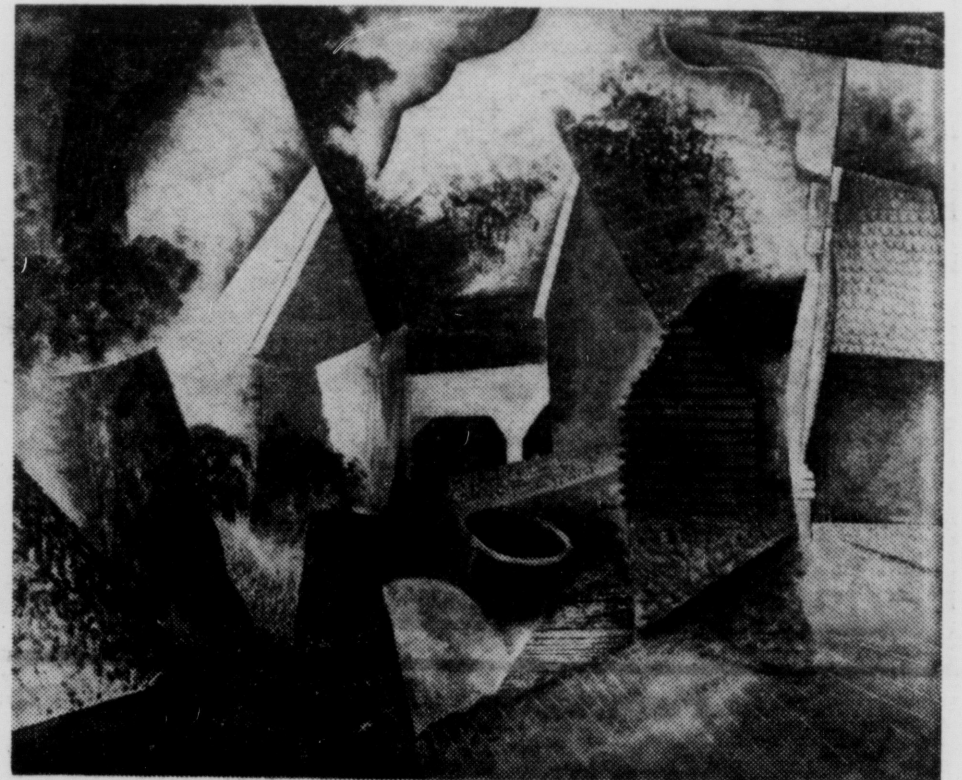

The time is now and the effort has begun! In order to provide exhibition and storage space for the permanent collection, the W.A.A. has just launched a building expansion drive. When the necessary space has been made available, acquisition of desirable paintings and sculpture will begin immediately. The legacy of riches from Woodstock's past artists will then be combined with the vitality of the artists of today, as inspiration for Woodstock's major artists of the future.

WOODSTOCK'S OLD TOWN HALL was one of the many local and area scenes painted by the late and incomparable Charles Rosen, long-time resident of the art colony. Rosen's fame as a landscape artist would assure him a place in the WAA's permanent collection.

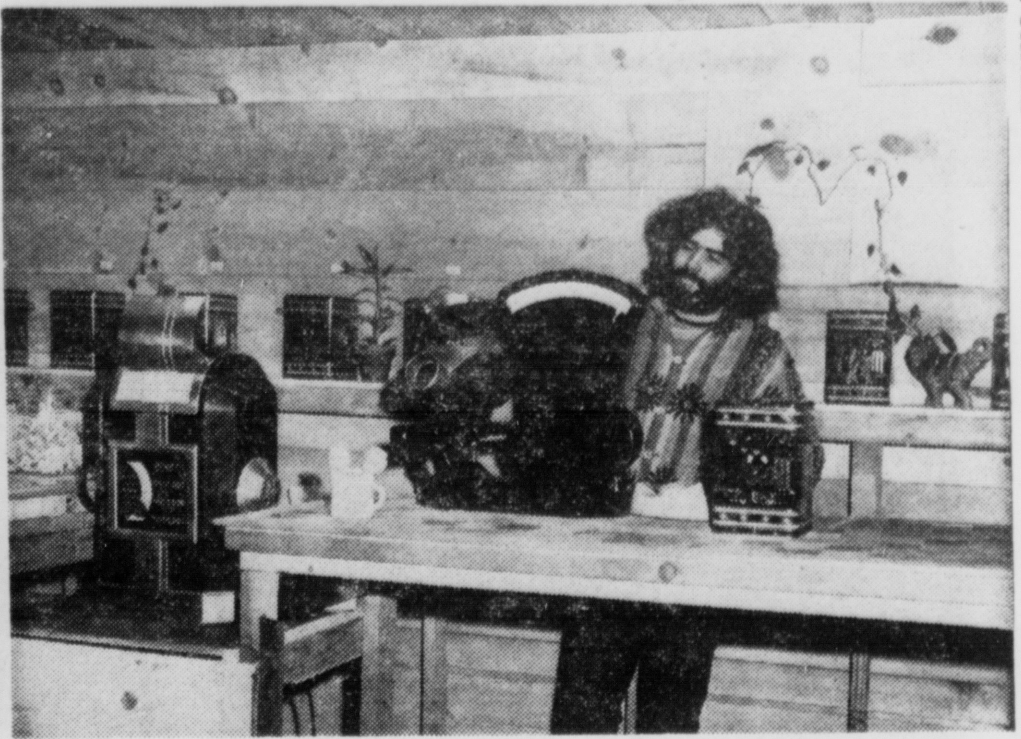

"EMPTY ROOMS" is the title of this painting by the late Woodstock artist, Jenne Magafan. Stark, somber work evokes memories of all the old, abandoned houses everywhere. This particular canvas is in the collection of the artist's twin sister, Ethel Magafan Currie, but Woodstock Artists Association hopes to include other Jenne Magafan works in its permanent collection.

"BARN AND CORNER OF PORCH" is one of the many works owned by the family of the late Woodstock artist Konrad Cramer. The multi-talented Cramer was also one of the finest photographers the art colony produced. Ever-active in the Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen and other artistic and community endeavors, he was one of the town's outstanding artists of the past whose work should be permanently displayed.

WHILE ENJOYING a cup of coffee or tea at a table on the balcony high above the bazaar-like booths of the Elephant Emporium, customers look down on exotic offerings, including in this section: colorful candles in animal shapes, intricate jewelry, attractive glasses and delicate glass figurines, stoneware pottery and sculpture. Elephant's bazaar of bizarre bargains has just opened in an original barn turned to bar and restored to barn building on Woodstock's Rock City Road, and restoration of building has included use of rough-hewn beams and posts; renewed exposure of long-hidden, 20 foot high ceiling.

THERE'S A SMALL CAFE under the steep roof of the Elephant, where the hungry or thirsty shopper can take time out for coffee cakes, ice cream, pastries and tea. This section also exudes the aroma of coffee beans, overflowing their huge burlap bags, and flavorful teas sold in giant tins decorated with Oriental scenes. Joel Schapira presides over the scales measuring out the coffee beans which can be taken home as is or freshly ground on the spot for vacuum, drip, open or percolator pot. The cafe also specializes in herbs; is a fascinating panorama in miniature of bustling commerce.

Exotic Shopping at Elephant

WOODSTOCK

A shopping expedition usually turns up nothing more exotic than a pair of sneakers or a new skirt. At Woodstock's new Elephant Emporium, things are a little different. You can, if you're of a whimsical turn of mind, order a red velvet dress trimmed in gold braid and once worn by a Russian beauty from the Central Asian booth.

The Venezuela shop offers charming dolls, giddy sandals with wool pompons the size of baseballs, colorful hammocks and conversation neckpieces; the Eclipse booth has attractive stoneware clay hanging pots for plants; and other international corners feature stunning bracelets, leather boots, silver jewelry, unique handbags, exotic teas and herbs, unusual candles, gim-cracks and trinkets, and wonderful, tasteful bargains.

The Elephant is one of the most concentrated shopping areas imaginable; is the new attraction in a building on Woodstock's Rock City Road that has long functioned as a bar-restaurant or coffee house. Dreamed up by youthful Ken Jamieson and his wife, Judy, and partner, Jeff Cohen, its nine miniature shops under one roof are literally crammed with international wares.

Imports and Crafts

Imports of every conceivable size and price are offered. It would take a full day and many pages of type to round them all up, but here is a real opportunity for shoppers to gather a global collection without taking an around-the-world cruise.

The emporium itself is a combination of early American styles and Oriental flavor. Originally a barn, the building has been restored to that look, its long-covered and original 20 foot high ceiling exposed again, and rough-hewn beams and posts and many a Tiffany lamp used to attractive advantage.

On a newly built balcony high overhead and overlooking the selling floor, there's a cafe section with tables and chairs. From a seat there the view down below provides a fascinating panorama of bustling commerce and hubbub.

Hanging plants everywhere bring the outdoors inside, and the overall atmosphere of the marketplace of old is in the mingled aromas of coffee beans, exotic teas, spicy herbs, hand-tooled leather, homemade breads and candlewax.

An added attraction before long will be an outdoor patio-garden, where individual roofed booths will offer other imports, crafts and antiques. Here, too, will be a barbecue pit where shisk-ka-bob, corn on the cob, hot dogs and hamburgers will be served—and a kiln where visitors can watch Sabra Segal producing pottery and sculpture pieces.

The Elephant Emporium is open every day but Thursday, so—if you're looking for a bargain—drop by and browse through its enormous range of attractions. (T.G.)

POTTERY FROM CAPE COD is the tasteful contribution of the "Eclipse" booth. Here, Sabra Segal shows stoneware clay hanging pots for plants, made by Norman Bacon, and glazed and strung by her. Both artists also show their sculpture and other handbuilt clay pieces, and Sabra is represented by watercolor mixed-media paintings and collage.

NATION JOSTLES NATION in the intimate cluster of nine small shops at the Elephant Emporium. This one offers Venezuelan imports, including dolls, purses, bags, belts, pottery and brightly colored hammocks. Original art works are displayed under a "Night Gallery" sign.

ONE OF THE MOST CONCENTRATED shopping areas is the Central Asian booth. You can travel through Asiatic countries in a few minutes of intense browsing; emerge with a wide bracelet, native costume, colorful scarf, or thick rug. There's also a Russian dress fit for a Czarina. (Freeman photos by Kruh)

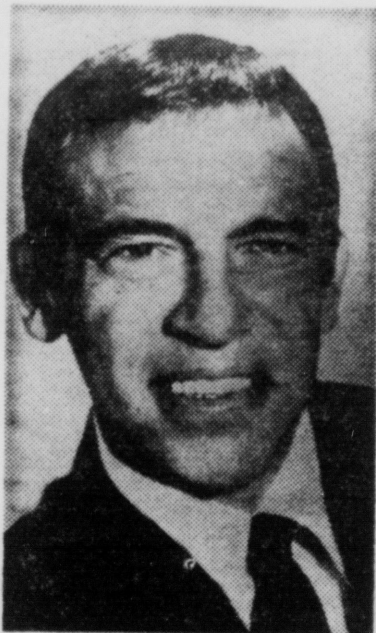

Big Bands for Hyde Park Stage

COUNT BASIE is one of five long-admired band leaders who will be bringing the big band sound to the Hyde Park Playhouse this summer in that theatre's Sunday Night Concert Series. The "One More Time" man is slated to perform the evening of July 30. All seats are reserved for these concerts and are expected to be gobbled up fast—so, better reserve early.

LIONEL HAMPTON will add his unique sound to the big band program at Hyde Park near season's end. The ever-popular Hampton brings his aggregation to the Dutchess County stage on the night of Aug. 13. Individual paid reservations received by July 10 for any of the five special concerts will be bargain-priced at $6, $5, $4. Tickets at the door will be $1 higher.

A LIVING LEGEND is drummer man Buddy Rich. He'll close out the Hyde Park Concert Series with his hard-driving rhythms in an 8 p.m. show on Sunday, Aug. 20. Special concert subscriptions are available for all five bands at $26, $23 and $18.

DIZZY GILLESPIE, the man who started the whole "bebop" thing, is still going strong; will proceed to prove it when he appears with his band at Hyde Park on Aug. 6. Mail orders are now being accepted for the highly popular big band programs.

WOODY HERMAN will put his "herd" through the paces in a July 23 concert to kick off the Hyde Park series. If you're interested in seeing any or all of these big bands, write: Hyde Park Playhouse, Box 382, Hyde Park, N.Y. 12538, and order now.

WISH WE WERE YOUNG AGAIN DEPARTMENT:

The knowledge that the nation's airlines, in the wake of a court-ruling overturning "women only" hiring policies for stewardesses as discriminatory, have begun a rush to hire men for the job, makes us feel we were definitely short-changed in our youthful, swinging years.

And the opinion of a handsome Pan American World Airways steward already at work that "Male passengers have always had somebody to flirt with, and single girls who travelled got left out—but now women will have somebody to flirt with," only confirms the feeling.

We can see it all as it might have been. There we are, a tired young career girl flying home after a long hard day, but eagerly anticipating a sweet, masculine smile at 35,000 feet.

"Would you bring me a magazine?" we ask enticingly—and a deep, male voice responds with, "For you, love, I'd print one from scratch."

Later, he appears to inquire: "Would you like a cocktail before dinner, beautiful?" And, with a flirtatious wink, we suggest we'd much rather share a hamburger or steak with him at safe landing time.

We can only regret that a man's touch was not there to make flying as pleasurable as possible for us in the old days: gently cradling our head on a comfortable pillow; spoon-feeding us veal parmigiana or beef stroganoff; fondling a cheek during the oxygen mask demonstration; showering us with compliments; holding our hand as the movie aboard plane unreels high in the sky.

Why did man's liberation come along after our flirting days have long gone by the boards? Ah, well, there's one small drop of solace. Today's single gal passengers will definitely be at a disadvantage when it comes to catching the only steward among a lot of pretty stewardesses.

AND, SO, ON TO WOMEN'S LIB, and the theory of a male friend of ours who insists that China is the ultimate of that movement. According to him, the women there wear no bras and they all wear baggy pants and loose jackets, and they're very sexless.

We have to disagree with him. If they're so sexless, how come they got 8 billion people?

WE HAVE IT straight from the horse's mouth that ABC has lined up some block-buster movies for its Sunday night movie show next fall in an effort to knock off its competition—NBC's Mystery Movie and CBS' Mannix.

The word is that among the films the network has bought for the period are "Lawrence of Arabia," "True Grit," "The Ten Commandments," "Love Story" and two James Bond films.

Granted, it's a potent lineup—but, personally, we're sticking with bumbling, mumbling Peter Falk in preference to O'Toole in a snood, Wayne in an eye-patch, and Heston in a toga. And Connery's Aston-Martin and O'Neal's hockey wounds will never lure us away from smashing, slashing Mike Connors.

IT'S REASSURING TO KNOW that capitalist nations don't have a corner on the pornography market. We've been advised that the book, "Moscow Nights," is a first in Russian porn. And the publishers insist that its authenticity as a truly classic example of Soviet erotic literature has been officially confirmed by Vidor Sokovich, the Cultural Attache to the Russian Embassy in Washington, D.C.

One can only breathe a sigh of relief that communists, too, have nasty thoughts on occasion that have nothing to do with conquering the world. And now that they've racked up a first, we can envision future Moscow marquee: Alexi Romanoff in "Revels on the Red Sea;" Serge Jurkovsky in "Wait 'Til She Meets Her Waterloo;" and Nazimova Molotov in "Cry Uncle in Leningrad."

THOUGHTS FROM HERE, THERE & EVERYWHERE:

The new Jarvis Gallery on Woodstock's Broadview Road almost makes the Taj Mahal look like a depressed area. Owner-interior decorator Gertrude Jarvis has batted a thousand when it comes to Park Avenue elegance in a Catskills setting.

We used to worry that the nation's ears would be permanently damaged by today's loud music, but we're now firmly convinced that it seems to be getting softer lately.

If you can't get into Poughkeepsie's Bardavon Theater to see "The Godfather," you can always go to New York and see the mobster mayhem in person.

If we ever get around to writing a book, we're sure it'll never be a best seller. We've just glanced at a few excerpts from the exclusive diary we've been keeping on our experiences and they'll never qualify as hot items. For example: May 1. Stayed home. May 2. Did nothing. May 3. Saw nobody. Hardly a "Peyton Place," is it?

DAVE VAN RONK COMING TO PLAYHOUSE

Will Appear at Woodstock

Congenial Van Ronk Always Pleases Crowd

WOODSTOCK

Dave Van Ronk was a merchant seaman, a construction worker, poet, and street singer. He turned professional entertainer in 1956; has become a legend in his field over the years.

A perennial favorite with audiences at the Woodstock Playhouse concert series each summer season, he's returning to the art colony to head a large group of performers, including Happy and Artie Traum, in a benefit concert for Holley Cantine's fire losses, on June 3 at 8 p.m.

Long-time Van Ronk fans know he's appeared in the clubs of Greenwich Village, Cambridge, San Francisco, and all the "in-betweens." His followers and guitar students have included Steve Katz of Blood, Sweat & Tears and Danny Kalb of The Blues Project. His songs have been recorded by many groups, including Peter, Paul and Mary.

Singer-guitarist Van Ronk has played to record breaking crowds at the Newport Folk Festivals, Carnegie Hall and Town Hall in New York, the Berkeley and Philadelphia Folk Festivals. His record popularity is high and his albums flow from the recording studios where he has now accumulated nine highly successful albums.

Critics have praised him as a super professional on guitar, and as a singer with a tonal quality 100 per cent unique. Considered a legend on the Boston-New York-Philadelphia-Washington folk circuit, he brings out an enthusiasm in his audiences with his crisp, clear finger picking, foot stomping beat, warm smile and congenial manner.

Audiences love him; always shout for "more." And that's the way it'll be at Woodstock Playhouse next Saturday night, so reserve your seats now at the box office, by mail or phone — or you may find none still available at the door at concert time.

An Old Elevator 'Ticket Booth'

MIDDLETOWN by college maintenance men

An ornate, turn-of-the-century elevator from the former Morrison mansion at Orange County Community College has returned to life as a unique ticket booth for the college's theater.

The open-cage, European style elevator, no longer used after the mansion became an OCCC classroom and office building in 1950, was restored.

THE "ROBERT FULTON" steams close to shore with flags flying and thousands of passengers crowding the rails. Built in 1909, her last year in service was 1934. After being withdrawn from service, and with engine and boilers removed, she was used as a floating community center for a pulpwood cutting operation in the Bahamas. She was the last Hudson River steamboat to use the once common walking beam type of engine and on Sept. 13, 1948 was the last Day Liner to make a regular landing at Kingston Point.

THE "DEWITT CLINTON" had the most versatile career of all the Day Liners. Built in 1913 as a night boat for service on Long Island Sound, she served as a cross channel transport in World War II after a rebuilding, she was used as a U. S. Army supply and transport vessel; later carried immigrants to Israel. As a Day Liner, she was used exclusively on the lower river between New York and Poughkeepsie; was broken up in 1953.

THE "NEW YORK" was considered by many boatmen to be the most graceful Day Liner. Built in 1887, she was destroyed by fire after the close of the 1908 season at a Newburgh shipyard. Her engine was salvaged, rebuilt and installed in the new "Robert Fulton."

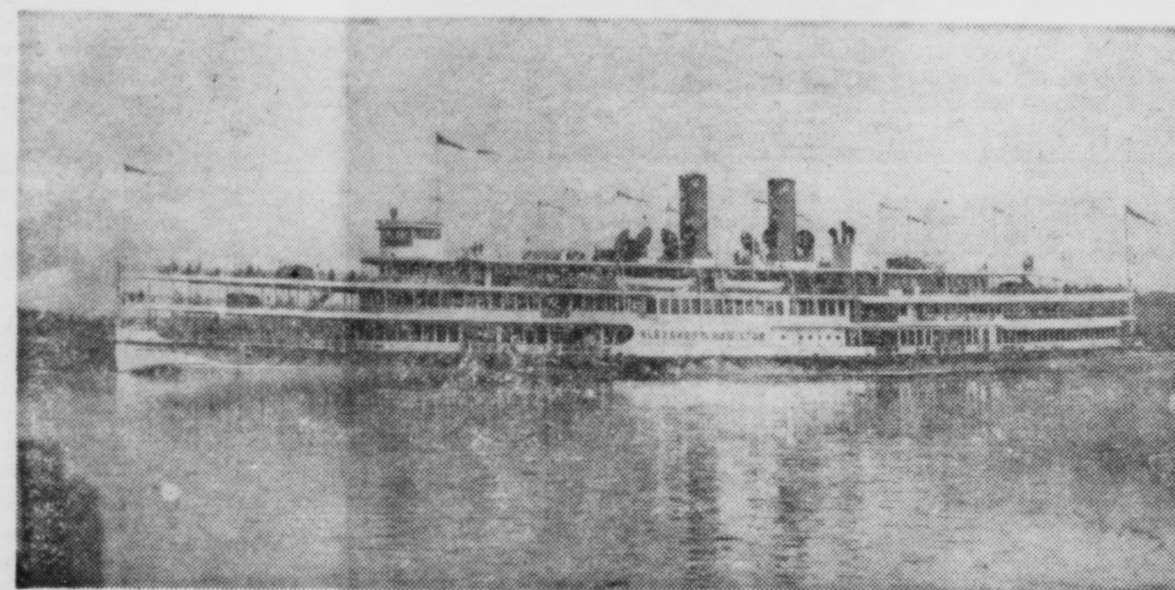

THE "HENDRICK HUDSON" at full speed in September 1937 after passing under Catskill's Rip Van Winkle Bridge. Built in 1906, she ran through the season of 1948 and was broken up in 1951. Due to her large passenger capacity (originally 5,500) and long period in service during the peak of Day Line popularity, she probably carried more passengers than any other Day Liner.

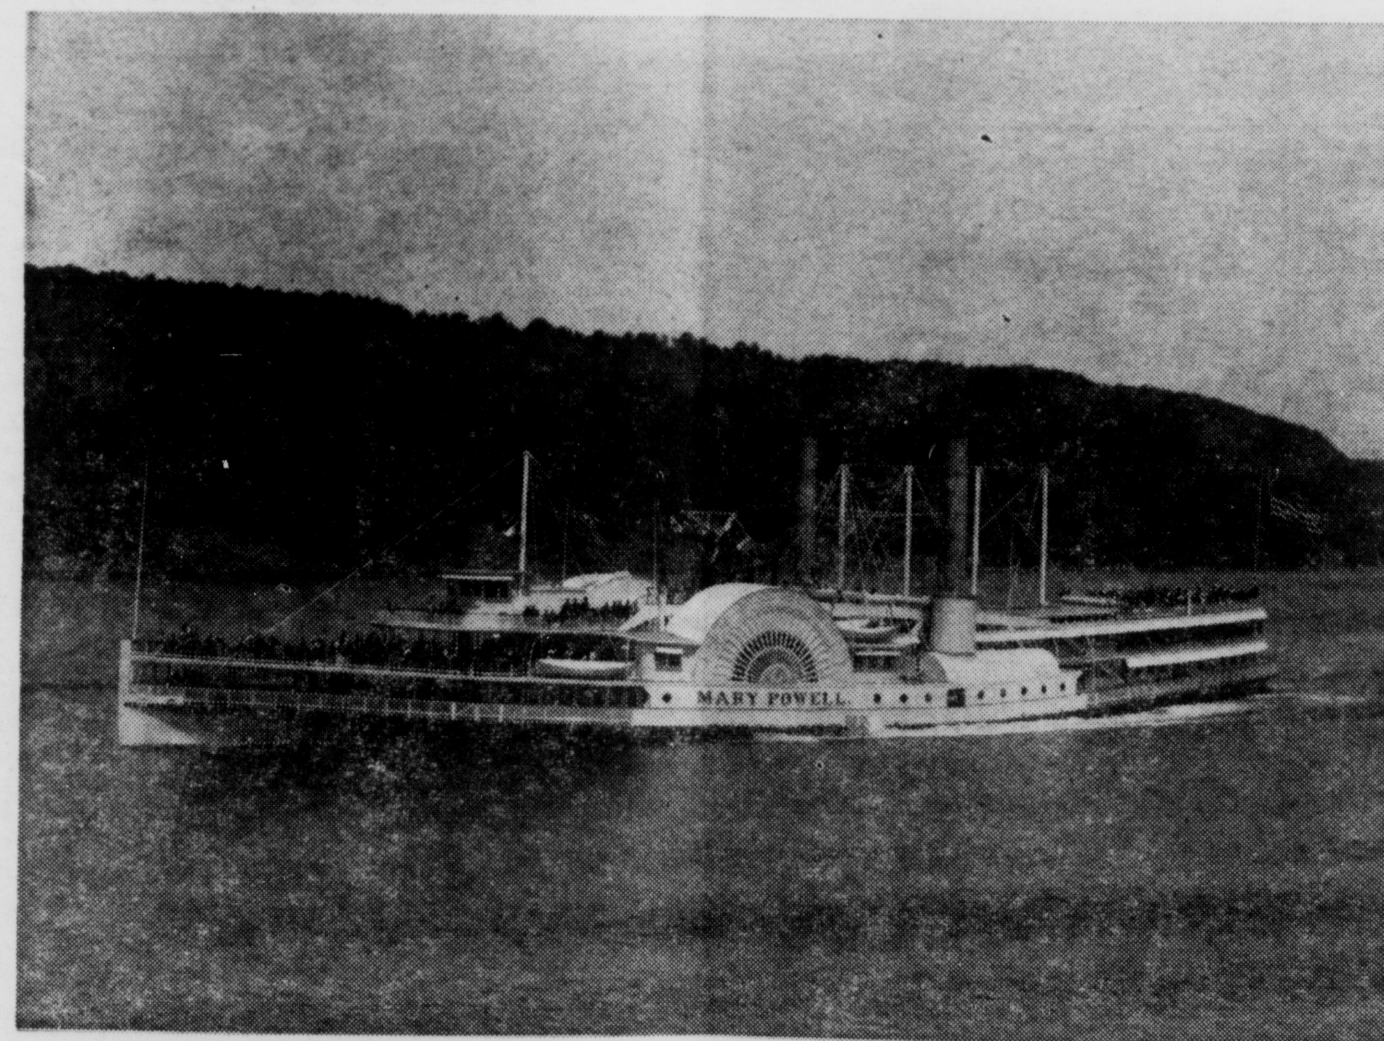

Day Line Memories

For many years and through the season of 1948, one of the surest—and most pleasant—signs of the coming of summer locally was the annual re-appearance of the Day Liners. From late May until mid-September, each day, two steamboats of the Hudson River Day Line would land at Kingston Point, one steamer in each direction.

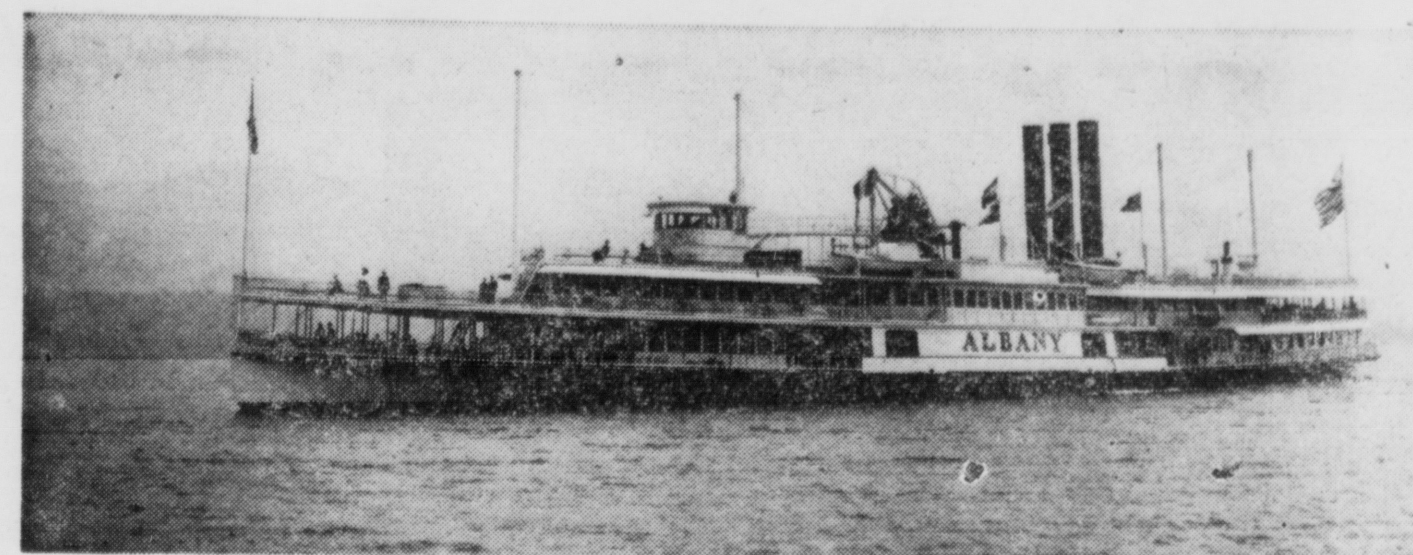

TEMPO herewith presents a portfolio of photographs from the collection of Captain William O. Benson, who authors our weekly riverboat reminiscences column, and from other sources, of the 10 Day Liners that plied the waters of the Hudson River during this century.

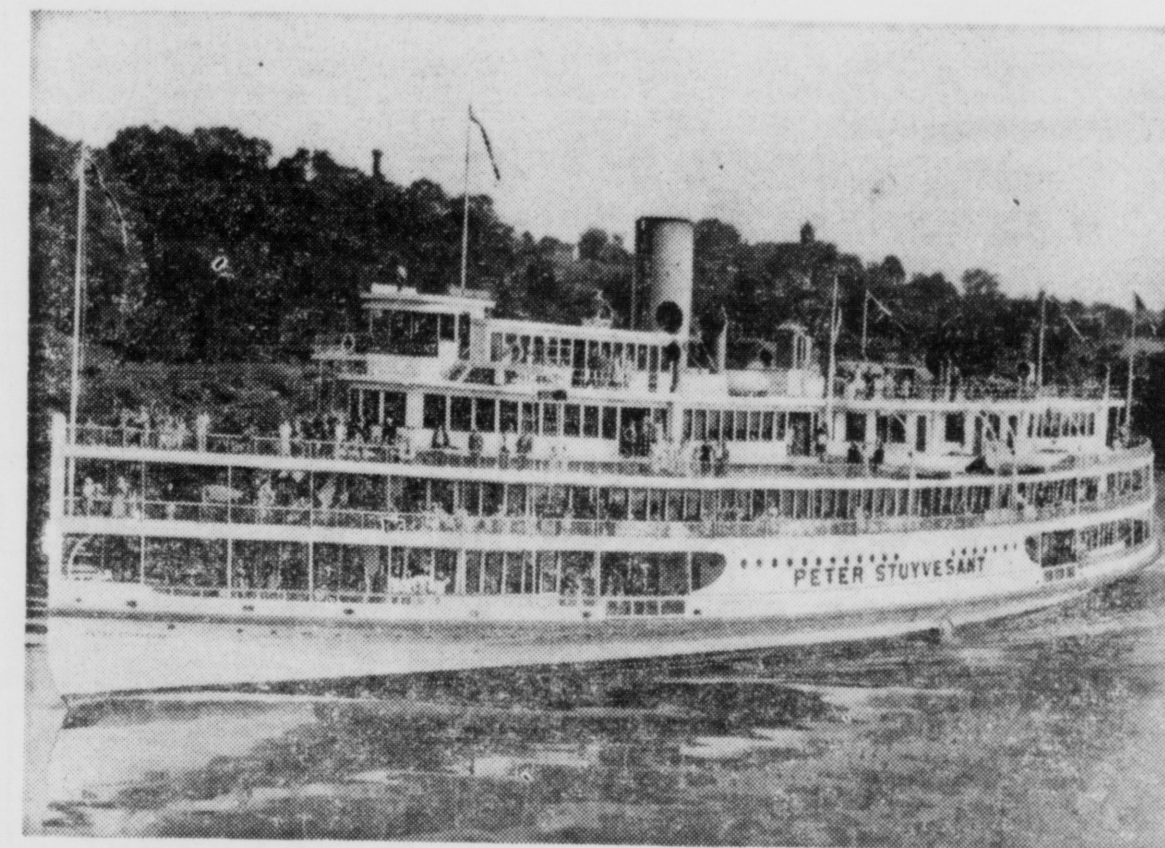

THE "ALEXANDER HAMILTON" was the very last of the old Day Liners remaining in active service; made her final trip from New York to Poughkeepsie and return on Labor Day just last year. Entering service in 1924, she's now berthed at South Street Seaport Museum, New York City. Here, she's bound for Albany; is off Four Mile Point north of Athens.

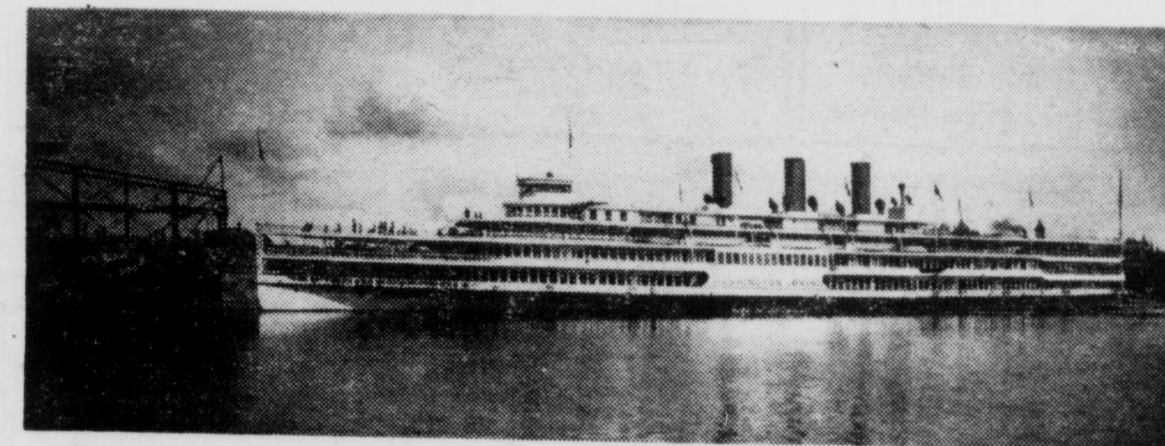

THE "MARY POWELL" was probably the best known and best loved of all Hudson River steamboats. Built in 1861, she was owned briefly by a Day Line predecessor company in 1869-71, and then by a Day Line subsidiary from 1903 until her final 1917 season. In this photo, she's off the Palisades, probably on her daily run from Rondout to New York.

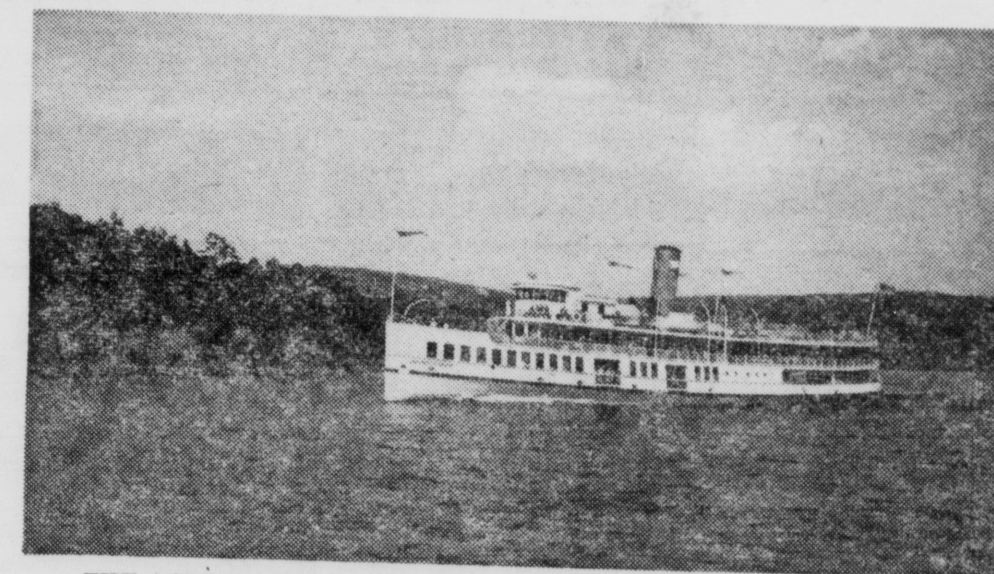

THE "ALBANY" was the longest-lived of the Day Liners. Built in 1880, she remained in service on the Hudson River for 51 seasons; in 1934 was sold and ran 15 years longer out of Washington, D.C., on the Potomac River. Here she's seen approaching Newburgh. (Photo courtesy of Library of Congress)

THE "PETER STUYVESANT" was the last steamboat to be built for the Day Line. Built in 1927, her last year in service was 1962. She's now permanently berthed at Boston as part of a restaurant complex. In this picture, she's bound north for Albany and is off Castleton.

THE "WASHINGTON IRVING" was the largest and shortest-lived of the Day Liners. Built in 1912, she had a passenger capacity of 6,000. On June 1, 1926 — shortly after leaving Desbrosses Street, New York, on a routine trip to Albany — she collided with an oil barge and sank at the end of a Jersey City pier. Here she's leaving Albany; is about to pass through the old highway swing bridge.

THE "CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW" was the smallest of the Day Liners and often called the Day Line yacht. Originally owned by Maine Central Railroad to carry passengers to Bar Harbor, she came to the Day Line in 1925; was used by the Army in New York harbor during World War II; was a ship tender at Bermuda from 1950-70. Here, she's seen rounding Constitution Island, opposite West Point. (Photo courtesy D. C. Ringwald) POWERFUL THEATRICAL EVENING is promised area audience when this Daytop Theatre Company cast brings THE CONCERT to John C. Quimby Auditorium in Vanderlyn Hall on Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College. Actors are all youthful ex-drug addicts; will dramatize some of the encounter-group therapy techniques at Daytop in this play — with a tremendous emotional wallop — to be performed at UCCC on June 2 at 8 p. m. It's open to the public and highly recommended as a fascinating and moving experience and as stunning entertainment.

'Black Moses' of Soul Should Pack Saratoga

SARATOGA including platinum records (the two million-dollar mark in sales) for each of his four albums from "Hot Buttered Soul," which earned him the award of Jazz Musician of the Year from Record World magazine in 1969, to the original score album of the movie "Shaft," which recently garnered both the Grammy and the Academy Award for Best Film Score. His Saratoga concert should be one of the memorable events of the 1972 season.

Hayes is universally recognized as one of the most innovative and arresting performers to surface in the soul music field in recent years. His remarkable physical presence, deep mellow baritone, and intensely personal delivery never fail to create an aura of highly-charged emotion. Categorized as a soul singer, his geared-down vocal interpretations represent a radical break from the heavily rhythmic sound of traditional soul music.

At 28, Hayes has moved from a sharecropping childhood in Tennessee to the highest levels of achievement in popular music. He first broke into the musical big-time as a session man (back-up musician) with Memphis-based Stax Records, and later as co-writer and producer (with partner David Porter) of many hit songs including "Soul Man" and "Hold On, I'm Coming" for Sam and Dave, Carla Thomas and others.

Since moving out on his own, he has compiled an incredible set of recording statistics, in-

IN SCENE FROM "THE GODFATHER," Don Corleone's famous godson, Johnny Fontaine, played by Al Martino and said to be modeled on Frank Sinatra, sings for the bride, Connie, played by Talia Shire. The film, based on the best-selling novel by Mario Puzo, is now playing a first run in the area at Poughkeepsie's Bardavon.

JEFF BRIDGES (L) and Timothy Bottoms meet on the main street of Anarene, Texas in 1951 in scene from "The Last Picture Show." The film, which received a nomination as best picture of the year, and which won Oscars for Ben Johnson and Cloris Leachman, is the current attraction at Kingston's Mayfair and the New Paltz Theatre.

THE VENGEFUL Queen Hecuba (Katherine Hepburn) confronts Helen (Irene Papas) in THE TROJAN WOMEN, the Michael Cacoyannis film featured for a first run in the area at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema.

MOVIES

The Last Picture Show

A totally excellent film is this highly potent and searingly realistic movie, possessed of all the gritty dullness and painful memories that came with growing up in the early '50s in a wind-swept Texas town. Its brilliant cast includes Ben Johnson and Cloris Leachman, who won Oscars for their roles, and Jeff Bridges, who was nominated for one, as well as Timothy Bottoms.

Directed by Peter Bogdanovich, whose birth certificate reads Kingston, N.Y., "Picture Show" centers on a small, shabby town on a flat plain; tells a series of interlocking stories of love and loss that are close to sentimental — but not quite. Many memories of the recent American experience are integral to this movie, and many of the characters will be familiar to audiences.

Few films have ever treated cast of characters with such sympathy and humor. A straight forward film of rare sensitivity about ordinary men and women and young people, it has vast appeal for those who would rediscover life as it was 20 years ago in this country.

This lovely recollection of one year in the life of Anarene, Texas (when the last movie house in town closed down), is definitely one of the best films in recent years; is now playing at both Kingston's Mayfair and the New Paltz Theatre.

We would add only that it has been photographed in black-and-white (as most movies were in the 1950s), and even that helps to summon up memories of the period, almost making it seem that it was actually made in the '50s rather than the '70s.

The Godfather

Just about everybody read Mario Puzo's 440 page novel, "The Godfather." And just about everybody will end up seeing the movie based on the book.

It's playing a first run in the area currently at Poughkeepsie's Bardavon Theatre and, violent though it is in large part, it's entertainment the likes of which Hollywood hasn't given us in many a moon.

Marlon Brando is obviously in love with his part, that of the aging Don, head of Mafia family. He is incredibly superb; looks like the godfather should look.

There has not been a slicker, faster-paced, more absorbing film in a long time — if ever — and, if the blood runs often as rival Mafioso exterminate rival Mafioso... so it must be.

Emphasis is as strong on the family ties and the matters of honor among underworld figures as on their machine gunnings and garrotings.

Starting in 1945 and proceeding over a period of many years, the story follows Brando's last years as head of a Mafia family and the events that lead to the selection of his successor. His supporting cast is very, very good indeed; includes Al Pacino and James Caan as his sons. Richard Castellano is excellent as a gunman assassin; Robert Duvall superior as the family's adopted son and counselor; Richard Conte fine as a prime enemy; John Marley superbly good as a Hollywood producer; and Sterling Hayden great as a corrupt police captain.

Tension runs strong throughout "The Godfather" and it's guaranteed to keep you on the edge of your seat, whether you're rooting for the good guys, the bad guys, the good bad guys or the bad good guys.

The Trojan Women

The Michael Cacoyannis film, THE TROJAN WOMEN, produced, directed and written by Cacoyannis, adapted from the great play by Euripides which was first presented in Greece in 415 B.C., is the dramatic story of the fall of Troy and the tragic fates of the Trojan women and children. It's the current attraction at Woodstock's Tinker Street Cinema in a first run engagement for this area.

Katherine Hepburn, the only actress to have won three Academy Awards, stars as Hecuba, Queen of Troy, with Vanessa Redgrave as Andromache, Genevieve Bujold as Cassandra and Irene Papas as Helen of Troy. Patrick Magee of Britain's Royal Shakespeare Company and Brian Blessed, are featured.

This is a movie with vast appeal to the members of the audience who responds to a theatrical event, and has a special appeal to women. It merits a rave review as a fine film based on a timeless classic, and for the tour-de-force performances by four of the world's greatest actresses.

All in all, a major screen event — more than a classic on film — a brilliant example of the power of film to communicate emotions and ideas and an example of the timeless quality of great literature.

Other Choices

THE PROFESSIONALS and HANNIE CAULDER are featured on the current double bill at Kingston's Community. The first is a rerun — but a dandy one — about paid mercenaries — and starring Burt Lancaster, Lee Marvin, Robert Ryan, Jack Palance, and Claudia Cardinale. "Hannie" is a newly released western, with Raquel Welch as the prettiest gunfighter of all time, and Robert Culp and Ernest Borgnine come along for the ride.

MINNIE AND MOSKOWITZ — Now playing at the Rosendale Theatre, one of 1971's 10 best films — a love story by John Cassavetes, poignant and sometimes hilarious, with stunning performances by Gena Rowlands and Seymour Cassell.

THE HOSPITAL and IN THE HEAT OF THE NIGHT — Excellent double feature currently at the local Sunset Drive-In. "Hospital" won an Oscar for writer Paddy Chayefsky; is a black comedy on the absurdities of today's institutional life and death, with great performances by George C. Scott as a doctor and Diana Rigg as the daughter of a weirdo patient. "Heat of the Night" won an Oscar for Roy Scheider as a small town Southern police chief who matches wits with a big city detective, played by Sidney Poitier as the two join force to solve a crime.

THE FRENCH CONNECTION

— Academy Award winning entertainment at the Hyde Park Drive-In in this fact based story of a major dope deal and the New York Police Department detectives who break the case. Fast-paced, totally fascinating gripping and gritty drama is a realistic account of police work starring Gene Hackman.

SHE DONE HIM WRONG

Mae West plays Diamond Lil singer and Red Hot Mama of a Gay '90s bowery saloon in this classic oldie now playing at Rhinebeck's Starr Theatre. Cary Grant as Pete the Duke is one of her many suitors and the perfect foil for the raucous Lil. Mae's version of "When Has My Easy Rider Gone" is said to have had more to do with the founding of the Legion of Decency than any other single film of the era.

As an extra added attraction the Starr's bill also features several Charlie Chaplin shorts (By TOBIE GEERTSEMA)

ROBERT CULP watches as Raquel Welch takes aim in "HANNIE CAULDER," the recently released western movie currently featured on the double bill at Kingston's Community Theatre with "The Professionals," an action-packed rerun starring Lee Marvin and Burt Lancaster.

SIDNEY POITIER stars as detective Virgil Tibbs in the first film in that series, "In the Heat of the Night." It's back for a well-deserved rerun on the double bill currently at the local Sunset Drive-In.

GENE HACKMAN won an Oscar as a New York City cop who likes to break heads and bust blacks in "The French Connection." The movie now at Hyde Park Drive-In, also copped award for "Best Film of Year."

Zontians were thrilled to tips-of-their-sandals 'bout success of last Saturday's bunion parade. Not even the steady downpour of rain dampened walkers' spirits. In fact, one gal (probably tryin' to save the price of new shoes) managed to keep pace with the crowd — BAREFOOT. Mike Basch must've spotted her from the window of his wife's beauty salon 'cause he ran outside to offer a bandaid for those festerin' blisters.

Saturday golfin' buffs brought along part of the links — their golf umbrellas. Jim Thompson found it necessary to stop off at Dunkin' Donuts for nourishment. By the time Jim reached Old Dutch, he was positively bushed; understand he threatened to stretch out for a bit at churchyard but that turned out to be only promises, promises.

Johnny Naccarato was fillin' in for Congressman Fish who's in Europe. When John tried to get his entry form stamped at the second check point, it was rainin' so hard the gal told him: "Forget it; the ink'll run." But rubber stamped or not, we can vouch that John made the ENTIRE trip; he carried our umbrella practically the whole three miles.

Betty Erbstein was weather-proofed from head-to-toe in plastic. We tried to catch a glimpse of Mr. E.; heard so much 'bout that fur-hat-n-ear-muffs creation he bought in Russia (a-la-mothballs by now, no doubt) that we wanted to see what Russian RAINWEAR had to offer.

One sponsor was expectin' his "walker" to "come in first;" must've thought it was a marathon and she was gonna RUN all the way. The same gal arrived late at startin' point, marchin' along in front of the rear ambulance. BUT an hour-and-a-half later, she was at the finish line, right behind the lead banner. After all, her sponsor was the boss and she didn't want to be walkin' again on Monday... job huntin', that is.

Quite a few sponsors were the walkers' EMPLOYERS — all kibitzers at that. (Maybe next time, the shoe'll be on the other foot.) Seems the night before the walkathon, one boss asked his worker if she was headed home to soak her feet for Saturday's hike. But she was ready for the question: "Heck no! I'm on my way to Wallace's. I want to walk the route tonight; gotta be sure I can do it in the mornin'."

Walkathon MORE than did ITS share for local Narcotics Guidance Council. Now it's High Falls Civic Association's turn and they've accepted the baton.

This Friday the Association in cooperation with the Council will sponsor one of the most remarkable dramas ever produced. It's "The Concept."

Stated for 8 p.m. at UCCC, the play traces a young drug addict through the agonies of "drying out" in jail to rehabilitation. It's got to be authentic; the cast consists of all ex-drug addicts.

Play has been termed by New York Times critic Walter Kerr: "without question the most moving theatrical experience in town."

Impressive ceremony last weekend at Kingston Powerboat Association dock where VFW conducted memorial services... casting fresh flowers upon the water in memory of those who died at sea.

SARATOGA PERFORMING ARTS CENTER

Music for All Ages and Tastes At the 1972 Saratoga Festival

SARATOGA Saratoga's Festival flyer lists many new special events for 1972. Tickets for these and other events announced for the season may be purchased at Ticketron box offices now. Newly listed among the specials are several pop groups, with music for all ages and tastes.

Jazz musician/composer Chuck Mangione and his Quartet will be joined by members of the Rochester Philharmonic for the opening concert at Saratoga Festival Friday, June 9. Mangione and his Quartet have become known for the kind of music that transcends all categories. They are featured in an upcoming PBS-TV special and at the Montreux Jazz Festival in Switzerland this June. These and other appearances will result in three new albums for Mercury Records.

Melanie, one of the brightest lights in folk-rock music, will bring her songs to the Saratoga Festival on Saturday, June 17. Her three albums and single hits such as "Candles in the Rain," "The Nickel Song" and "Brand New Key" (a million-seller) have carried Melanie to the front-rank of popular performers in a very short time.

Irish Rovers
The Irish Rovers, whose recording of "The Unicorn" held the number one spot on the charts for months, creating an instant musical legend, will appear at the Saratoga Festival Monday, June 19. Their tuneful and high-spirited music is Irish in essence, but the magic the Irish Rovers bring to a stage is irresistible, even for those without a drop of Irish blood in their veins.

Sunday, July 25 will see an Saratoga on Friday, Sept. 1.

evening of rock and roll nostalgia as Saratoga hosts a "Festival of the 50's." This Golden Oldies spectacular will feature such classic voices from the past as Bo Diddley, Chubby Checker, Tony Williams and the Platters, Joey Dee and his band, the Crystals, the Five Satins, and the Capris.

Two British groups, Deep Purple and Fleetwood Mac, will pay a visit to Saratoga Monday night, August 21.

Deep Purple, basically a hard-rock group, demonstrated their musical versatility and composing skills in a famous experimental concert with the Royal Philharmonic at London's Albert Hall, which collaboration resulted in the group's first Warner Brothers album. Fleetwood Mac is outstanding among English electric blues bands whose music is derived from the classic American bluesmen so venerated in that country. The band boasts a new line-up and many fine original tunes — their latest LP on Resrise is titled "Future Games."

James Gang

The James Gang, currently one of America's top rock bands, will make their second Saratoga appearance on Wednesday, August 30. The group borrowed their name from the notorious outlaw band of Frank and Jesse James, and they generate a similar excitement wherever they appear. Their latest hit LP is called "Straight Shooter."

Rare Earth, a group that has recently enjoyed an unbroken string of top hits, including "Celebrate," "Hey, Big Brother," and "Born to Wander," will head the bill at Their hard-driving rhythms and soaring harmonies are this group's trademarks. Also on the bill the night of Sept. 1 is ShaNaNa, a group that has delighted rock and roll fans for several years with their authentic revivals of 1950's classics such as "Blue Moon" and "Heartbreak Hotel." Perfect vocal imitations, and 50's costumes and dance patterns all contribute to a joyous parody that is very close to the real thing.

Saratoga Performing Arts Center has received notice on its requested ruling from the Price Commission. Prices will still be scaled for all special events, but will be slightly changed from previous seasons. The major innovation is that, for some of the specials, a substantial number of orchestra seats will be the same price as the lawn and will be sold on a reserved seat basis. Questions on pricing and tickets for specific performances may be answered by calling 587-3330.

Ironside Filming

NBC's "Ironside" series has started production in Hollywood on episodes for the 1972-73 season, its sixth. Elizabeth Baur, who made her debut this season as the distaff member of Ironside's police unit, is again playing Officer Fran Belding.

93 Grid Games

NBC's 1972 football schedule consists of a record 93 games, including the climactic Super Bowl after the regular season of American Football Conference telecasts.

Woodstock Playhouse Opening on June 17 With Simon's Comedy

WOODSTOCK Woodstock Playhouse opens its 34th consecutive season Saturday, June 17 with the Neil Simon comedy hit, THE LAST OF THE RED HOT LOVERS. Other plays under consideration for the season are BUTTERFLIES ARE FREE, THE EFFECT OF GAMMA RAYS ON MAN-IN-THE-MOON, MARIGOLDS, HOUSE OF BLUE LEAVES and FORTY CARATS.

The Playhouse season will also definitely feature three top successful musicals: the charming musical comedy, DAMES AT SEA, JACQUES BREL IS ALIVE AND WELL AND LIVING IN PARIS, and Harold Prince's musical success, COMPANY.

M. Edgar Rosenblum, producer of Woodstock Playhouse for the last 12 years, says a number of new directors, designers and technicians have been contracted for the 1972 summer season. Harold Baldrige, who has been artistic director for the past six years, will continue in that capacity — but will only stage three productions this season. Joining Baldrige in directorial duties will be Kent Paul, who has just staged THE HUNTER for Joseph Papp's Public Theatre. Paul will direct the productions of FORTY CARATS and JACQUES BREL IS ALIVE AND WELL AND LIVING IN PARIS. The well-known director-choreographer Tommy Breslin will stage and choreograph DAMES AT SEA. A fourth outstanding director in American theatre is expected to be announced shortly. Designers will be Ralph Funicello, David Snyder, Bill Walker, Ron Wallace and Judy Rasmuson.

Directors and producers are presently casting the best professional talent available for this summer season, and cast and additional staff announcements will be forthcoming.

Woodstock Playhouse's unique season ticket is now available and can be obtained by writing to P.O. Box 268, Woodstock, New York 12498.

Calamar's Art A Global Tour

WOODSTOCK Watercolors, acrylics and lithographs executed on locations among the more intriguing landscapes of New York, Utah, California, Mexico, Greece, Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union are featured in the just opened art show at Gardner Gallery, 210 Mead Mountain Road, Woodstock.

The work of local artist, Gloria Calamar, they will remain on view through June 18. Gallery hours are 1 to 5 p.m. daily and weekends, and the Gardner is closed Mondays.

A versatile painter, Gloria Calamar excels at putting nature and city scenes on canvas; is a member of Artists Equity Association and listed in International Directory of the Arts, Artists USA, Who's Who in Art, and Who's Who in American Art. She has been published in American Artist Magazine; has taught Art History and Studio Art at Orange County Community College, Middletown, and Mount Saint Mary College, Newburgh.

All the works in the show are for sale with prices listed and arrangements of terms possible. And both the artist and the gallery believe a painting is "the best buy" a purchaser can make today. If you buy it because you like it, they say, you can live with it and enjoy it — denoting your awareness.

ZENA ROAD ANTIQUE SHOP in Woodstock charms and delights visitors; evokes nostalgia in wicker furniture, mirrors, kitsch paintings and washstand accoutrements of bygone years. Operated by Florence Lowe and Katherine Dordick, former puppeteers of The Berkeley Marionettes, its booth was a big hit at the recent Woodstock Antiques Festival on the local Playhouse lawn. (Freeman photo by H. Pete Powell)

From Marionettes to Majolica— And From Puppets to Primitives

WOODSTOCK

When the mother and daughter team of Florence Lowe and Katherine Dordick were utilizing their remarkable talents as the skilled puppeteers of The Berkeley Marionettes, people everywhere had a lot of nice things to say about them. Playing to more than six million persons during their career, the marionettes were praised for their perfect diction, exquisite use of English, and splendid dramatic acting.

Critics and audiences alike lauded them for doing valuable and lasting work, winning their way into the hearts of millions of youngsters and adults, excellent performances with a real sense of drama, manipulation carried on with great care, and the realism that marked the faces of the characters and their lifelike movements that made children forget there were strings attached.

Now, Lowe and Dordick have left The Prince and the Pauper, Pinocchio, Jack and the Beanstalk, Toby Tyler, Rip Van Winkle, Hans Brinker and Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch behind; currently own and operate a Zena Road antique shop in Woodstock.

Collected and Collected

Says Mrs. Lowe of their original and current careers: "Forty years as marionette producers, at one time with three travelling companies, we played to millions of persons, and enjoyed a fascinating and rewarding profession. Over the years we collected antiques. And collected. And Collected. AND COLLECTED! We gave shows. And collected. Our children joined the troupe. We collected. Our children married and our children-in-law joined the troupe. We collected.

"We retired. To collect! The walls began to bulge but we couldn't stop. There was nothing to do but to go into business. An honest analysis would indicate that we went into the antique business so that we could make money to satisfy our collecting compulsion.

"Our operation started in a small building, a granary, and since has grown to include a large barn. And still we collect. It's getting harder as antiques get more popular and, therefore, more scarce — but we can't stop. Where will this end? We don't know. We hope impulse buyers will drop by and bring money — so we can go out and collect more."

Part of Lowe and Dordick's treasure trove was featured at the recent Woodstock Antiques Festival on the lawn of the art colony's Playhouse; was an instantaneous hit with the crowd. Small wonder since they have it all: one-of-a-kind and unusual items of fine glass and china, turn-of-the-century and earlier furniture, clocks, lamps, brass, copper, miniatures.

Fun and Surprises; Top Artists, Prizes

TOWN OF ULSTER

Probably never has the Town of Ulster attracted such a show of artistic talent and creativity, and it's all free to the public, within and beyond the limits of Ulster County.

This BIG "happening" will take place Saturday, June 17, on the grounds of the Town of Ulster Library, 985 Morton Boulevard. A day of fun, surprises and entertainment is in store for the whole family, and for those without a family. Husbands, fathers and bachelors are also invited to participate!

Artists and craftsmen from over a dozen communities have already registered and will be eligible for the over $200 in cash awards. Many are top persons in their fields, and will be offering their art and handicrafts for sale to the public. Names of five professional qualified judges will be announced shortly, according to Mrs. William J. East, chairman of the Arts and Crafts Show.

The LIBRARY FAIR, headed by Roy Freeman and Richard

Nace, will be in full swing the same day. Live entertainment will include: Kevin Krajick, folk singer; Don Barringer and the Moonlighters, country singers and dancers; and Richard Jossett and Debbie Rickett, folk singers with guitar.

Also: Nova International Folk Dancers, under the direction of Ron Sanders (audience participation, if you care to join them); and Carolyn Odell, folk singer.

Ray LeFebvre, radio personality from WGHQ-FM, will also be on the scene, doing the "Guess Who" weekly night program, in two segments, one each for the generation gaps. A prize in each group will be awarded by Ray's dog, "Fantucci."

The Ulster Lions Club will be in attendance assisting with the setting up of grounds and the cleaning up; Ulster Kiwanis will be manning the games, for young and old, so there's promise there'll will be something for everyone to have a good time.

You'll be sorry if you miss this FAIR and ART SHOW!

A Real Country Fair

KINGSTON

Come one, come all to the Junior League Country Fair on Saturday, June 3. A fun-filled day for the whole family is promised at Kingston's Forsythe Park. This gala affair will feature many games of skill to appeal to all ages with lots of prizes for the lucky ones. A variety of foods and beverages including hamburgers, sausage and peppers, cotton candy and ice cream, beer and soda will be available to munch and sip. Homemade candy, baked goods, and even gourmet casseroles you can pop in the oven for dinner will be on sale. Besides booths selling original handicrafts, hearty plants, and old books, some dozen antique dealers will display their wares. Young children will enjoy the pony rides and puppet shows and, especially, the Surprise Visitor.

The Fair kicks off at 11 a.m. with a bicycle parade around the park lead by members of the Amerscot Highland Pipe Band. Children from ages four to ten are urged to bring their decorated bikes to the tennis court area by 10:45. All parade entries will receive a free game coupon, and prizes for the most original bike decor will be awarded in the tricycle and two-wheeler categories. Special event tickets will be on sale at the Fair also for two grand prizes of two new bicycles.
